Instructions for the setting out of articles for inclusion in "IABSE STRUCTURES"

1. Presentation

Each article is to take up 2 pages of the booklet "IABSE STRUCTURES" which has a format of 170 x 240 mm. Typesetting and layout of the article are attended to by the editorial staff of the IABSE. The author is to prepare the article in one of the three official languages of the Association — English, French or German.

In general the text should comprise somewhere between 60 and 120 lines of about 60 strokes per line. The number of lines will of course vary according to the number of photographs and drawings, which should range from 2 to 6.

2. Text

The following information should appear at the beginning of the article:

Title, location:

Owner:

Architect:

Engineer:

Contractor:

Works' duration (months):

Service date (year):

Size and quantities of materials employed can also be given.

The articles should deal mainly with a description of the particular structure — peculiarities in planning, concept, execution and operation. It is recommended that the SI international units' system be adopted throughout the articles.

3. Illustrations

Authors are reminded that the final printed size of illustrations is quite small and that it is therefore imperative that the documents submitted be of immaculate quality. They need not be submitted in the final size, but should be no larger than 20 x 30 cm.

3.1 Diagrams and Drawings

Diagrams and drawings are reproduced as are and will not be drawn again by the editorial staff. The authors should therefore take great care in the preparation of these drawings and should avoid including too many details. The writing should still be legible when printed in the final size. A blueprint has too many details, the lines are too thin, there is too much writing and the writing is usually too small.

3.2 Photographs

Photographs submitted should be untrimmed, high-contrast glossy prints — black and white only — if possible larger than the space available in the manuscript. Do not stick them onto the manuscript, but indicate on the back: name of author, figure number and legend.

4. Deadlines

The following deadlines apply to the IABSE STRUCTURES' articles only:
