Federal

The Federal Council has appointed Mr. Theodor Schmidlin, at present 1st Secretary at the Swiss Legation in Prague, to the post of Consul-General in Saigon, in succession to Mr. Jean Studer.

The new Consul-General was born in Wahlen (Jura Bernois) in 1917, and studied law at the University of Berne. He entered the diplomatic service in 1942. Mr. Schmidlin previously held a post at the Swiss Legation in Belgrade.

The Swiss Colonies abroad number roughly 165,000 persons who are registered at the various Consulates. To be added to these are about 121,000 persons who have not registered.

A further 300,000 persons possess double nationality; of these alone 275,000 reside in the U.S.A. It is estimated that about 566,000 Swiss are residing abroad.

According to a statement issued by the Federal Central Office for questions relating to Swiss abroad (Eidg. Zentralstelle für Auslandschweizerfragen), a thousand people applied in 1957 for temporary assistance, owing either to political or economic circumstances.

Continued assistance was given to a further 2,500 persons, either still living abroad or having returned home, of whom ninety received loans up to the maximum amount of 30,000.— francs.

The sum of 4.44 million francs was required in 1957. From 1939 to the end of 1957 the Confederation has disbursed the amount of 165 million francs for assistance to Swiss abroad.

On 31st December 1957 the number of civil servants employed by the Swiss Confederation numbered 101,178.

The Swiss Federal Railways have carried 17.9 million passengers in the month of February 1958, or 800,000 more than in February 1957. Receipts: 22.8 million francs (February 1957: 21.7 million francs).

Goods traffic is returned as 1.57 million tons, or 470,000 tons less than during the same period in 1957. Receipts: 34.4 million francs (February 1957: 41.1 million francs).

M. Marcel Pilet-Golaz, who was President of the Swiss Confederation in 1934 and 1940, died in Paris at the age of 68.

He came of an old agricultural family of the canton of Vaud and attended the Universities of Lausanne, Leipzig and Paris. He practised law before entering local and then federal politics as a Radical. As chief of the Federal Railway Department he introduced reforms to make the department more independent of politics. When he was elected President for his first term he was 44 and the youngest member of the Government. After a period as Director of the Interior and of the Department of Posts and Telegraphs he became, in 1940, head of the Political Department, which is equivalent to Foreign Minister. As the war progressed he came under increasingly strong criticism as a person who was not in a position to negotiate with the allies on terms of friendliness and confidence, and he resigned in November 1944, at a time when Switzerland had failed to renew diplomatic relations with the Soviet Union.

An epidemic of blindness among chamois, which hitherto seems to have been limited to the nature reserve south of Château d'Oex in the Alpes Vaudoises, is now spreading eastward. The disease, an infectious conjunctivitis, is caused by a virus, and blindness is brought about by perforation or ulceration of the cornea. Gamekeepers in the Simmethal report that they have already counted some six hundred blind or half-blind animals, and measures are to be taken with a view to shooting those whose condition is hopeless.

The Official Trade Gazette has celebrated its 75th Jubilee. The "Feuille officielle Suisse du commerce" was published for the first time at the beginning of 1883, as a result of the coming into force of the Federal Code of Obligations, which contains the Swiss commercial law.

The oldest Swiss publication of this kind is the "Feuille d'Avis officielle de la République et Canton de Genève", of which the first issue bears the date, 5th August, 1752.

France has now also decided to abolish the customs documents for visiting motorists. British Motorists wishing to visit Switzerland (by travelling through France) need in future take only their British Registration Book (log book), their British Driving Licence and Form 29C (Temporary Exportation Certificate) for the British Customs. In addition, the Insurance Company should be informed in order that third party risk for Continental Travel may be covered.

Switzerland, Austria, Western Germany and Sweden have now abolished the "earnets" and "triptyques" for visiting motorists. Germany however still requires the International Driving Licence.

Form 29C can be obtained from H.M. Customs, H.M. Stationery Office, York House, Kingsway,
