- 14 CTA delegates
- 13 administrators
- 14 secretaries
- 24 radio operators
- 53 technicians, including 12 (compared with 7 in 1975) from National Societies.

It will be observed that National Red Cross Societies increased the number of persons made available to the ICRC to bring aid to the victims of armed conflicts and internal disturbances. Most of them were the physicians, surgeons, pediatricians, anaesthetists and male and female nurses sent to run the ICRC field hospital set up early in 1976 in West Beirut.

On an average there were 78 delegates working at the same moment in the ICRC's various delegations throughout the world, plus 200 local staff.

Delegate recruitment

Of the 575 applications for the post of delegate (521 in 1975) 200 came from non-Swiss persons, who could not be considered for a delegate's post and were advised to apply to their own National Society.

Of the 375 Swiss applicants, 70 were accepted and 305 (81 per cent) rejected.

Training courses: 78 participants

The introductory course for prospective delegates, after which the final selection is made, was held three times in 1976 at the Conference Centre at Cartigny (Geneva). The courses were attended by altogether 78 persons (of whom nine were women) and included:

- the candidates who were short-listed by the Delegations Service;
- some ICRC staff;
- 8 persons invited to the course (2 trainees from the Federal Political Department and 6 voluntary workers in the Swiss Relief Corps in the event of disasters abroad);
- 20 persons from the ICRC Group for International Missions (the GIM, set up in 1962, is responsible for recruiting specialized personnel, such as doctors, radio operators, drivers, etc., who agree to accept missions of at least two months every two years).

One of the courses was designed for training technical personnel (administrators, radio operators, technicians, secretaries, drivers, etc.).

VIII. FINANCE

Fund-Raising

In 1976, the ICRC based its fund-raising campaign on various commitments made on several occasions by the States parties to the Geneva Conventions and by the National Societies:

- At the Diplomatic Conference in Geneva in 1949, the representatives of the signatory governments adopted the following resolution:

“Whereas the Geneva Conventions require the International Committee of the Red Cross to be ready at all times and in all circumstances to fulfil the humanitarian tasks entrusted to it by these Conventions, the Conference recognized the necessity of providing regular financial support for the International Committee of the Red Cross.”

- In November 1973, the Twenty-second International Conference of the Red Cross unanimously voted a resolution (II) designed to strengthen support for the ICRC. In this resolution, the Conference:

“... recalling the very important task which is being performed by the ICRC and which, in view of the international situation, is constantly increasing, requests all National Red Cross Societies to support the permanent activities of the ICRC through regular contributions, urges all Governments signatories of the Geneva Conventions to support more systematically and substantially the regular financing of the ICRC...”

Since the Twenty-second Conference, several conflicts have occurred: Cyprus (1974), Angola (1975), Timor (1975) and Lebanon (1975-1976). The ICRC engaged in large-scale operations and it protected and assisted thousands of victims. During the same period, its delegates in Africa, especially in southern Africa, in Latin America, Asia and the Middle East continued their activities.

While some of these operations were the subjects of special appeals to which the international community responded generously, many others were charged against the ordinary budget of the ICRC. In addition, the need to perfect the training of delegates and develop logistic structures called for considerable expenditure.

However, the States parties to the Conventions made only a minimal response to the appeal launched at Teheran in 1973, with the total of their contributions rising from 9,692,055 Swiss francs to 11,151,950—an increase of 1,459,895 francs, over a period of three years.

In the attempt to balance the budget, special appeals were made to European governments and those of Canada and Japan.

The President of the ICRC and the President of the Executive Board took part in these negotiations at the highest level. In addition, the events in Lebanon provided the occasion for numerous contacts with Arab governments in the effort to obtain from them, along with ad hoc support, more regular contributions to the general activities of the ICRC. These negotiations continued into 1977, in which year they should be concluded.

Overall, the approaches made in 1976 to the States signatories to the Geneva Conventions produced positive results, in particular from the governments of Canada, the United Arab Emirates, Greece, Ireland, Liechtenstein, Norway and the Netherlands.

A general appeal to National Societies was also launched in 1976, based on a resolution by the Commission for the Financing of the ICRC, consisting of representatives of nine Red Cross and Red Crescent Societies. This resolution called upon National Societies to make contributions amounting to 50% of those paid to the League. The general reaction was positive, with total contributions from the National Societies increasing from 1,245,720 Swiss francs in 1975 to 1,482,425 Swiss francs in 1976.

