Un discours en l'honneur du Président de la Confédération.

(Discours en patois gruyérien, prononcé par Monsieur François Currat, Syndic de Grandvillard, lors de la réception organisée en l'honneur de M. Jean Marie Musy, Président de la Confédération, le 6 janvier 1925.)

Vo m'èchkujèrè che vigno, din la linvoua dè nothré-j-anhyan, vo chublyà dutrè mo a l'orolye. A VISIT BY A 'CAT BURGLAR.'

Our compatriot, Mr. W. de Bourg, the First Secretary of the Swiss Legation, has had the unfortunate distinction of receiving a visit from a "cat burglar" on Monday evening at his home in Montagu Square, W. The man climbed a stack-pipe that runs close to the window of the dining-room while the family were at dinner, and forced open the front bedroom window on the second floor. The following details were published in the morning papers and are taken from the Daily Chronicle version of the 14th inst:—

Among the missing articles of value are:—
Antique turquoise necklace, made up of 20 large stones, strung with small pearls inter-vening, and a large pearl tassel attached.

Six other necklaces of value, ranging from £100 upwards.

An engagement ring (sapphire set in brilliants) belonging to Mrs. de Bourg.

Platinum ring set with three large diamonds. A diamond-and-gold bracelet.

An Italian cameo brooch, carved in transparent stone, and surrounded by a setting of brilliants.

Gold chain, with medallion made of two old Spanish coins.

A number of smaller rings and brooches of less value.

With the gold chain was a locket containing a portrait of Mrs. de Bourg's brother, an officer of the 1st Dragoon Guards, who was killed in the South African War.

None of the stolen jewels are insured. Although their total value was not reckoned at more than £3,000, several of the articles had a sentimental value. The turquoise necklace once belonged to Mrs. de Bourg's mother, the late Lady Samuelson, and a chain bracelet set with stones was the gift of her dead sister.

In a special interview, Mr. de Bourg said the robbery took place while he and his wife were at dinner in the evening.

"The thief must have been very daring. If he had fallen while climbing the stack-pipe he would have had a drop of about 35 feet, into the area or on the rails.

"It was my wife who first discovered that the premises had been entered. After we had finished dinner she went upstairs to her room, but found the door locked from the inside. When it was forced open we saw that someone had entered by the window, and a search revealed the fact that a number of pieces of jewellery were missing.

"Some of the stolen property was taken from drawers of the dressing table, and the remainder from bags in the room.

"Careful as he was, the burglar evidently made some noise, but at the time we thought the post-man had dropped some letters into the box of the front door.

"Our nurse, who was dining with us, got up and ran to the door, but found no letters. She came back and said so, and we thought no more of the incident at the time."
