Local News – Great Britain

Communications from the Embassy in London

As most of the readers of the Swiss Review may already know, the BRITISH NATIONALITY ACT 1981 will come into force on January 1, 1983.

This Act is from a Swiss view point relevant in so far that a child born to Swiss parents in this country will no longer become automatically a dual national. If both parents are Swiss and live in the U.K. only temporarily, i.e. as students or temporary workers, the newly born child will be of course Swiss but not British.

If either the child's father or mother is British and the other Swiss, according to the new Act the child becomes British; according to the Swiss Nationality Law the child becomes at birth Swiss if the father is Swiss. If the mother is Swiss and married to a foreigner, the child becomes only Swiss, if both parents, although living temporarily in the U.K., have at the time of birth their domicile in Switzerland.

A child born to Swiss parents permanently settled in the U.K. will become automatically dual national. (A person is settled if he/she is lawfully in Great Britain, ordinarily resident and not subject to a time limit on his/her stay). It may be appropriate to remind here Article 10 of the SWISS Nationality Law, which states:

"a person, born abroad and having both Swiss and foreign citizenship, whose father was also born abroad, loses Swiss citizenship upon attaining age 22, unless his/her birth has been duly registered with a Swiss authority in Switzerland or abroad before that date".

The following schedule may help you to understand the consequences of the new British Nationality Act:

The Home Office, where precise information on the British Nationality Act may be obtained, has stated the following: "As a consequence of the British Nationality Act 1981, which comes into force on 1 January 1983, children born in the United Kingdom after that date will not become British citizens unless at the time of birth one of the parents a British citizen or settled here. This means that, under the United Kingdom's immigration law, although a child born here to parents who are not citizens or settled here would not require permission to stay here, he would require permission to return to this country if he went abroad.

In order to overcome difficulties at ports if such a child seeks to be readmitted after an absence abroad, particularly if he is not accompanied by his parents, the Home Office is anxious that children born here should have their position regularised before they leave the U.K. Parents who themselves have a current permission to be here will be able to apply to the Home Office to do this.

The Home Office has prepared the following guidance leaflet to tell parents how to apply for leave for their children born in the United Kingdom on or after 1 January 1983.

Notice to parents from overseas who have children who were born in the United Kingdom on or after 1 January 1983

The Change made by the British Nationality Act 1981

The British Nationality Act 1981 came into force on 1.1.1983. Under the previous law any child born in the United Kingdom was automatically citizen of the United Kingdom and Colonies (except in some special cases). The effect of the 1981 Act is that a child born in the U.K. on or after 1.1.1983 will not necessarily be a citizen.

Applying for your child to be given leave to stay in the United Kingdom

You can apply now to the Home Office, at the address given at the end of this leaflet, for your child to be given permission to stay here. You do not have to do this, but if you are planning to stay in the United Kingdom for some time, and particularly if your child is likely to travel abroad and then come back here, you would be well advised to do so. If your child has permission to stay in the United Kingdom before he goes abroad, it means he can be readmitted more easily.

What permission to stay will my child be given?

Normally a child will be given permission to stay for as long as his parents have permission to be here. If he leaves the United Kingdom he may be given permission to re-enter, provided he is coming back with, or to join his parents and they have permission to be here. If his parents do not have permission to be in the

	Parents on temporary stay in Britain	Parents permanently settled in Britain
Father Swiss, mother Swiss	Child Swiss	Child Swiss and British
Father Swiss, mother British	Child Swiss and British	Child Swiss and British
Father British, mother Swiss	Child British (can also be Swiss if parents have kept permanent domicile in Switzerland)	Child British

Which children are British citizens

A child born in the United Kingdom will be a British citizen if one of his or her parents is a British citizen. It does not matter how the parent concerned became a British citizen or whether he or she is such a citizen by birth, adoption, descent, naturalisation or registration. If neither parent is a British citizen, the child will still be a British citizen if one of his or her parents is settled here. (A person is settled if he is lawfully here, ordinarily resident and not subject to a time limit on his stay). If neither of the child's parents is a British citizen and neither is settled in the United Kingdom then the child will not be a British citizen by birth.

