INTERNATIONAL ADVISERS

Since 1984, the ICRC has held two meetings a year with a dozen leading international figures selected for a four-year period to advise it on operational matters, on the application of international humanitarian law and on the ICRC's place within the international community.

In 1996, the fourth group of ICRC international advisers (appointed for the 1996-1999 period) met in March and September. Its discussions focused on relationships between humanitarian action and political action, particularly in the context of peace-keeping operations, on the relationship between humanitarian law and human rights, on the establishment of an international criminal court and its implications for the implementation of international humanitarian law, and on several operational situations, especially the humanitarian situation in the former Yugoslavia and in the Great Lakes region of Africa.

Ambassador Hussein Ahmad AMIN, Professor of Islamic Studies at the American University of Cairo.
