HELP BY SWISSAIR.

Our readers will be interested to hear that Swissair was able to help in the movement of the stranded Cunard passengers going back to the United States.

On Saturday, June 18th, 30 passengers travelled from London via Manchester to New York by a special chartered Swissair plane. The aircraft returned on Sunday, June 19th from New York carrying a further 30 passengers bound for Great Britain.

A CHALLENGE.

Owing to a dispute, questioning the fairness of my walking at the recent Swiss Sports Meeting, which prevented me from winning the Veteran's handicap race for the third time. I am obliged, as a sportsman, to issue the following challenge:

1. I challenge the Sport's Supervisor, the officiating judges collectively, and the judge who, early in the race threatened me with disqualification if not walking according to rules, to show cause why I did not walk "in accordance to rules laid down by the English Road Walking Association".

2. I challenge the winner to re-walk the race for a wager of £20 before neutral and competent judges. I would start from scratch accepting the same handicap as on June 4th, subject to official proof of age on either side, and without restriction as to dress or footwear to be worn.

I propose that the above mentioned amount be paid by the loser to the Swiss Benevolent Society.

W. Stettbacher.
