Spring meeting of the Council for the Swiss Abroad (CSO)

Current issues – clear positions

Apart from regular business, the Council for the Swiss Abroad discussed recent changes in diplomatic posts, recognition of diplomas and Switzerland's image abroad at its spring session in Berne.

The changes in the network of Swiss embassies and consulates decided upon by the Federal Council (see page 10) were criticised by the CSO, particularly since there had been little advance notice. Representing the Federal Department of Foreign Affairs (EDA), Minister Thomas Füglistner, new head of the Service for the Swiss Abroad, admitted that as the recognised representative of the interests of the Fifth Switzerland the CSO should have been consulted. He commented on each decision and ensured the CSO that the EDA certainly did take the concerns of the Swiss Abroad very seriously.

In a resolution the Council expressed its understanding of the financial problems facing the federal government and the setting of priorities with respect to diplomatic posts. It nevertheless called upon the authorities to examine any structural changes with regard to long-term effectiveness and to provide better information in future.

Recognition of diplomas

Those holding foreign school-leaving certificates and wishing to study in Switzerland are still faced with serious obstacles. This also applies to Swiss Abroad. The CSO passed a resolution calling for measures both to provide more information and to eliminate exaggerated admission barriers.

Switzerland's image

Several delegates pointed out that following a number of referendum decisions in the last few years, as well as negative headlines on such matters as Zurich's open drug scene, Switzerland's image abroad was worse than it had been for a long time. It was generally felt that it was indispensable for more money to be spent on safeguarding our image. There was also mention of the many different ways in which Swiss Abroad can play a role as «ambassadors» of our country.

The CSO also again recognised new Swiss associations: this time in West Lafayette (USA), Brescia (Italy), Tipperary (Ireland), Valetta (Malta) and Moscow (Russia).
