Optional AHV/IV: the position of the OSA

Provision versus welfare

The consultation process on the reform of the optional AHV/IV is open. The Organization for the Swiss Abroad takes up a position.

The positive first: the possibility of joining the Swiss AHV/IV optionally should neither be completely eliminated nor too drastically restricted, as has repeatedly been suggested in the last few years (see also page 11). But the Federal Council's proposal still contains two main points which are not satisfactory.

In countries with which Switzerland has concluded a social security agreement, new entries would in future no longer be possible. However, the OSA demands that for those Swiss who cannot build up sufficient old-age and disability provision under the social security systems of the agreement states a solution in the framework of the optional AHV/IV scheme should continue to be possible.

The OSA also opposes the proposition that Swiss who emigrated in their youth or were born abroad can no longer take out insurance with the Swiss AHV/IV.

The OSA has never disputed the need for reform of the optional AHV/IV, but for years it has been struggling for a revision which would take into account the legitimate requirements of today's and future Swiss Abroad. In particular it points out that about two-thirds of those insured are women, who often have no adequate insurance opportunities in the Agreement states. In addition, account must be taken of the fact that Swiss Abroad without means will lay claim to welfare funds.

In the interests of the Fifth Switzerland and in consequence at the end of the day also in the interest of our country as a whole, the OSA will come out in the present reform debate in favour of maintaining an insurance opportunity for our compatriots abroad if they depend upon it.
