IV. FINANCIAL POSITION

I. BALANCE SHEET

1. The increase of the balance sheet total (see table I) from 20,551 million francs at the end of 1969 to 31,926 million francs as at 31 December 1970, is explained mainly by the following :

(a) ASSETS	1970	1969	Difference + (—)
	(in thousands of francs)
Securities	10,794	7,262	3,532
Vehicles, furniture	657	207	450

Accounts payable	2,720	1,582	1,138
Funds in Trust, Bank advances	4,528	—	4,528
	7,248	1,582	5,666
Long-term :
Swiss Government advance	9,500	6,340	3,160
General Reserve	5,644	2,647	2,997
The increase of			11,823
is reduced by the lower figures of other liabilities, i.e.			(448)
Total			11,375

Two of the above items call for a word of explanation :

Funds in Trust Receivable. This item represents EEC commitments in contracts relating to the disposal of cereal surpluses as relief donations. The contra-entry in the liabilities is shown under Funds in Trust—Bank advances. The high amounts concerned, which were fully refunded at the beginning of 1971, are explained by the way in which relief action for flood victims in East Pakistan developed.

2. Relief Action in Nigeria

As announced in the 1969 Annual Report, we have estimated the Swiss franc value of all aid supplied by all governments, National Societies, organizations and institutions which participated in the operations co-ordinated for nearly 18 months by the ICRC.

Figures available have enabled us to draw up the following table which is a statistical guide, not an accurate statement of expenditure.

	In thousands of Sw. fr.
1. SERVICES
— Personnel	17,800
— Vehicles	5,300
— Charter of ships	2,100
— Air transport	51,100
2. GIFTS IN KIND
— Food	246,600
— Medical supplies	100,900
3. GIFTS IN CASH
— Special projects	91,200
— Others	148,000
	<hr/> 663,000 <hr/>

The above table shows that total expenditure during the eighteen months when the action was under ICRC co-ordination amounted to 663 million Swiss francs.

II. STATEMENT OF EXPENDITURE AND INCOME

Table II shows the nature of the financial system adopted by the ICRC in 1970 in order to bring into relief the three main types of expenditure incurred in the discharge of its various activities :

1. Permanent structure (second column of the table), the expenses for which can be predicted from year to year, as in any undertaking ;
2. Temporary structure (third column), representing the additional human and material resources required for operations. Budget estimates in this case are subject to considerable change, depending on circumstances ;
3. Occasional operations (fourth column), particularly some emergency relief operations. The cost must therefore be allowed for over and above the budget.

Three distinct methods of financing should be adopted in respect of these three types of expenditure, namely :

1. Regular annual contributions to cover the cost of the permanent structure and thereby ensure the continuation of the institution's independence and mission ;
2. A credit on which the ICRC may draw, according to needs, for its temporary structure ;
3. Extraordinary financing through appeals to governments and National Societies in order to meet exceptional situations.

A. Expenditure and financing of permanent and temporary structures in 1970

1. Expenditure

The summary statement (table IIa) shows costs for the permanent and temporary structures amounting to Sw. Fr. 15,616,000, as compared with the Sw. Fr. 13,477,155 which was the total of all fixed and operating expenses in 1969 (cf. p. 113, table IIa and p. 115, table IIc, in the Annual Report for that year).

2. Receipts

The insufficiency of receipts (table IIa) compelled the ICRC to draw Sw. Fr. 2,001,000 from its General Reserve, in order to cover the deficit incurred for its permanent structure.

The cost of its temporary structure was covered by an advance of Sw. Fr. 3,532,000 and a donation of Sw. fr. 3,000,000 from the Swiss Government.

B. Expenditure and financing of occasional operations

Table IIb summarizes the accounts for the ICRC's action in Jordan from 6 September to 10 December 1970.

The net amount of the annual public collection in Switzerland in 1970, Sw. Fr. 883,000, is not included in the above accounts. It, together with other donations, is assigned to the provision of material relief which is distributed by the ICRC delegates in the course of their work.

Table IV shows the situation of this Special Fund for Relief Actions.

III. OTHER ACCOUNTS

Table V shows the situation of the Special Funds managed by the ICRC.

IV. AUDITING

As in previous years, the ICRC accounts have been checked by the Société Fiduciaire Romande OFOR S.A., which issued its report on 8 March 1971. A translation of that report completes the section dealing with the Financial Position.

FINANCE

The ICRC's financial difficulties arise mainly from the fact that some of its expenditure can be predicted and some cannot. The predictable expenses include those for relief work by delegates in prison camps, for drafting legal provisions designed to protect and improve conditions for war victims, as well as the tracing of missing persons, the reuniting of families and the transmission of family messages.

Expenditure incurred in relief operations, when many medical teams and thousands of tons of medicines, foodstuffs and clothing, must be provided to meet emergency situations, fall into the unpredictable category. Nevertheless, the ICRC must obviously finance not only its permanent missions but also its emergency operations.

The ICRC's expenses may be divided into :

1. those which are permanent, to cover the work of its permanent staff, and which are predictable as in any undertaking ;
2. those covering short term and occasional operations for which temporary staff are taken on during conflicts (although these expenses are variable, they can be provided for in the ICRC's annual budget) ;
3. those covering unexpected relief operations for which the budget makes no provision and which are covered by appeals and special assistance.

Obviously the ICRC can carry out its activities only if it can rely on annual contributions which enable it to discharge its permanent duties.