Lastly, the delegate responsible for fund raising continued his efforts in the private sector, especially among American foundations, from which he obtained annual payments totalling about 300,000 dollars.

All public and private contributions to the ICRC are made with total respect for the independence and neutrality of the institution.

1976 Balance Sheet and Results

The ICRC, in 1971, adopted a financial structure divided into three parts:

1. The permanent structure, with accounts recording all income and expenditure relating to the traditional and permanent tasks regularly carried out by the ICRC.

In the interests of efficiency, this structure must be kept within strict limits and have a highly trained and experienced personnel.

This structure requires continuity.

2. The temporary structure, with accounts recording income from supplementary contributions from the Swiss Confederation and the expenditure financed by these contributions.

The purpose of this structure is to provide for temporary expansion, in dimensions or in time, of traditional and regular tasks. It involves the employment of personnel for limited periods of time. This structure, for example, provided for the financing of all work related to the Diplomatic Conference on the Reaffirmation and Development of Humanitarian Law.

The accounts for the two foregoing structures constitute the ordinary budget of the ICRC.

3. The occasional structure, consisting of special accounts opened by the ICRC when it is required to mobilize major resources to meet emergency situations, often unforeseeable, whose dimensions go far beyond the institution's regular activities.

The accounts in this occasional structure constitute the ICRC's extraordinary budget.

Balance sheet

The balance sheet as of 31 December 1976 has two significant aspects:

1. A very large increase in short-term capital investments, derived from the funds provided to finance operations in Lebanon in response to the appeal launched by the ICRC in October.

This increase is naturally reflected in the great increase of the item "funds earmarked for current operations" in the Liabilities.

2. The stability of the ICRC's general reserves which fortunately, due to the balance achieved in the year's accounts, were not drawn upon to cover a deficit.

The efforts made over the past several years have thus continued to show results. It must be emphasized however that the basis for the permanent financing of the ICRC continues to be fragile, and will be so until there is a definite increase in regular contributions from governments.

Expenditure and Income

Whereas the budget predicted a deficit of 3,369,000 Swiss francs, in round figures, the results showed a slight surplus of 4,478 Swiss francs.

This favorable reversal was due mainly to three factors:

- a reduced inflation rate in Switzerland in 1976, with a rise of only 1.27%;
- employment of a larger number of permanent ICRC professional staff members in the prolonged action in Lebanon, which was financed from the occasional structure. The expenditures and activities originally planned under the ordinary budget were correspondingly reduced;
- the assumption by the temporary structure of all expenditure directly related to the Diplomatic Conference on Humanitarian Law.

For special actions, financed by ad hoc budgets, the ICRC obtained not only from governments and National Societies but also from some specialized institutions such as the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees, the funds that it needed, along with major donations in kind and in services. The budgets for all these actions were therefore covered (see Table VII).

Expenditure by branches of activity

The innovation made in the 1975 Annual Report (Table IV) was maintained in 1976 and internal measures made it possible to determine more precisely than in the previous year the costs of various ICRC activities.

With regard to the costs of personnel recruitment, training and management, and of financial management, it should be noted that these activities are also for the benefit of all the special actions financed by ad hoc budgets.

Consequently, if we take into account all ICRC activities during the year—including the special actions—management costs amounted to only about 5% of total expenditures.

Special fund for current operations (Table IX)

This includes:

- the special ICRC fund supported by the annual public collection in Switzerland, which raised 693,790 Swiss francs in 1976 (Table IX, item 2.1.).

- funds received to finance all special actions and whose use, due to the normal lapse between the time they are received and the time when the programmes can be carried out, are carried over from one accounting period to the next.

Thanks to the rationalization instituted some years ago, the ICRC assumes all the costs of organizing and managing the collection, so that, as in the past few years, the money received in 1976 will be wholly devoted to relief programmes in 1977.

Miscellaneous

Tables for the balance sheet and for income and expenditure (Tables I to IV and VII to XI) are supplemented by two tables (V and VI) showing the contributions received in 1976 from governments and National Societies to finance the permanent structure of the ICRC and by the balance sheets and statements of income and expenditure of all the funds and foundations managed by the ICRC.

The audit by the Société fiduciaire OFOR, S.A., which is by statute responsible for verification of the accounts of the ICRC, concludes the financial section of this Annual Report for 1976.
