Council had adopted "un nouveau règlement consulaire," which would come into force on January 1st, 1924. We quote the following passage, which will interest our colony:—"Il vise essentiellement à une simplification du service consulaire, tout en cherchant à atténuer certaines rigueurs fiscales. L'institution de l'immatriculation, dont l'expérience a démontré l'utilité, est conservée, mais subit, en revanche, une importante modification, en ce sens que l'émolument dû pour la première inscription est réduit de moitié et que la période d'immatriculation s'étend sur trois années civiles; la première période commencera le 1er janvier 1924. Le renouvellement de l'immatriculation s'effectuera, la première fois, le 1er janvier 1927. L'émolument à acquitter pour ce renouvellement sera de 3 fr. Le nouveau règlement élève de deux à cinq ans la durée maximale de la validité des passeports et réduit de 15 à 8 francs le montant de l'émolument dû pour l'établissement de cette pièce. La prolongation annuelle du passeport donnera lieu à la perception d'un émoulement de 5 fr. Le tarif des émoulements, qui fait l'objet d'une ordonnance spéciale annexée au règlement, a été ajusté aux taxes de chancelleries appliquées en Suisse et a subi, de ce fait, quelques réductions fort sensibles."

4. The list of candidates for the Council to be elected at the forthcoming Annual Meeting was drawn up. There will only be fourteen candidates put on the list, so that, unless names should be suggested at the meeting itself, nomination will virtually mean election. Dr. P. LANG, Secretary.

SWISS MERCANTILE SOCIETY.

The February Dance of the above Society was held last Saturday at the Midland Hotel, King's Cross, making the fourth dance of its kind this winter. The attendance this time was only 110, which does not compare favourably with the number at the previous January Fancy Dress Dance.

Whether several of the habitués denied themselves the pleasure of this dance, owing to not having completely recovered from the terrors of the train strike, despite the fact that this "ill-used band" had condescended to resume their duties, or if the fear of the intended dock strike had anything to do with it, we present were left "quite in the dark," but the evening was such a gay one that it would have been well worth going home by "Shank's pony," although, of course, one must admit something on wheels is preferable.

It now remains to wait until March the 1st, the date fixed for the next function, at the same place, the same time, in fact, the same everything, provided, of course, the Swiss Mercantile Entertainment Committee do not strike, which we must beg of them not to, for by so doing they would put an end to their most perfectly organized function. CHARLES HALDIMANN †

Dimanche dernier, au son de la marche funèbre de Händel, l'Eglise Suisse a rendu un adieu solennel à son ancien trésorier, Charles Haldimann, des Brenets, Neuchâtel, emporté à la fleur de l'âge. Il n'avait pas 33 ans, et déjà durant sa courte vie, il avait connu bien des épreuves. Marié une première fois, à 24 ans, avec Emma Weisser, de Neuchâtel, il avait vu mourir sa jeune femme sous ses yeux, d'une rupture d'anévrisme foudroyante, après moins de 18 mois de vie conjugale. Remarié trois ans après, il espérait enfin connaître le bonheur. Son rêve semblait devoir se réaliser: une charmante petite fille lui était née. Mais la maladie inexorable le guettait. Il a traîné plus d'une année, miné par la pleurésie et ses suites et s'est éteint à l'hôpital des Cadolles, à Neuchâtel, le 31 Janvier. Que sa veuve et sa famille veuillent bien trouver ici l'expression de la très vive sympathie des nombreux amis qu'il avait su se faire, au sein de la Colonie suisse, par son entrain, sa gaieté et son cœur si chaud et si fidèle, en particulier au Consistoire de l'Eglise et à la Swiss Bank Corporation, où il était tellement apprécié.

Tous les représentants des Sociétés Suisses et les amis et connaissances du défunt sont invités à assister à ce culte.

IN MEMORIAM.

(GEORGES DIMIER, † 28th January, 1924.)

With three score years and ten you have been bless'd;

A gen'rous span of life for man—and yet
We cannot fathom that the sun has set
Upon your pilgrim's path and brought you rest.

Rest from your labours and your ceaseless quest
To be a friend of all—who'll not forget—
To cheer and help and succor those you met
In need of help, when troubled or distress'd.

This day we stand in silence at your grave,
Bow'd down in grief, but also full of pride
For all you were to us, you did and gave.
May your sublime example be a guide
To all Helvetia's sons who knew your name
And honour it for friendship, love and fame.

GALLUS.
