GENERAL SERVICES, FINANCE AND ADMINISTRATION

Owing to another considerable increase in the volume of ICRC operations, in 1993 a number of new measures had to be taken to enable the finance, administration and general services sectors to provide the necessary support for activities carried out in Geneva and in the field.

For the finance sector, this meant the elaboration of an improved system of expenditure forecasts for operations, which updates monthly the estimated cost of each operation for the whole budgetary period (usually 12 months). This innovation enables the ICRC to monitor financial risks even more closely. In addition, as part of the drive to rationalize management methods, the monitoring of field expenses has been transferred to an accounting unit set up for this purpose in Manila (Philippines). A team of specialized staff, who will be linked to the central computer system in Geneva, examine the information and accounting documents sent by ICRC delegations throughout the world. This decentralization allows ICRC headquarters to reduce costs considerably.

The financial management information system, for use by the directorate and senior staff, was remodelled so as to take even greater advantage of possibilities offered by computer technology. Considerable efforts were made to ensure optimum use of recently developed computer applications, both for prior analysis (profitability, feasibility, deadlines, various other aspects) and for project management proper. This approach, developed and coordinated by the "Organization and Advisory Group", which is attached to the General Directorate, implies the participation of senior staff from different departments. Other tasks entrusted to this group demonstrate the institution's determination to make optimum use of its resources.

The ICRC's new Five-Year Plan, covering the 1993-1997 period, was finalized in 1993. It sets the course for the conduct and management of the institution's activities, organizational structure and relevant economic parameters, and of the necessary human and material resources.

Certain risk factors prompted the Finance and Administration Department to seek solutions to the situation created by the insurance companies' refusal to cover material losses resulting from acts of war in the field. An in-house self-insurance fund was therefore set up and an amount equalling premiums previously paid to insurers transferred into it. The coverage possibilities are obviously limited by the financial means available, but the fund makes it possible to give a partial response to a very real problem.

In 1993 construction work began on a new multi-purpose building intended to accommodate between 160 and 240 workstations, depending on the layout chosen.

The building, the cost of which is estimated at CHF 17.5 million, will replace a temporary, prefabricated unit erected in the 1970s, which had to be pulled down for safety reasons.

In the field of telecommunications, the computerization programme continued with the installation of a local network at the dispatching centre in Geneva, thanks to which all telex and some telefax lines are now computer-operated. In the field, emphasis was placed on introducing a new, semi-automatic transmission system for radio communications, as well as for satellite transmissions used in emergency situations to replace defective or inexistent local networks.

The archives service was given special attention in a bid to rationalize the processing of documents from the delegations and the Central Tracing Agency. Some archives from these units have been taken over by the central archives. As a result, the volume of the latter rose by about 15%, bringing the total at the end of 1993 to 4,265 linear metres.

FINANCIAL TABLES

Comments on the financial tables for 1993

The continuing conflicts in the Caucasus, Tajikistan and the former Yugoslavia led to a substantial increase in ICRC operations in Europe and Central Asia. Although there was a relative decline in activities in Africa (-7%), Asia and the Pacific (-18%), Latin America (-18%), and the Middle East and North Africa (-14%), in 1993 the total volume of ICRC activities again topped all previous figures, reaching CHF 810.9 million (in cash, kind and services), or 4.2% more than in 1992. Despite efforts by certain governments, organizations and National Societies to respond to the increase in humanitarian needs, the funds collected in 1993 for field operations amounted to only CHF 645.5 million, falling CHF 26.8 million short of the total amount needed (CHF 672.3 million). This overall view does not reflect the fact that contributions are earmarked by donors for specific appeals and that certain operations were fully covered by the contributions received and funds carried over from 1992, while others again remained almost chronically underfunded. This is a recurring problem which the ICRC tries to keep within limits compatible with its overall financial balance, but it nonetheless remains a major source of concern.

Thus while at the end of 1992 the amount carried over for some field operations came to CHF 53.4 million, other operations showed a deficit totalling CHF 18.9 million. The corresponding figures for end 1993 were CHF 49.2 million (-8%) and as much as CHF 41.6 million (+120%) respectively. Of the latter, CHF 31 million represent the deficit for the operation in the former Yugoslavia; the other underfunded operations were those in Somalia, Peru, Cambodia, Sri Lanka, Afghanistan, Georgia, Israel and the occupied territories, and Lebanon.

As the ICRC tries not to make its assistance to the victims conditional upon the funding for each operation, it is obliged to advance the amounts needed by drawing on its own resources. Allocating to one operation funds earmarked for another is out of the question; the ICRC must therefore have at its disposal adequate reserves commensurate with the financial risks it must face.

The breakdown of expenditure by type of activity is shown in the chart below and, in greater detail, in Table III pp. 282-283. Medical and material assistance accounted for 62% of the total (CHF 502.4 million, as against CHF 483 million in 1992), while protection and Central Tracing Agency work represented 13.8%, or CHF 111.7 million (CHF 109.2 million in 1992).

Greater involvement in the former Yugoslavia, the Caucasus and Tajikistan obliged the ICRC to step up its activities to spread knowledge of humanitarian law in those areas. As a result, related expenses more than tripled as compared with 1992, rising from CHF 1.1 million to CHF 3.4 million. Activities concerning research, development and dissemination of international humanitarian law totalled CHF 27.7 million (3.4% of the total volume), up from CHF 22 million

* This heading includes all the following activities when carried out at or from ICRC headquarters:
- protection activities for victims of conflicts (Detention Division), Central Tracing Agency work;
- medical and material assistance, aid to National Red Cross and Red Crescent Societies;
- promotion and dissemination of international humanitarian law, information;
- operational management, support and management activities for ICRC work at headquarters and in the field, special extrabudgetary expenses.
** Except Central Asia.

the year before. This increase can be attributed to the fact that in 1993 the ICRC was present in more areas than before and to the need, more acute than ever, to call for compliance with elementary humanitarian principles.

The expenditure for support activities, management activities and allocations for operational risks and for investments came to CHF 70.3 million, which was 5% (CHF 3.6 million) less than in 1992. This was mainly because allocations for risks and funds were lower than the previous year.

The above should not be taken to mean that the provisions for operational risks have now reached a satisfactory level. The fact that at the end of 1993 operations showed a greater deficit than in 1992 justifies continued efforts to cover financial risks faced by the institution within the framework of its mandate.
