Economic Counsellor at the Swiss Embassy, and Mr. A. Stauffer, Editor of the "Swiss Observer".

Dr. Mettler related some of his experiences during a recent visit to Canada, and gave a very interesting exposé of the economic aspects and the financial problems with which the Canadian Government is at present faced.

This excellent talk was much appreciated and duly acknowledged by the Chairman.

PIANO RECITAL. Miss Ruth Huggenberg.

The first time I heard Miss Huggenberg was at a concert given by the Swiss Orchestral Society not long after her arrival in this country in 1946. Since then we have repeatedly had the pleasure of hearing her play on various occasions in the Colony. I have, I believe, been to all her recitals at Wigmore Hall, the last of which took place on 6th June. At every concert her steady progress was noticeable, but never more so than at this one.

She started with Schubert's Impromptu Op. 142 in F minor, No. 1, and followed it with his Sonata in A major, Op. posth. It was not, however, until she arrived at Schumann's Humoresque Op. 20 that I felt how very much her interpretation had matured. A new warm glow was breaking through her reserve which had sometimes in the past prevented her from expanding. This new aspect of her playing made her Schumann extremely delightful to listen to.

The second half of the concert was devoted to Brahms. She played three capricci and two intermezzi as well as the Rhapsody in E flat major, Op. 119. My personal favourite was this latter which Miss Huggenberg brought to life with all the seriousness and straightforward simplicity so characteristic of her art.

Though I did perhaps not appreciate her rendering of Schubert as much as it deserved I certainly loved his Moment Musical Op. 94 No. 3 which she played with an easy charm as one of her encores. Miss Huggenberg more than deserved the lovely flowers and the prolonged applause at the end of the evening, for she had given us a real treat. She has reached a point in her career as a pianist where she will become more widely known to the musical public in general. We Swiss in London may feel proud to count her as one of us and wish her every success in the future.
