More than 12 million overnight stays were registered in Swiss hotels, pensions, sanatoria and health resorts in the first six months of 1960; foreign visitors accounted for 6.6 million and Swiss guests for 5.4 million nights, which means increases of 9% and 3% over the respective figures for last year. Topping the list of visitors from abroad, with over 3 million hotel nights, are the Germans, followed by the British 1.25 millions — an increase of 13½%, the French (927,000), the Americans (557,000), the Italians (376,000), and the Dutch (353,000).

The picturesque Italian-speaking village of Airolo in northern Canton Ticino, some 4,000 feet above sea-level, is well known to railway travellers and motorists as the southern gateway to the St. Gotthard tunnel and trans-Alpine pass. It may soon be put on the map of sophisticated winter resorts. A large-scale construction project sponsored by the cantonal government provides for a five-acre winter playground complete with an ice-stadium, a Swiss ski school and a 100-bed resort hotel.

A new chair hoist, starting near the Sport-Hotel-Savoy and ending on the plateau de Solacyre, will be ready for the winter season 1960/61. A new downhill run towards Präfandaz will thus be opened up. In addition, the region of Lac d'Aï will receive a small ski-lift to facilitate access to the 3-mile ling "piste bleue".

* * *

The Engelberg-Brunni aerial cableway has been re-built and will be able to carry 450 passengers per hour instead of 120 as previously. Four new downhill runs will be possible through the extension of the Brunni ski-lift to a height of 6,900 feet above sea-level. On Gerschnialp a trainer ski-lift will permit the Engelberg Ski School to give tuition until the middle of April.

The Lake Constance area and the region around Lake Lucerne, in the centre of the country, are now linked by a new type of express train which has made its inaugural trip on the occasion of the 50th anniversary of the Bodensee-Toggenburg Railway. Consisting of an electric 2,800 h.p. engine-car, a cockpit-carriage and several regular passenger cars which form the central part of the train, it "shuttles" between the two terminal points, Romanshorn on Lake Constance, and Lucerne, without the help of turntables. Stops of the new direct shuttle train are at St. Gall, Wattwil, Rapperswil and Arth-Goldau.

The 14th attempt to film the story of Switzerland's legendary national hero, William Tell, on whom the cameras are now focused in his native country around Lake Lucerne, has been described by the press as "a milestone in the history of Swiss cinema art". After a long lull the Swiss film industry is once again to turn out a film which is not only for local consumption but which is expected, above all, to prove suitable for export. At an estimated cost of £125,000, the Urs Film Company will endeavour to present a spectacular wide-screen picture in colour, under the artistic direction of Karl Hartl. Gale machines driven by aeroplane engines recently had to be put to action to give the lake of Lucerne sufficient dramatic roughness for the shooting of Tell's escape from Gessler's prison barge. Since Altdorf, the historic site of the apple-shooting incident, has lost some of its medieval varnish through the centuries, the location of this highlight of the film story was switched to the quaint mountain village of Hospental, north of the St. Gotthard Pass. The cast of internationally-known Swiss actors includes Robert Freitag as William Tell and Maria Becker as Gertrude Stauffacher.

Baden, the oldest medicinal and recreational spa in Switzerland, has become one of the country's most important traffic centres. North-south and east-west railway trunk lines intersect at Baden on the river Limmat. It so happened that the road traffic which, until now, went right through the historical part of the small town, got blocked far too often at the closed railway barriers. Through a large-scale rerouting project, traffic conditions will now be radically improved. The railway tracks which pass through the centre of the town will be replaced by a motor thoroughfare, and the new tracks will be relocated on the outskirts of the town. For the railway as well as road traffic expensive tunnel construction will be necessary. The new Baden motorway, freed of all railway crossings, is expected to be completed by the end of next year.

The Swiss glacier pilot, Hermann Geiger, Europe's most successful lifesaver, made the first landing in a newly opened "airport" — the roof of a hospital in Zermatt, the mountain health resort. The small "airfield", specially designed for helicopters, will enable rescue pilots to fly injured alpinists direct to the hospital.

In Lucerne the "Lucerna Foundation" is preparing its 34th holiday course to be held from 17th to 21st October. The subject will be "Language and Culture". The most heavily travelled Alpine road in the summer of 1960 is the St. Gotthard Pass in the central part of Switzerland. As not all drivers like to rush past the beautiful mountain scenery, the Swiss Automobile Club has put up signs indicating "lay-bys" ahead. In order to avoid congestion the slower drivers are invited in four languages to let the faster drivers pass by using the "lay-bys".

The painter, Albert Anker, died on 16th July 1910, at Ins. The Berne Art Museum (Kunstmuseum) has now organized in his memory a large exhibition comprising 350 pictures, studies in oils and water-colours. After years of searching for his scattered works, a large number of pictures and water-colours have been found, which were scarcely known and are now to be shown to the public for the first time. Anker's art, which frequently had a moral aim — he first of all studied theology — is intended to depict the simple healthy life of the country. His portraits of children and young people are among the most beautiful creations which Swiss art of the 19th century has produced.

On 23rd September 1910 a young Peruvian named Geo Chavez succeeded in performing the then unheard-of exploit of traversing the Alps by air. The courageous flyer was killed when his plane crashed a few moments before reaching its destination. At Brig, the Swiss town which saw Chavez's sensational take-off, and in several Italian towns, there were memorial celebrations on 23rd September.

The first important exploit by a Swiss flyer occurred on 28th August 1910, when a young man from Geneva, Armand Dufaux, crossed Lake Geneva lengthwise in his "pre-historic" flying-machine which was the first to be constructed by a Swiss. The brothers Armand and Henry Dufaux, who designed it, were also the manufacturers of the internationally famed "Motosacoche" motor-cycles.
