Swiss Holiday Scene

LATEST figures show a continuing improvement in the Swiss tourist industry, with hotels reporting a 20 per cent increase in March compared to the same month last year.

There was only a slight increase in the number of Swiss visitors — 2 per cent — but the number from outside Switzerland showed a considerable jump of 35 per cent.

Germans accounted for the biggest increase — 871,000 overnight stays, a 59 per cent increase — while British visitors accounted for 80,000 overnights, which was up 34 per cent.

Figures for the first three months of this year show a steady increase in British visitors to Switzerland, with 232,000 overnight stays — an average increase of 20 per cent.

Summer in Gstaad

GSTAAD (Bernese Oberland) is again offering an attractive programme of summer events, including the International Tennis Championship of Switzerland (July 5 to 13), the 24th Yehudi Menuhin Festival with famous soloists and orchestra (August 5 to 28), and a National Horse Jumping Competition (August 16 and 17).

A leaflet listing all events and hotel accommodation is available from the Swiss National Tourist Office.

Weekly riding packages are also on offer until July 5 and from September 1 to December 21, with prices starting from Sfr. 380. Included in the cost are six days bed and breakfast, six days riding lessons and various reductions for the sports facilities in Gstaad.

Further information: Kur-und Verkehrsverein, 3780 Gstaad, Switzerland. Tel: (030) 4 10 55, Telex: 33767.

Jazz festivals

Montreux 14th International Jazz Festival: July 4 to 20.

Willisau (Canton Lucerne) Jazz Festival: August 28 to 31.

Zurich International Jazz Festival: October 30 to November 2.

THIS year's Fête des Vendanges of Neuchâtel will take place on September 27 and 28.

The programme starts on the Saturday afternoon with a procession of children in costumes. Admission will be free.

At 8.30pm there will be a grand parade of orchestras and bands at the Maladière stadium by the lake.

Later there will be dancing in the streets and in front of the Town Hall and orchestras and bands will play in the streets. Restaurants will stay open all night.

Astronomy courses

THE observatory "Calina" at Carona, near Lugano, will again stage a series of astronomy courses.

From September 29 to October 4 elementary beginners' courses will be held, where expert technical and scientific advice is given.

A special photographic course for people who have already attended one of the Calina courses is planned from October 6 to 11.

The "Calina" observatory is situated in a typical small Ticino village, only 5 km from Lugano.

Stopover packages

SWISSAIR, in conjunction with the local tourist offices, is offering stopover packages in Zurich from Sfr. 35, Geneva from Sfr. 30 and Basle from Sfr. 39.

This includes one night's accommodation with breakfast, service and taxes, free or reduced fare city sightseeing tour, use of the public transport system and various other concessions for museums and excursions.

This package can be extended up to three nights and the offer is only available with air transport by Swissair or the scheduled services of any IATA carrier, flying to and from Switzerland. It is not valid for charter or group travel.

The package can also be used with return air travel from the UK to Switzerland.

Bookings can be made through travel agents or direct with Swissair.

Holidays in Engelberg

THE summer and winter resort of Engelberg is offering attractive holiday arrangements for families and senior citizens until October. A ski-acrobatic (hot dog) course is also on offer from July 14 to August 16.

Guided rambles, climbing lessons, tennis lessons, fitness programmes and swimming are available as well.

Major events include:

□ July 12: Opening of Engelberg concert weeks.

□ July 25: Folklore evening with local costume group.

□ July 26/27: 10 Years Tug of War Club Engelberg; an international between Switzerland and Holland.
