The judgment on Professor Bonnard and his colleagues — the professor was sentenced to 15 days' imprisonment (the sentence being suspended on conditions of good behaviour for three years) for supplying political information to a foreign organization — has been generally assessed by Swiss opinion as fitting the punishment to the crime. The writer of the leading article in the Journal de Genève describes the penalties imposed as symbolic, and other commentators praise the discretion with which the Federal Court has vindicated the law without making a martyr of the professor.

At the same time there are voices on the left which claim that the trial has shown how far democratic Switzerland has progressed towards a police State. This is the exaggeration of partisanship, but many Swiss democrats were uneasy to learn that the secrecy of the post and the telephone had been violated, and even those who applaud the judgment express the view that Article 272 of the penal code should be clarified to prevent the impression that anybody prosecuted under it is being tried for his opinions rather than for a breach of the law.

Switzerland now has two Communist parties; Léon Nicole, expelled from the Worker's (Communist)

Party in December 1952 for "deviation" has formed a rival group called the Progressive Party.

Like the Workers' Party, it advocates close friendship with Russia and the "Peoples Democracies" and is opposed to rearmament.

A RETIREMENT.

Our countryman, Mr. J. F. Beer, principal Chef de cuisine at the Grand Hotel, Birmingham, is shortly retiring from his position.

Mr. Beer trained in Davos, later going to Claridges Hotel, London. After several years in West End Hotels, in 1926 he went to the Queen's Hotel, Birmingham, but was shortly afterwards appointed to his present position at the Grand Hotel, a post he has held for 27 years. He is an old member of the Swiss Club, Birmingham.

We are extending to him our best wishes in his retirement.

SWISSAIR TRAFFIC IN FEBRUARY.

Point to Point Passengers	...	24,726	18,886
		+ 31%
Offered ton/miles	3,109,338	2,013,426
		+ 54%
Average Utilisation Grade on the scheduled service		54.4%	65.1%

The offered Ton/Miles in February slightly exceeded the actual budget. Compared with the same month of the previous year, offered capacity increased by 54%. Against this large increase we have an increased utilisation of 29%. Demand therefore did not keep pace with the offered capacity which, despite the remarkable increase of 31% for point to point passengers, reached a utilisation of 54.4%. Compared with February 1953, our increased achievements are due to the use of larger aircraft and to the fact that during this winter season, the summer programme has not been drastically reduced as in previous years.
