REGIONAL NEWS

SOUTHERN AFRICA

Editorial

Dear readers,

Sometimes we lose track of good news from South Africa. So here is a piece of good news – South African comedian Trevor Noah will be the new host of the hit U.S. satirical news show “The Daily Show”. This is an exceptional achievement for the most successful comedian in Africa, he is the first South African stand-up comedian to appear on the leading TV shows in the U.S.

Noah grew up in Soweto, the son of a black Xhosa mother and white Swiss father. The marriage was considered illegal during apartheid. Noah is currently performing in front of sold out crowds all over the world.

Happy reading,

New collaboration takes Africa to Switzerland

The University of Cape Town has signed a memorandum of understanding with the Swiss Federal Institute of Technology, a leading European university focused on innovation and the natural sciences.

The agreement will strengthen a collaboration that will facilitate a two-way exchange of high-level ideas on issues crucial to both continents, including urbanisation, infectious diseases, material science and data-intensive research.

African voice

Vice-Chancellor Dr Max Price signed the MOU with ETH Zurich in January, en route to the Global University Leaders Forum at Davos. He was the only African university head to be invited.

Both platforms have enabled Price to ensure that there is an African voice in global debates around issues such as health and urbanisation, and that international leaders inform research (and teaching) on the continent.

Future cities

There are already useful collaborations in place between the two universities. For instance, in the study of urbanisation, ETH Zurich's Future Cities Laboratory has a similar interdisciplinary approach to UCT's African Centre for Cities.

Both centres bring together environmental challenges, such as landscape resource consumption, with social development, such as inclusion and housing.

Technical engineering is the core of the Future Cities expertise, which would add great value to the work of the ACC, says Professor Danie Visser, the deputy vice-chancellor responsible for research.

A hub of major networks in Africa, the ACC is the continent's leading university-based urban research centre and has become a sought-after research partner. ETH Zurich is where Albert Einstein received his diploma in 1901.

South African-Swiss comedian on the rise

Trevor Noah (31) is a South African comedian, TV and radio host, and actor. In March 2015, Comedy Central announced that Noah would become the host of U.S. The Daily Show, following the departure of Jon Stewart.

Noah was born in Johannesburg. His mother, Patricia Nombuyiselo Noah, is black South African (Xhosa), and his father Robert is a white native of Switzerland. He has also said, "My mum doesn't fit into any category, she's a black South African woman who's half Jewish." His parents' relationship was illegal at the time of his birth due to apartheid, and his mother was jailed and fined by the South African government. His father later moved back to Switzerland and Noah was raised by his mother and maternal grandmother.

His mixed-race heritage, his experiences growing up in a Soweto township, and his observations about race and ethnicity are leading themes in his comedy. Noah is a polyglot; he speaks several languages including English, German, Xhosa, isiZulu, Sotho, and Afrikaans.

In December 2014, Noah became a recurring contributor on

The Daily Show. On 30 March 2015, Comedy Central announced that Noah will take over as host of The Daily Show when Jon Stewart leaves later in the year. His tenure will begin in late 2015.

Trevor Noah's career is taking off in the U.S.