Children who are not British Citizens

A child who is not a British citizen does not have the right of abode in the United Kingdom, and is subject to immigration control. He does not need permission to stay here. If he travels abroad, he will need permission to come back into the United Kingdom

United Kingdom, either because they came unlawfully or have stayed longer than they were allowed, a child cannot normally be given leave to stay or to re-enter.

How to apply

If you think that your child may be subject to immigration control and wish to apply for him to be given permission to stay, or if you need further information, you should write to:

Association of British Members of the Swiss Alpine Club

The Association has a historic lineage. It was formed as long ago as 1909 to enable British members of the Swiss Alpine Club to meet together here in Britain and to encourage membership of the Swiss Alpine Club. In those days their appreciation of the Swiss mountains was such that they subscribed sufficient money for a new hut to be built—the Britannia Hut.

Today the Association has stood the test of time and even has a Swiss Alpine Club hut in the Lake District. It continues to provide activities for its members—men and women, and young and old—both in the hills of Britain with weekend meets and in Switzerland with an annual Alpine meet. It also offers a social programme of lectures most months at the Alpine Club with refreshments to enable members to meet together on occasions of general interest.

The Association therefore provides a special link with Switzerland. It would be pleased to welcome members of the Swiss community in Britain either to join as members or to attend our social activities as guests.

The Castagnata this year was a memorable evening indeed. We were honoured by the presence of Mr. Giovanni Montalbetti of Semione who flew over for the event. He played and sang—supported by an enthusiastic 'audience'.

President: Mr. Luigi Bozzini

Mr. Peter Jacomelli proposed a toast to his brother and sister-in-law on the occasion of their 29th wedding anniversary. Mr. Montalbetti then continued to play and sing with everyone joining in.

As we left at 12.30 am the Quadrant, Richmond was ringing with the sound of his music—and not a sign of jet lag!!!

Swiss Club Bournemouth

After an incredible year of successes, in which, for the first time, a Swiss Town agreed to twin with a foreign Town, the Swiss Club Bournemouth ended off the year with a splendid Dinner Party, held at the Pavilion, to celebrate St. Nicholas.

Mr. Müller, President of the Swiss Club invited the Mayor of Bournemouth, Mrs. Sheila McQueen and her husband, who were the Guests of Honour.

In reply, the Mayor wished everyone the compliments of the season and every success in the continued good relations between Bournemouth and Lucerne.

During the course of the very festive evening, the Mayor and her husband took the role of St. Nicholas and distributed Christmas stockings, made by Mr. Müller, containing Nuts, Oranges, Chocolates and souvenir spoon from Lucerne.

The Mayor was presented with a large 2lb. Swiss Candle and Mr. McQueen received a bottle of Chianti, dressed up like a dolly, with a mini bottle of Kirsch.

After the Dinner, Mr. Müller welcomed the Mayor and her husband, Members of the Twinning Committee and a Delegation of the German Club of Bournemouth.

The evening was well attended with over 68 guests, who sang and danced till midnight, accompanied by the piano, played by a member of the Swiss Club and a accordion.

Later the Mayor wrote a letter to say, how much she and her husband enjoyed such a happy and relaxed evening. The impression left behind, as "Come again, soon".

The Annual Dinner Dance and Prizegiving was celebrated at the 'Gunner' Restaurant in the City of London.

The suitably decorated surroundings highlighted the attractive Tombola created by West End Restauranteur Armin Loetscher. Tickets were sold out in record time before members and guests began the traditional English Dinner—heralded with due ceremony by a Highland Piper in full dress.

Paying tribute to the work of his Committee the President Marcel Bucherer wished all members an enjoyable evening as a fitting conclusion to the year's activities. Trophies and medals were presented to successful members by Mrs. Augustine Kett wife of the Association Secretary.
