The King and Queen of Greece, with a suite of twenty, paid an official visit to the Confederation from September 10th to 13th.

On stepping on to Swiss soil at Basle they were greeted by M. and Mme. M. Petitpierre, Swiss Foreign Minister, by the Chef de Protocol, M. A. Dominicé, the Swiss Ambassador at Athens, the Greek Ambassador in Berne, and a delegation of the Government of the canton Basle-Town, headed by M. Wulschleger. A military band played the Greek and the Swiss national anthems, after which the King inspected the Guard of Honour.

The royal couple and their suite then boarded the special train en route to the Swiss capital, where they were received by Dr. Thomas Holenstein, President of the Swiss Confederation, and Madame Holenstein, Mr. Siegenthaler President of the Government of the canton of Berne, and the Mayor of the town of Berne, Dr. Freimüller. Soon afterwards they were conducted to the 'Lohn' where the distinguished visitors resided during their three days visit. After a private luncheon the King and Queen accompanied by Mons. Petitpierre drove in open carriages to the Palais Fédéral. Large crowds watched the procession, which wended its way through the gaily decorated streets of the capital.

On its arrival at the Palais Fédéral a military band played the Greek National anthem, and after inspecting the Guard of Honour, the Royal Guests entered the building of the Federal Parliament, where they were received by the members of the Federal Council in corpore.

Dr. Holenstein, in his address of welcome, stressed the friendly relations which exist between the two countries. The King in his reply thanked the Federal Council for the friendly reception accorded him and the Queen, and referred to the long-standing and happy good relations which have been maintained even in the darkest hours of his country.

The first day of the visit terminated with a State Banquet at the Bellevue Palace Hotel.

On the second day, the King and Crown Prince, accompanied by Federal Councillor Chaudet, head of the Federal Military Department, visited a number of military establishments, whilst the Queen and Princess Sophie visited the town and various institutions. In the evening the King and Queen held a reception at the Bellevue Palace Hotel at which five hundred persons attended.

The visit of the Greek royalties terminated on Friday, 12th of September.
