He also went to a recently modernized detention centre near Titograd, and he enquired about the political detainees he had previously visited and who had since been released.

6. SPECIAL SERVICES

Central Tracing Agency, Geneva

Twenty years after the end of the Second World War, this service is still one of the most important of the ICRC and its activity has shown only a slight tendency to decrease. In 1965, the Agency received 54,203 enquiries and various communications (61,449 in 1964) and the mail it sent out comprised 59,616 items (60,987). It instituted 15,907 investigations for which it received 8,000 replies, of which some 5,000 were positive.

In the year under review the Agency issued 2,278 certificates of captivity in respect of prisoners of the 1939-45 war. These certificates are generally issued to veterans or former resistance fighters nearing retiring age who, to supplement the pensions to which they are entitled, must give proof that they were prisoners of war or interned civilians. The records of the Agency are often the only possibility of obtaining such proof, especially in the case of countries whose archives have been destroyed or dispersed.

The Agency's work is generally carried on in close co-operation with the Information Bureaux of National Societies. In 1965, for instance, the Agency had copious correspondence with the Alliance of Red Cross and Red Crescent Societies of the USSR and with National Societies of other Eastern European countries. In many cases, this co-operation produced positive results.

Some conflicts have set the Agency special tasks. This was particularly the case in the Indo-Pakistani conflict. During that conflict, the Agency notified the names of 510 Pakistani prisoners of war in India and of 566 Indian prisoners of war in Pakistan. It also transmitted the relevant capture cards and notified the names of 550 interned Pakistani civilians and 51 Indian civilians. These figures, which increased considerably during the first few weeks of 1966, do not fully convey the amount of work which the control of the lists of names involved; duplications were frequent and there was no uniformity of spelling.

In connection with the situation in Vietnam, the Agency transmitted 1,549 messages from one region of this war-torn country to another. In the Middle East, it continued to act as an intermediary for the transmission of family messages between Israel and the Arab States as well as between the various parts of war-torn Yemen. For these two Middle East sectors, the number of messages forwarded exceeded 2,700.

International Tracing Service (Arolsen)

1965 was the year of the XXth anniversary of the International Tracing Service (ITS). The tragic events which made the creation of this institution necessary in 1945 are well known. In consideration for the unfortunate victims the ITS was intended to help, it refrained from celebrating this anniversary. At the same time there was another anniversary : ten years before, in 1955, the ICRC was entrusted with the management of this Service, which is the most important source of information on the fate of persons deported or displaced during the Second World War in Germany and countries occupied by the German forces.

It is of interest to observe that, twenty years after the end of the war, the ITS activity is still considerable ; its staff today consists of 230 persons. In order to convey an idea of the work accomplished by the ITS, we give below the number of enquiries received each year since 1951, when statistical records of its work were started :

1951 :	52,000	1959 :	126,000
1952 :	53,000	1960 :	115,000
1953 :	67,000	1961 :	129,000
1954 :	103,000	1962 :	155,000
1955 :	138,000	1963 :	101,000
1956 :	158,000	1964 :	198,000
1957 :	204,000	1965 :	130,000
1958 :	155,000

Total : about 1.9 million

Moreover, the ITS is still adding many documents to its already copious records.

Medical Personnel Section

Pursuant to its statutes, the ICRC, in readiness for any possible conflicts, “ shall contribute to the preparation and development of medical personnel and medical equipment, in co-operation with the Red Cross organizations, the Medical Services of the armed forces, and other competent authorities ” ; it has taken part in various international meetings, has maintained close contact with the nursing world, and has accomplished important missions, particularly in Africa.<sup>1</sup>

War Disabled Service

This Service continued to concern itself for the Yemeni war disabled for whom the ICRC, with the assistance of the Red Crescent Society of the United Arab Republic, made it possible to go to Cairo to be fitted with artificial limbs.<sup>2</sup>

In all, 44 Yemeni disabled, in nine groups, went to the Egyptian capital.
