SWISS HOTEL INDUSTRY.

SWISS HOTEL INDUSTRY.

The Swiss hotelkeepers are greatly alarmed at the prospect of losing their best English guests as the result of the drop in the pound sterling. Several of the more representative of the chief winter resorts have been in consultation at Interlaken to devise means if possible of retaining their customary clients for the winter season. The hotelkeepers realise that failing some such measures they will be faced with certain losses this coming winter.

The suggestions put forward at the meeting

The suggestions put forward at the meeting to effect a general reduction in prices were, how-ever, rejected. Instead it was agreed to com-municate individually with the usual winter guests from Great Britain and to offer to accept English currency for exchange at the rate of 22 francs in the pound in payment of hotel bills. Whilst this rate is three francs in the pound better than the official quotation it is still three francs below the normal standard rate.

The remaining £200,000 will be expended on bus chassis to be supplied by the Saurer Co.

From the above table based on the earliest results available, it will be gathered that there is very little variation as regards the adherents of the different parties. The loss of 6 seats by the Radicals is accounted for by the reductions in mandates, affecting various cantons. In Zurich the Communist, Robert Muller, captured a seat. In Geneva the Socialist gained one seat but lost one mandate in the canton of Thurgau. The Liberal Conservatives gain one seat (Vaud) and loose one (Geneva). The Agrarian party loose
