Maite Bravo is a PhD, architect, educator, and researcher. She is a program head and faculty member of architectural and building technology at the British Columbia Institute of Technology, and academic director of the online master's program for cities and urbanism at the Institute for Advanced Architecture of Catalonia.

Antonia Cornaro works for Amberg Engineering and as a lecturer at ETH Zurich. The urban planner co-authored Underground Spaces Unveiled: Planning and Creating the Cities of the Future in 2018.

Christophe Girot is professor at the Chair of Landscape Architecture at ETH Zurich. His teaching and research activities include the development of new topological methods in landscape design, the history and theory of landscape architecture, and the use of new media in the analysis of landscape.

Dennis Häusler, Johannes Rebsamen, and Matthias Vollmer are the leading partners of SCANVISION, a Zurich-based ETH spin-off in the field of spatial documentation and visualisation. As research associates in the MediaLab at ETH Zurich, they examine the relationship between architecture and landscape through point cloud modeling.

Magdalena Kaufmann is an architect and research associate at ETH Zurich. Since 2013, she has been working on various teaching and research projects at the Chair of Landscape Architecture of Prof. Christophe Girot.
