Federal

The message of the Swiss Federal Government to Parliament proposing to grant the vote to women in federal affairs has been published recently. It puts forward some constitutional modifications, one of them making it clear that the word "citizen" used in the present text of the constitution would apply to women as well as men.

Other changes proposed are that women should be entitled to sit in the Lower Chamber of Parliament (National Council) and on the Federal Supreme Court. There would be an exception in the case of foreign women married to Swiss citizens; they could be elected only after holding Swiss nationality for 12 years.

As acceptance of the proposals would almost double the number of electors, there would be changes in the referendum rights which are part of the Swiss constitution. At present a law passed by Parliament must be submitted to a popular vote if at least 30,000 citizens demand it; in future the number of signatures necessary would be 60,000. The "right of initiative" allows a petition for an amendment to the constitution to be submitted by 50,000 citizens; in future the number would be 100,000.

M. Chaudet, head of the Federal Military Department, stated at a Press conference that he was asking for a supplementary credit of about 40 million francs for the defence forces. About half would be spent on training specialized technical units of the army, and the remainder on the purchase of training aircraft. These would include 20 Vampire trainers, to be built under licence in Switzerland.

The traditional dinner offered by the Federal Council to the heads of the diplomatic missions accredited to the Confederation, and their ladies, took place in Berne.

The newly appointed Minister Plenipotentiary and Envoy Extraordinary of Iceland, Monsieur Helgi P. Briem, has presented his credentials to Dr. Th. Holenstein, Vice-President of the Swiss Confederation, and to M. Max Petitpierre, Swiss Foreign Minister.

The French liner La Marseillaise (17,000 tons) has been sold to the Swiss Arosa Line at a price reported to be slightly over $6m. She will be converted in France during the spring, and is to enter the transatlantic service in June under the new name of Arosa Sky, with her gross tonnage increased by about 3,000 tons.

Originally named Le Maréchal Pétain, this was one of the finest ships in the Mediterranean, where her owners, the Compagnie des Messageries Maritimes, used her both as a regular liner and as a luxury-cruise ship. She was requisitioned last summer by the French Government, and was used later as a hospital ship in the Suez operations.

The ship was built at the Chantiers Navals de La Ciotat in 1949, and has diesel engines giving her a speed of over 20 knots. During conversion for the North Atlantic trade her accommodation will be approximately doubled to provide for about 60 first-class and 900 tourist-class passengers. The Arosa Line has three other ships sailing between Europe and Canada.

One of Switzerland's most modern and most Beautifully Located Hotels is now under construction on the lakeside promenade of Neuchâtel. Part of the structure is being built on pillars giving the effect of protruding pier-like into the lake. All guest and social rooms of this new hotel, which is to open by June 15th, 1957, under the name of "Baulac Hotel", will afford a unique panoramic view of the Alps, from the Saentis to the Mont Blanc, enhanced by the charms of the Lac de Neuchatel, Switzerland's largest inland lake.

It seems that Canton Valais is making a bid to become the ice-skating centre of Switzerland. This is not merely restricted to its double garland of winter resorts stretching in the south from Saas-Fee to Champéry and in the north from Montana-Vermala to Crans but extends above all to the towns with their southern charm situated in the apricot orchards of the Rhone Valley. Following after Martigny and the capital, Sion, Visp, a little town of 3,000 inhabitants, and also the gateway to Zermatt, has now acquired a modern artificial ice-rink with a surface area of 19,375 sq.ft.

It is now possible to make the trip up the Rhine from the North Sea to Switzerland with all the comfort of an ocean voyage by travelling in the modern Swiss motor-ship "Basilea" which is the Italian name for Bale, its home port. Further comforts on board include elegantly furnished Social Rooms and several promenade decks.

THE CIVILISED OASIS.

Mr. George Bilainkin, the British author, who has recently visited his old friends in Berne, St. Moritz and Evolene, and been entertained in Zurich and Geneva, writes in a Devon-paper (which he once edited), the following:

... Last, but not least, I come to the civilised oasis in Europe, Berne, capital of the efficient, advanced, and superbly clean Switzerland.

I feel I am in another continent when Swiss customs gentlemen approach me. I see here spotless table cloths. I listen to polite and dignified exchanges. I step into strictly correct tramcars, trains, taxicabs. There is no "doing" anyone. The bread is the best in Europe. (I have now reduced my taste in brown from 20 varieties available in most big Berne shops to three favourites.) Services for the housewife make me wonder how long crushed and decadent women elsewhere will tolerate needless serfdom.

Everybody says "thank you", cordially, when you make a purchase; the slightest and the largest article is carefully wrapped in spotless paper.

I salute this wonder city of hope.
