Promoting South African exports to Switzerland

In a former hospital building in Cape Town, the African Art Factory hosts some 17 entrepreneurs that develop new and trendy handicraft products. As a trade house, the African Art Factory (www.africanartfactory.co.za) focuses on local and international buyers of arts & craft. Its cooperation with the Swiss Import Promotion Programme (SIPPO, www.sippo.ch), an initiative funded by the Swiss government to boost exports from emerging markets, is therefore a welcome support to reach new customers in Europe.

Since 2004, SIPPO has been working with the African Art Factory to adapt to the demand of the European market in terms of quality, design and packaging. A participation at a leading trade fair for arts and crafts in Europe also brought market exposure and valuable insight into export potential.

The recent conclusion of a free trade agreement between the Southern African Customs Union (SACU) and the European Free Trade Association (EFTA) improves framework conditions for trade between the two regions. SIPPO's activities are therefore an important contribution to implement this agreement. In general, the SIPPO programme wants to make a contribution to create sustainable jobs and fight poverty through improved access to export markets for competitive small and medium-sized companies from emerging markets.

In the beginning of 2006, SIPPO experts visited South Africa to identify suitable companies in the leather and furniture industry as well as in the area of organic products. In all three sectors, a number of South African companies have the potential to successfully tap into the lucrative European market. As an example, the Swiss market for fresh organic produce alone is estimated over 500 mio USD annually.

SIPPO will assist private sector companies with advice on design, marketing, certification, quality management, etc. Through a subsidized participation in specialized European trade fairs and match making programmes, SIPPO facilitates contacts with potential importers in the EU and in Switzerland. In the South African leather sector, for example, SIPPO has identified six companies that could participate at SIPPO promotion platforms such as the Offenbach Leather Fair in September 2006 or in targeted promotion activities for corporate leather goods in Switzerland.

In South Africa, SIPPO is working closely with the Trade and Investment Network Switzerland Southern Africa (TINSSA).

Zusammenarbeit in the Sunshine

John Mkhumbu, a dental therapist at Mosvold hospital in northern KwaZulu-Natal, Nasiefa Essop-Mohamed, a kindergarten teacher in Cape Town, Thembi Motaung, a call-centre agent in Randburg, and Eunice Owabe, who runs a theatrical casting agency in Johannesburg have never met. But they have a lot in common: they are all young South Africans from disadvantaged communities; they are all making careers for themselves in fields they never even thought about before; and they are all graduates of vocational training programmes funded by the Swiss-South African Co-operation Initiative (SSACI).

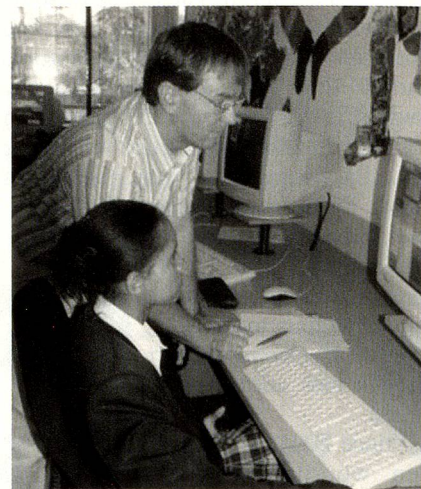

Founded in 2001, SSACI is a public-private partnership in development, the first of its kind, between the Swiss Agency for Development and Cooperation (SDC) and Swiss companies trading in South Africa. It promotes social and economic development in South Africa by supporting skills development projects that open up work opportunities for young South Africans. By March 2010, through SSACI, Swiss companies and the Swiss government will together have spent a total of over R90'000'000 on skills training and job creation for South African youths. This partnership in development between the public and the private sectors is expressed in SSACI's slogan, "Masibambisane" Zulu for "Let's co-operate".

In a keynote address at the launch of SSACI's second phase of operations on 5 April 2006, Swiss Ambassador Viktor Christen said that Switzerland could play a valuable role in helping South Africa develop the skills of its people in order to grow its economy. He noted that SSACI's training programme is distinguished by its emphasis on measurable outcomes. By the end of 2005, SSACI projects had resulted in:

- 3'448 youths enrolled for skills training
- a 92% pass rate
- 85% of graduates placed in skilled employment
- 309 viable new enterprises created
- 241 existing youth-owned businesses given business advice to help grow their turnover and profitability
- 840 entirely new jobs created
- several new nationally accredited skills training courses developed

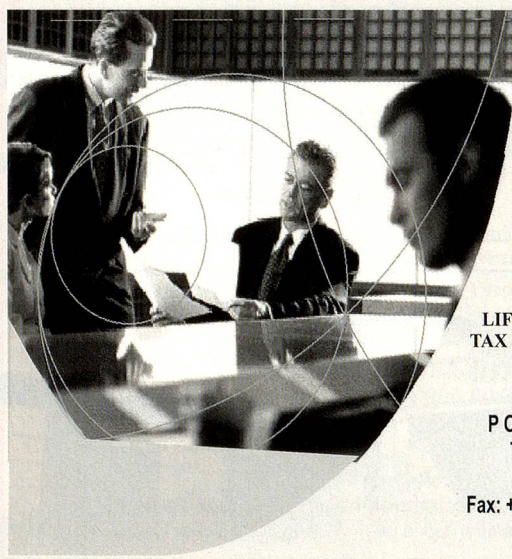

SSACI's corporate sponsors include ABB, Bühler, Ciba, Clariant, Credit Suisse, Hilti, Holcim, Nestlé, Novartis, Schindler, Swiss International Airlines, Swiss Re and UBS.

Our AGM was held on 7 April. The main issue was whether to keep the remaining facilities or sell the rest of the Club. It was decided that we keep the Club. In the near future it will be decided on how much should be spent on alterations and upgrading. We definitely need more activities and support from our members and their friends, therefore we will introduce monthly gatherings for a special Swiss meal, we also would like to introduce "Jassen" again. You can also book our skittling alleys for a casual game with friends or have a business party, not to forget our nice lapa for birthday parties etc. Please feel free to contact Debbie Lanz at 011 805 3093 (Office) or 011 805 3040 (Restaurant) for more information or a quotation.
