MINISTER STUCKI ON INTERNATIONAL ECONOMIC AND CURRENCY PROBLEMS

Minister Stucki, Switzerland's representa-tive on the technical commission of the League of Nations, reviewed the International Economic and Currency question at the meeting of the above commission in Geneva.

The main feature of his address was a justification of the fiscal policy of the countries belonging to the "gold bloc." He also strongly advocated bi-lateral agreements between the Minister Stucki emphatically drew the attention of the commission to the fact, that Switzerland has been an untiring collaborator in the flagrant contradiction to the aims and the prinprovement. "If an increase in the production, and a decrease in unemployment has taken place in various parts of the world, same was due principally to a re-newed activity in armaments, a fact which could hardly be welcomed, and was in efforts to bring along an improvement in international commercial relations. "Switzerland is ready," he said, "to lower customs and tariff barriers if other countries will do the same."— Minister Stucki emphatically drew the attenbarriers if other countries will do the same.'

He questioned the accuracy of the statement, that the economic situation has undergone an imciples of the League of Nations."

"We are well aware," he continued, "that without the maintaining of sound prices, a sound economic policy is impossible."

Referring to the international currency situation, he mentioned that the position could not be viewed with optimism, as the "Gold bloc" was further weakened through Belgium and Italy having severed their connections. He strongly defended a currency based on gold, saying that his country had repeatedly been approached with his country had repeatedly been approached with the view of devaluating its currency. "Switzerland," he declared, "has nothing to gain by devaluation, but would lose many valuable assets, a change in the financial policy therefore is not contemplated." "A country like ours" he continued, "which almost entirely depends on International Commerce, would, in case of devaluation, at once have to pay higher prices, and as Switzerland possesses no raw materials these would have to be paid for with a devaluated franc.—

Minister Stucki concluded his expose by de-claring that the maintenance of the Gold Stan-dard was in the interest of the whole world.

SPAHLINGER METHODS APPROVED.

The claims of Mr. Henry Spahlinger, the Swiss scientist, that his simplified vaccine confers immunity from tuberculosis infection in cattle are vindicated in a remarkable report issued by the Northern Ireland Government.

Mr. Walter Elliot, Minister of Agriculture, has ordered immediate investigation into the detailed report by the Northern Ireland Government. It is confidently expected in official quarters, that the Spahlinger vaccine will be tried out in an official large-scale experiment in England.
