and bread slices that have been soaked in milk. Now make a paste of 7 ounces of flour, 6 ounces of butter and one quarter pint of milk and the yolk of an egg. Roll out this paste and use two-thirds of it to fill a pie form. Spread the meat mixture in the form, and cover with the rest of the paste, thinly rolled and then brush over with the yolk of an egg. Bake in a fairly hot oven for one hour and serve with apple sauce or stewed fruit.

One more suggestion. If you want to enjoy your Swiss dinners as the Swiss do, wine should accompany the main course. While Switzerland's wines are famous, few are produced in sufficient quantity for export. But there are many fine domestic wines - particularly from California and New York. They will add a gracious, Continental touch when you serve your new Swiss recipes.
