Army

On April 5th of this month it was 100 years since General Ulrich Wille was born.

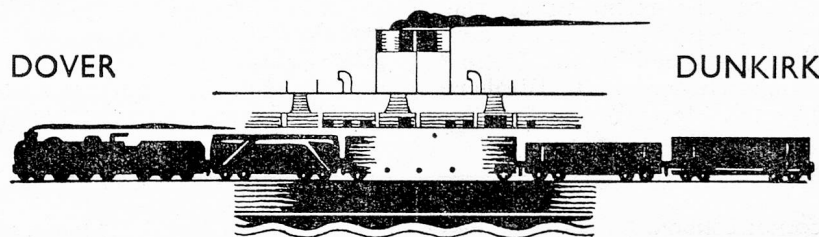

In 1914 (August 3rd) then Army-Corps commander Wille was elected commander-in-chief of the Swiss army with the rank of General.

He relinquished his post in December 11th, 1919, and died in January 1925.

General Wille was born on April 5th, 1848, the scion of an old Neuchâtelois family. His father, Dr. François Wille, a medical practitioner, lived at La Sagne, his mother was a native of Hamburg.

Soon after the birth of Ulrich Wille, the family moved to Meilen on the lake of Zurich, where the new home soon became the centre of an intellectual circle. Amongst the constant visitors to Meilen were Herwegh, Gottfried Keller, Arnold Böcklin, Franz Liszt, Richard Wagner, C. F. Meyer, etc., etc.

Ulrich Wille studied first jurisprudence at the Universities of Zurich, Halle, Leipzig and Heidelberg, and finished his studies with the degree of doctor-of-law.

Soon after he started his military career and in 1871, obtained his commission as lieutenant of artillery, with this rank he took part in the Frontier-Occupation of 1870-71.

From then onwards, he became a member of the Swiss Instruction Corps where he soon distinguished himself so that he rapidly advanced to the grade of captain (1883), major and lieutenant-colonel.

He at once began with the re-organisation of the artillery, and afterwards undertook the same work with the cavalry. At that time it was said about Wille: "Die Artillerie habe ich gebildet, die Kavallerie bilde ich, und die Infanterie werde ich bilden."

In 1896, he left the army owing to differences which occurred with the Federal Military Department, in connection with the occupation of some military commands, but four years after, Wille was recalled, and in 1900 received the command of the 6th Division, with the rank of Colonel of Division. In this capacity, he distinguished himself, and within four years he was promoted to the rank of Army-Corps Commander, taking over the command of the 3rd Army-Corps.

Years of intense work followed, and the re-organisation of the Swiss army in 1907, was the crowning point of his military career.

At the outbreak of the first world war Colonel Wille, was elected by the Federal Chambers, Commander-in-Chief of the Federal Forces, a command which he held with great efficiency.

In commemoration of the 100th birthday anniversary of General Wille, a service was held at the University of Zurich, of which he was at one time a lecturer on military science, during which Federal-Councillor Kobelt, head of the Federal Military Department, paid a high tribute to the services which General Wille had rendered to the army and to our country.

Wreaths were placed on the grave at the cemetery in Meilen, where apart from the members of the family the following attended a short service: Army-Corps Commanders: Frick, de Montmollin, and Iselin; Colonels of Division: Schumacher and Bircher, Federal-Councillor Kobelt, etc., etc.
