Dr. Enrico Celio, President of the Swiss Confederation has received the entire Diplomatic Corps, as well as representatives of the government of the canton of Berne, on New Year's Day.

The Union of South Africa, it is learned, has expressed the wish to increase its imports from Switzerland and henceforth to settle any balance in Switzerland's favour in gold.

Owing to the fact that South Africa's imports from Switzerland exceed by far its corresponding exports (the respective November figures, for instance, being Frs.4,600,000 and Frs.800,000), Switzerland had to curtail exports to the Union some time ago which otherwise would have been higher still.

However, in the light of South Africa's offer to pay in gold, Switzerland will, no doubt, favourably consider this proposition. If it is accepted, Britain's favourable trade balance with Switzerland would, as a result, no longer be offset to such an extent by the Union of South Africa as it has been in the past.

In November, Switzerland's imports rose from Frs.441,000,000 to Frs.480,700,000, while exports dropped from Frs.291,500,000 to Frs.270,500,000. The adverse trade balance thus amounts to Frs.210,200,000, which is the highest figure ever recorded.

Imports from the United Kingdom declined from Frs.35,100,000 to Frs.29,600,000, placing Britain fifth among Switzerland's suppliers, against fourth in the previous month. Exports to Britain slightly rose from Frs.9,500,000 to Frs.10,700,000.

The United States still ranks first as Switzerland's supplier and customer, the respective figures for November being Frs.98,900,000 and Frs.37,900,000.

As a result of Switzerland's continually increasing trade deficit, the Swiss National Bank's gold and foreign exchange reserves begin to show a decreasing tendency. Lately, as evidenced by the bank's weekly returns, gold had to be continually converted into foreign exchange.

In the light of this development, the Swiss National Bank will, in the New Year, considerably alleviate the stringent restrictions governing the transfer to Switzerland, of private dollar holdings in the United States belonging to Swiss nationals. It is understood that many hundred million dollars are involved.

Twelve experts in skiing and rescue work, coming from Italy, Czechoslovakia, Switzerland, and Yugoslavia, attended the first international course, organized by the International Union of Alpine Associations, for the study of snow and avalanches. It was held at Davos and the Weissfluhjoch Institute.

Under the guidance of the Weissfluhjoch scientists they have been made acquainted with the Swiss methods of snow observation, utilizing meteorology, physics, and crystallography; with rescue work in the Alps; and with the forecasting of avalanches. The experts witnessed the remarkable skill of an "avalanche dog" which took only six minutes to find a man buried 2ft. deep in the snow. They were shown how avalanches can be started by hand-grenades or mine-throwers; they experimented with the various means used in the Swiss Alps for transporting injured persons, and carefully studied the entire organization of rescue parties.

The Weissfluhjoch Institute, which is situated at an altitude of 9,345ft. above Davos, is a unique institution.

By its intensive research work and by its regular avalanche warnings, which are issued almost every week, it has helped to save hundreds of human lives. Its staff during the war trained a large number of Army officers, and as result, during the five war winters, although the Alps were guarded by as many as 40,000 men, casualties from accidents did not exceed 25. The foreign experts will try to set up similar services in their own countries.

This first international course has been such a success that the International Union of Alpine Associations has been asked to organize at least one such course every year, and, if possible, two or three. These courses will be open to the members of the associations belonging to the union, one of them being the British Mountaineering Council.

An Exhibition of more than 100 paintings of Turner, sent to Switzerland from the Tate and National Galleries, was opened at the Berne Museum of Fine Arts.

A thaw, accompanied by abundant rainfall is general in Switzerland up to the 6,000-foot level. Numerous avalanches are reported from the alpine regions. One near Morgins, in the Valais, destroyed a chalet and buried a family of four persons, two of them were killed and the others injured.

Switzerland is issuing a new set of stamps for the winter Olympic games which will take place at St. Moritz from January 30th to February 8th.

Among projects for increasing hydro-electric power in Switzerland, the latest to be put forward provides for harnessing the Brenno, a tributary of the Tessin. The scheme comprises three underground power houses, Luzzzone, Olivone and Biasca, the total fall being 1,920 metres, spread over 33km., and the total power developed would be 274,000 kW. The Luzzzone power house would comprise two 27,500-kW horizontal shaft groups; the Olivone station three 31,000-kW vertical shaft turbo-alternators; and the Biasca station four 31,500-kW groups. The average output would be 890 million kW annually.
