Year 2000 goals

The Federal Council has finalised its annual objectives. The salient points of the government's political agenda are presented in three chapters.

THE AIM of the Federal Council's programme for 2000 is to promote an open, forward-looking Switzerland, enhance its attractiveness as a place of work and education, and provide quality of life and development capability.

Our country stands at the threshold of a new century. The Swiss economy returned to growth towards the end of the 1990s, following a lengthy, sustained period of recession. Unemployment is dropping and a further economic upswing is anticipated for the coming year.

Favourable start

The Federal Council is committed to leveraging this favourable starting point to the new legislative period, in order to effectively invest in the future. Accordingly the Federal Council's domestic policy for the year 2000 aims to strengthen Switzerland's attractiveness across the board, while foreign policy focuses on increasing the representation of Switzerland's interests on the international stage.

A printed copy of the Federal Council's objectives for 2000 can be ordered free of charge from the Bundesamt für Bauten und Logistik, EDMZ, CH-3003 Berne. Please include a self-addressed adhesive label with your order. The 28-page document can also be ordered by e-mail (gesetze.verkauf@edmoz.admin.ch), or downloaded from the internet: www.admin.ch.

Referendums on popular initiatives

A multi-party initiative committee "against the delay in submitting referendums to the vote" has launched an initiative "for popular initiatives to be put to the vote within six months, excluding the Federal Council and parliament." The initiative calls for the following addition to the Federal Constitution:

An initiative, in the form of a comprehensive draft, must be put to the vote within six months of its submission. The Federal Chancellery must define the voting date immediately after determining the validity of the initiative. The text of the initiative should require no written position statement and no voting recommendation on the part of the Federal Council or parliament. Legal or official provisions which do not accord with the initiative must be regarded as rescinded.

In its statement dated 22 June 1999 the Federal Council drew attention to the following: "The implications of this initiative, which has been promoted using full-page newspaper advertisements, are enormous. If accepted, even initiatives which violate international law and human rights could be put to the vote. The initiative takes direct democracy to absurd lengths and casts doubt on the political culture of Switzerland. The Federal Council is not prepared to stand idly by and watch our democracy and its democratically legitimised institutions being challenged with flimsy arguments. We therefore call on the electorate to be wary of the initiators' high-profile advertising and consider very carefully the consequences of their signature." NYF

Pioneering Swiss internet portal

Since early March a new internet portal has been providing rapid access to information on education, science and technology in Switzerland.

www.swiss-science.org is the gateway to several thousand home pages for universities, institutes of technology, promotional organisations, companies, foundations and cantonal authorities.

www.swiss-science.org is produced in conjunction with the Group for Science and Research (GWF), the Federal Office for Education and Science (BBW), the Federal Office for Professional Education and Technology (BBT), and Political Department V of the Federal Department of Foreign Affairs.

Broad range of topics

The aim of the portal is to provide a shared, clearly-structured platform for fast access to information from different sources. It is trilingual (German, French and English) and consists of various subject-specific information platforms. Dynamic focus is provided by a news ticker which continually publishes daily news reports. Other platforms are:

- Summary of the education and research system
- Curriculae of universities and federal institutes of technology
- Academic job clearing house/career centre
- "Vision" magazine archives
- List of several 1000 links

- Newsgroups and mailing lists for science and society
- Partners for venture capital
- SME marketplace
- Patents and technology transfer

An intelligent navigation system guides visitors through the various information platforms and shows the most direct route to the information they seek. Unlike search engines, which are based on key words and record a success rate of only 20%, the logical subject-based structure of the information platforms ensures a success rate of almost 100%. Eighteen platforms are scheduled for launching by the end of 2000, with new platforms continually being added. NYF
