ing the poor by founding a home in Clindy for indigent children, and in the following year, 1819, this was combined with a home in Yverdon. An old man now, his life ambitions were at last being realized. In 1826 he wrote some papers on his work in Burgdorf and Yverdon, and in his eightieth year, returned to Neuhof where he spent his last days in contentment. He died on February 17, 1827. Pestalozzi lives on. Essentially an idealist and a dreamer, he was a dreamer who turned his dreams into realities. Time has erased much of the material evidence of his work, but the personality of this man who had such a boundless compassion for humanity cannot die. His name will inspire through the ages.

September 30, 1936, closes the first year of the Swiss Benevolent Society of New Zealand, and we can announce with pride that the state of its affairs is very satisfactory. With the great help of Mr. A.C. Blau, our late and very popular Consul, we have been able to put our undertaking on a sound footing. We are starting the second year with a membership of 85, a fine achievement for such a short period. Nevertheless, to make it a real success, we need more members and more funds. Old members are requested to pay their fee promptly.
