Pierre Jaccoud (54), the former President of the Geneva Bar Association and a politician, was sentenced in Geneva to seven years' imprisonment for murder and attempted murder. His trial had lasted 18 days. The jury of seven men and five women added 10 years loss of civil rights to the prison sentence. Their verdict was by majority vote.

Jaccoud was found guilty of shooting and stabbing a farm machinery salesman, Charles Zumbach (62), and attempting to shoot Marie Zumbach, his wife, on the night of May 1st, 1958 in their suburban house. Jaccoud and the victim had apparently never known each other. But one of Zumbach's sons, André had succeeded Jaccoud in the affections of a woman who had been his mistress for eight years. Jaccoud admitted writing anonymous letters to André Zumbach, enclosing photographs taken of the woman in the nude. Apparently the intention was to break up the love affair.

There was no incontrovertible proof of Jaccoud's whereabouts at the time of the crime. Circumstantial evidence weighed overwhelmingly against him. A button found outside Zumbach's house corresponded with those on a bloodstained raincoat, with one button missing, found at Jaccoud's house in a parcel of old clothes intended for the Red Cross.

A Moroccan dagger, also found at Jaccoud's house, bore bloodstains. A bicycle was seen outside Zumbach's house on the night of the crime and one which Jaccoud owned had bloodstains.

When Mrs. Zumbach had described her attacker as dark haired, Jaccoud was still at liberty. But he had his hair dyed blond and claimed that the barber made a mistake. Jaccoud was defended by the French barrister, Maître René Floriot.

Villars:— Switzerland's first all-year round artificial ice-rink is to be built and completed by June 15th at a scenic spot in the centre of the world-famous summer and winter resort of Villars, in the Vaudois Alps. "We have had to overcome countless difficulties," said Monsieur Henri Jakob who heads the local tourist association, "but the road has now been cleared and final plans have been made for our ice-stadium. Construction will start as soon as the snow melts. The machinery is already being built at the workshops of the Escher-Wyss Company of Zurich. We are confident that the ice-rink can be opened to the public at the beginning of this coming summer season." Villars and environs extending from 4,000 to over 7,000 feet above sea-level, can accommodate some 1,500 visitors at local hotels. Moreover 400 families can be put up at furnished holiday chalets.

The new ice-stadium with its 100×200 ft. rink will have tiers and stand for 3,000 spectators.

Gstaad:— Gstaad, a gem of the Bernese Oberland and one of the prettiest resort villages along Switzerland's famous "Golden Pass" linking Montreux, Interlaken and Lucerne, has just announced several highlights of its 1960 Summer Programme. An International Fencing Competition is to take place on July 9th and 10th while the International Tennis Championship Games of Switzerland are arranged for the week of July 17th to 24th. Gstaad's elegant Alpine swimming pool will be the site of a Variety and Bathing-Suit Fashion Show on July 26th and 27th. A Folklore Festival in the traditional Swiss mountain-peasant style is to be held on August 7th. Yehudi Menuhin who is one of several world-famous artist-expatriates now residing at Gstaad, will direct his own Music Festival from August 8th to 18th.

Montreux — An international television festival which originally was planned for the current year, will now definitely take place at Montreux, on the Lake Geneva Riviera of Switzerland, in the second half of May 1961, it was disclosed here by the organizing committee. According to Edward Haas, Director of the Swiss Television Authority, governmental and independent networks from Africa, Asia, Britain, the Commonwealth countries, Europe, the Middle East, Russia, Latin America and the United States have been asked to participate. Television networks from Australia, Argentina, France, Germany, Holland, Mexico, the Soviet Union, the United Kingdom and the United States have already written in expressing interest in the project. Three main features will determine the activities of this "International Festival of Television Arts and Sciences" as it is termed officially — a global competition of TV variety programmes and musical shows, a TV trade fair specifically geared to the exhibition of studio equipment, and a Mardi-Gras of galas, events, spectacles and celebrations organized in the city itself.

Zurich:— The traditional Zurich "June" Festival, which actually opens in the last days of May and expands into early July, is to sail under the designation "La France à Zurich" this year. This French touch, as it is obvious from the provisional programme, is due to the participation of celebrated French artists and ensembles. The Zurich Playhouse, for instance, announces a "French Theatre Week" featuring at least three famous troupes from Paris including the "Comédie Française", while the Museum of Fine Arts is to take over the complete exhibition of the Paris "Salon de Mai 1960". Soloists from all over the world will be heard at the Tonhalle in the Festival Concerts to be directed by such well-known conductors as Georg Solti, William Steinberg and André Cluytens. A "French Week" will also be held at the Municipal Opera House (Stadttheater) which keeps some more pleasant surprises in store: Tentative mention has been made of the world premiere of Bohuslav Martinu's "Greek Passion", guest performances by top Italian opera companies as well as such high-class dancing troupes as the American Ballet Theatre and Israel's "Inbal".

Geneva:— The International Automobile Salon, to be held for the 30th time in Geneva from March 10th to 20th, will again display the products of a record number of 18 nations — Germany, Austria, Belgium, Canada, Denmark, Finland, France, the United Kingdom, Ireland, Italy, Japan, Norway, the Netherlands, Sweden, Switzerland, Czechoslovakia, the U.S.A. and the Soviet Union. The Geneva motor-car show which becomes increasingly important every year, is considered one of the world's trail-blazing exhibitions in the automotive field. In accordance with tradition the "Salon" will be officially opened by the Federal President of Switzerland who this year is Monsieur Max Petitpierre.

Berne:— The Automobile Club (ACS) and the Touring Club of Switzerland (TCS) has established a joint snow-chain rental service for motorists bound for the country's major winter sports resorts. The chains can be obtained from and returned to any of over 35 garages participating in this new service. It is pointed out by the two Swiss motorists' associations that snow chains or snow tyres can now be declared compulsory for certain mountain roads to prevent congestions due to snow and ice. Warnings to this effect are posted at reasonable distances from the snowed-in areas alongside all roads of access. Throughout Switzerland information on road conditions can also be obtained by dialling telephone Nr. 163. Motorists getting into distress despite all warnings may use one of over 300 "SOS" telephones installed on the Swiss mountain road network. Nr. 11 on the dial will put the message through to the "Auto Rescue Service".

Leysin:— This former health resort in the Vaudois Alps which has become one of Switzerland's most popular winter sports centres and summer holiday spots, has just added a new attraction to its many resort facilities: a winter sports airport. An agreement has been reached with Hermann Geiger, the celebrated Swiss "Glacier Pilot" and managing director of Sion airport down in the Rhone valley, to the effect that scheduled flights will take place several times a week from Leysin to surrounding starting points of downhill runs. The skiers will be flown to their high-Alpine destinations by helicopters and sport airplanes equipped with ski-like runners for take-offs and landings in the snow. The new "air-lift" to the lower reaches of the eternal snows is likely to become particularly popular with spring and early-summer ski adepts.
