"Velcro" in high fashion belts used by English couture Houses

"Velcro", the Bri-nylon Touch-and-Close fastener, has been welcomed as a revolutionary new fastener for clothes by the British Couture Houses of Paterson, Cavanagh, and Lachasse, who have used it to fasten many of the lovely belts by Paris House, used in their Autumn Collections.

Paris House have used "Velcro" on nearly all the belts in their fabulous new Collection, since it is by far the neatest and most effective way of fastening a belt — just press the two nylon strips together to close, and peel apart to open.

It is strong, yet neat and flat, and is invisible when closed — ideal for skirt plackets, jacket fronts, dresses, gloves, girdles, and bras.

Many ready-to-wear fashions already feature "Velcro", including Christian Dior bras, Au Fait bras, Dent's Gloves, Teddy Tinling tennis wear, and Louis London sportswear, to name but a few.

For sewing at home, it is obtainable in retail shops throughout the country, price 2/- for 6 inches (4d. an inch), and in ten colours.

"Velcro" is easy to sew, and can be cut to any length to ensure a perfect fit. It will wash, iron, dry-clean, and even go through the mangle, when it is closed, without any loss of strength or effect.

Lisa Della Casa Acclaimed For Her "Salome"

"Süddeutsche Zeitung" and "Merkur", Munich's most widely-read papers, were unanimous in their praise for the Karl Böhm-led performance of Strauss' "Salome", which because of Lisa Della Casa's first appearance in the title role was one of the most eagerly awaited events of this year's Munich Opera Festival. The sold-out performance, which took place in the Prinzregenten-Theater 19th August, attracted music reviewers from Switzerland, Austria, England, France and other countries and was also attended by a large number of European and American singers and conductors. Generalmusikdirektor Keilberth, especially overwhelmed by Mme Della Casa's magnificent rendition of Salome's Dance of the Seven Veils, expressed his desire to have the singer appear again in that role later on under his baton. Leontyne Price was one of Mme Della Casa's numerous colleagues who greeted and congratulated her after the audience had applauded for a solid thirty minutes.

Cocoa the Swiss way

Make delicious hot chocolate like one finds in most Swiss "tea-rooms" by first mixing cocoa to a smooth paste with single cream (have you ever tried mixing cocoa with milk?) and then adding the hot milk slowly. Now sit back, close your eyes, and drink and imagine you can hear the cow bells on the mountain side!

Tip for housewives

Line your cooker drip-tray with aluminium foil and save endless time in cleaning.
