A village of picturesque mountain chalets, erected in the open air, is one of the most attractive features of this year's Swiss Industries Fair, which is being held at Basle from April 7th to April 17th. In the watchmaking section there are more than 150 exhibits which, along jewellery exhibits, are on display in the first hall. The textile industry is putting on a special demonstration under the title "Creation". Another display called "Form and Colour" has been arranged by the Swiss Association of Art and Industry, and a large section is being devoted to latest ideas in household equipment. Visitors from Great Britain attending the Fair can obtain air tickets at reduced prices to Basle or Zurich, while the Swiss Federal Railways offer return tickets at the cost of the single journey from any Swiss station to Basle. The tickets are stamped in machines specially provided for this purpose in the Fair premises in order to be valid for the homeward journey.

Competitors from Britain, France, Italy, Germany and other European countries will be taking part in the third International Motor Coach Rally on May 19th and 20th which has been organised by the Montreux Tourist Office and the Vaudoise section of the Swiss Automobile Club. Nine nationalities are represented among the 34 judges of the 7th International Musical Festival at Geneva, which is being held from September 24th to October 7th at the Conservatoire of Geneva. The jury of judges, which will be under the presidency of Mr. Henri Gagnebin, will also include representatives of the Swiss Broadcasting Corporation. Festival officials have received more than 600 requests for information and many entries have already been sent from a number of countries. The Swiss Home Office and the Federal Commission for Fine Arts have decided not to organise the national fine arts exhibition which should have been held this year. Instead its place will be taken by a world-wide exhibition which is being organised by the Swiss Fine Arts Society.

Due to rising world-market prices, Swiss paper manufacturers have increased the price of paper for newspapers by 15.1 to 15.9 per cent. and that for periodicals by 18 to 20 per cent.

This measure will sooner or later entail an increase in the price of Swiss newspapers and periodicals.

The Swiss Government has guaranteed 72 per cent. of the 25 million Swiss francs loan granted by three Swiss banks to the Jewish National Fund for the purchase of machinery to enable Israel to double her cement output.

The machinery will be used for extension of the Nesher cement plant in Haifa and for the equipping of new plant to be built at Ramleh at a cost of 3,100,000 Swiss francs.

The loan is repayable in four and a-half years. No interest has been charged.

PETITES CHOSES QUI FONT PLAISIR.

"Semaine Suisse" (Service de Presse).

Le "Journal des Suisses d'Amérique" donne quelques renseignements anecdotiques sur Jacques Weber, de Mollis, qui émigra en Amérique il y a 37 ans où il est actuellement le principal actionnaire et le président de la Bloomsbury Mills (plus de 1.000 métiers à tisser la soie et 75.000 fuseaux). En 1914, Weber, alors âgé de 21 ans, arrivait à Hoboken avec 25 dollars en poche. Après 6 ans d'activité comme employé dans des commerces suisses de soieries, il entra en 1920 à la Bloomsbury Silk Mills pour y parvenir au poste de vice président en 1932. En 1944, il s'assura la propriété de l'entreprise dont il entreprit la modernisation de la partie textile, ce qui lui coûta plus de 5 millions de dollars. Weber a fondé une bourse pour les étudiants de la branche textile; des bourses sont aussi attribuées chaque année à l'école des arts textiles de Zurich. Jacques Weber, aujourd'hui l'un des Suisses les plus en vue aux Etats-Unis, est vice président de la "National Federation of Textiles" et directeur du "Textile Distributors Institute."

Le Dr. Ernest Büchi, de l'Université de Zurich, a été nommé chef de division du département d'anthropologie du gouvernement central de l'Inde. L'architecte zurichois Werner M. Moser dirige la construction du technicum de Dehli et celle de la nouvelle ville de Kanchrapara. Edouard Gruner, de Bâle, et quatre autres ingénieurs suisses, travaillent comme conseillers techniques pour la construction de la digue de Konar, près de Calcutta. Le Prof. C. Regamey de Lausanne a donné des conférences dans plusieurs villes des Indes, dans le cadre du congrès pan-indien de philosophie. M. C. Wartmann, ancien chef de l'Office fédéral du personnel a été appelé par le gouvernement d'Israël au poste de conseiller pour la réorganisation des services administratifs de l'Etat.

Le "Général Guisan" est entré récemment dans le port de Melbourne. Ainsi les couleurs suisses flottent pour la première fois dans les eaux des mers du sud.

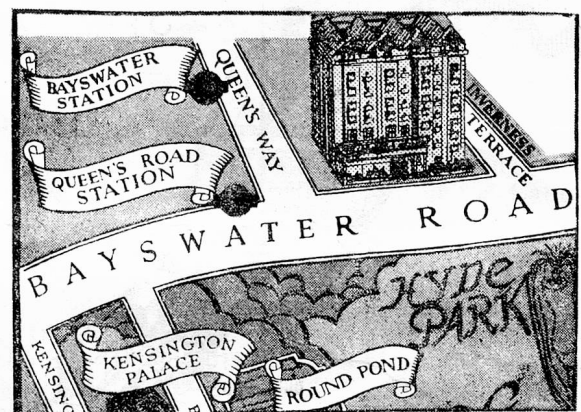

On vient d'inaugurer à Ziro (Epire), en présence du président du conseil des ministres de Grèce et du ministre de Suisse, un sanatorium érigé grâce à des dons suisses.
