Notes on Contributors

BEAT AFFENTRANGER has recently received his doctorate from the University of Zurich for a thesis on Jonathan Swift's satires on science. He was an assistant and junior lecturer at the English Seminar before taking up a research fellowship at Cornell University, where he is currently pursuing his interest in Science Studies.

JOHN G. BLAIR has served as Geneva's Professor of American Literature and Civilization since 1970. His three books are entitled The Poetic Art of W. H. Auden (1965), The Confidence Man in Modern Fiction (1979), and Modular America: Cross-Cultural Perspectives on the Emergence of an American Way (1988), the latter awarded the Ralph Henry Gabriel Prize offered by the American Studies Association for interdisciplinary contributions to the field. His current research emphasizes cultural studies, including drama.

WILLY ELMER is a professor at the University of Basel, where he teaches linguistics (diachronic linguistics, Old and Middle English, English dialects). He is the author of The Terminology of Fishing (1973), Diachronic Grammar (1980), Glückauf Ruhrrevier (1990), and co-editor of the Atlas of English Sounds.

PETER HALTER is Professor of American Literature at the University of Lausanne. Among his publications are a study on Katherine Mansfield and the short story as well as numerous essays, mainly on various aspects of Modernism. His latest book publication is The Revolution in the Visual Arts and the Poetry of William Carlos Williams (Cambridge University Press, 1994). Currently he is at work on a series of articles on literature and photography.

MARTINE HENNARD DUTHEIL holds an MA from the University of Sussex and a PhD from the University of Lausanne (1997). She has published articles on Defoe, Dickens, Nabokov and Rushdie. She is currently working for the International Bureau of Education (UNESCO).

PETER HOLLAND is Director of the Shakespeare Institute, Stratford-upon-Avon, and Professor of Shakespeare Studies at the University of Birmingham. His most recent book is English Shakespeares: Shakespeare on the English Stage in the 1990s (Cambridge University Press, 1997).

HARTWIG ISERNHAGEN has been Professor of English at Basel since 1981. His publications include Aesthetische Innovation und Kulturkritik: Das Frühwerk von John Dos Passos, 1916- 1938 (1983) as well as articles on the theory and history of twentieth-century fiction (especially modernism / postmodernism), on American Studies as a discipline, and on Native North American and South Pacific literatures.

CHRISTA KNELLWOLF is Postdoctoral Research Fellow at the English Department of Cardiff University. She is the author of A Contradiction Still: Representations of Women in the Poetry of Alexander Pope. She is currently working on the relationship between science and literature in the seventeenth century and, together with Christopher Norris, co-editing the Cambridge History of Literary Criticism, vol. 9.

BEVERLY MAEDER teaches English at the University of Lausanne. Her book on linguistic experimentation in the poetry of Wallace Stevens is forthcoming from St. Martin's Press.

DIDIER MAILLAT, who has a degree from the University of Lausanne, specializes in French and English linguistics. He is currently working on a Ph.D. thesis on the linguistic pragmatics of advertising at the University of Oxford.

DENIS RENEVEY is Lecturer in Medieval English at the University of Fribourg, and part-time Lecturer at the University of Lausanne. He has published several articles on medieval translation and vernacular hermeneutics. His latest publication, a chapter on The Wooing Group, is part of an anthology entitled Mysticism and Spirituality in Medieval England, published by D.S. Brewer, Cambridge.

ERNST RUDIN teaches Hispanic Literatures at the University of Fribourg. He has written Tender Accents of Sound: Spanish in the Chicano Novel in English (Bilingual Press, 1996) and Der Dichter und sein Henker? Lorcás Lyrik und Theater in deutscher Uebersetzung (in print). He is currently carrying out a research project on Cuban Theater for the Swiss National Science Foundation.
