The Swiss Lower House approved cuts in the national defence tax varying from 10 to 40 per cent.

The tax, which is levied by the Government, now amounts to approximately two per cent of taxable income. Income tax, levied by the semi-autonomous cantons, is not affected.

The Swiss Attorney-General has forwarded to the federal High Court of Justice the bill of indictment against the four persons accused of having attacked the Rumanian Legation in Berne during the night of February 14-15 last. The case will be brought before the court in the spring at Lausanne. The weapons alleged to have been used by the assailants are said to have been supplied to them by a German living at Constanza, described as a specialist in the transformation of discarded war material and arms.

The Swiss Government approved a Bill for compulsory Civil Defence service.

All males between 15 and 65 will have to do three to six days compulsory service a year. Women between 15 and 50 may volunteer.

Anglo-Swiss trade negotiations to establish quotas in both directions for 1956 have opened in London on January 24th.

Since most of the trade between the two countries is liberalised the talks cover a comparatively narrow field, but subjects for discussion will include, particularly, U.K. export to Switzerland of agricultural tractors, vehicles, and some plastic materials.

On the import side the negotiations will cover Swiss watches and watch parts, pharmaceuticals, apparel and underwear, and some specialised industrial machinery.

The Swiss Automobile Club has launched a campaign to popularise "friendly hand signals" among motorists.

The campaign aims at increasing road safety, making traffic more fluid on busy streets, and creating an atmosphere of courtesy and camaraderie among motorists.

King Paul and Queen Frederika of Greece have sent a New Year's gift of 1,000 francs (about £80) and a silver-framed picture of themselves to a Swiss woman in charge of a level crossing who saved their lives.

Last November, the woman, Mme. Haenni, saw a large car speeding towards her level crossing at Oberwinterthur. The crossing had its gates closed to allow an express to pass.

Realising that the car could not stop in time, she raised the gates again and let it through just before the train was due.

In the car were King Paul and Queen Frederika on a visit to Switzerland.

ACROW TO MANUFACTURE IN CANADA.

Over the past twelve months the demand in Canada for Acrow Steel Scaffolding and Formwork and other equipment for the construction industry has outgrown the capacity of the Company to supply from the United Kingdom. Acrow (Canada) Limited, a subsidiary of the Acrow Group, is therefore setting up a plant and housing scheme on a 250 acre site at Orangeville, Ontario, which when in full production will manufacture the entire range of Acrow equipment. In view of the high cost of internal transportation in Canada, however, the production of the new Works is intended to cover mainly the vast developments in central Canada, whilst the growing demands of Eastern and Western Canada will continue to be exported from Acrow's present U.K. factories and the new Coronation Works at Saffron Walden in Essex, now about to come into production.

SWISSAIR-DAIMLER CAR HIRE AGREEMENT.

Swissair and Daimler Hire Limited of Knightsbridge, London, have concluded an agreement covering the hire of "Drive-Yourself" cars by passengers abroad. Daimler have so far made arrangements with car hire companies in France, Germany, Italy and Switzerland for cars to be available to passengers on arrival at their destination. Provision for the same facilities in Austria, Greece and Turkey is under negotiation.

The present allowance of £35 under Exchange Control Regulations for the payment of car rental in Europe will apply to this scheme.

Rentals in Italy, for example, range from £2.17.2. per day for a Fiat 600 with 100 kilometres free, plus 4½d. per additional kilometre, to £6.8.7. per day for a Lancia Aurelia for an unlimited distance. These rates include insurance, oil and tax but not petrol. In Germany they range from 12/11 per day for a Volkswagen Standard, plus 4d. per kilometre for a minimum of 80 kilometres, to 28/7 per day for a Mercedes 300 plus 10½d. per kilometre.

In France they range from 19/8 per day for a 2 H.P. Citroen, plus 2½d. per kilometre (minimum 60 kilometres), to £2.2.10. per day for a Chevrolet or a Plymouth plus 7d. per kilometre. Discounts on the above rates are available, depending on length of hire and season.
