early age, he had to work very hard at his parents' homestead. In 1903, he got married and bought a farm at Gerlikon, which he himself managed until a few years ago. He sat for a number of years in the "Kantonsrat" Thurgau and was "Ortsvorsteher" of Gerlikon.

He published in 1896 a small book under the title "Lieder und Balladen," which at once focused the attention of literary circles on this peasant poet. There followed stage plays, novels and still more books of poetry. Amongst the plays is perhaps best known his comedy "Em Bollme si boes Wuche" (1912), and of his stories and novels the following: "Das Ebenhöch", "Dorfgenossen", "Die Bauern von Steig", and "Die Geschichte des Heinrich Lentz" have been published in several editions.

VARIOUS.

Jacques Piccard, the young Swiss scientist and son of the famous Professor Auguste Piccard was honoured by the President of the United States of America for the part he has taken in the descent of the Navy's bathyschape "Trieste", which in January broke a record by sinking to a depth of 37,800 feet in the Pacific Ocean off the Marianas Islands. President Eisenhower granted Mr. Jacques Piccard a "Distinguished public service award."

The "Trieste" was designed after World War II, principally by Dr. Auguste Piccard, the Swiss scientist who is also famed for his exploits in balloon stratospheric flights.

On his arrival at Cointrin (Geneva) from Cairo, on February 17th, Flight-captain Walter E. Borner of Swissair, has covered altogether six million kilometres. He is the first Swiss pilot who has flown a distance which is fifteen times the distance from the earth to the moon. Captain Borner has spent over 19,400 hours of his life in the air. He received his schooling at Olten, where afterwards he underwent an apprenticeship as a mechanic. In 1927 he was appointed assistant manager of the Cointrin airport. From 1930 until his appointment with Swissair in 1933, he was manager of the Aerotraffic S.A. in Geneva.

Zurich: Some 27 million overnight stays at hotels, pensions and health resorts were registered in Switzerland last year, it was announced by the Swiss National Tourist Office. An almost two million, or eight per cent, increase over the previous year's total thus resulted in the best twelve-month returns ever recorded in Swiss tourism. It is emphasized that Swiss tourist statistics do not register visitors' nights at small non-resort hotels and inns accommodating a maximum of five guests, or at other popular tourist lodgings, which are generally included in the statistical research elsewhere, such as holiday chalets, youth hostels and cottages for mountaineers. It is estimated that at least 10 million nights have been accounted for by visitors to these types of lodgings — in Canton Grisons alone the 12-month total up to September 30, 1959, was 2.1 million — which would bring Switzerland's 1959 overnight-stay record to close to 40 millions.

* * *

Lucerne: The shortest and most direct trans-Alpine route, Switzerland's St. Gotthard named after a holy man who also was known as St. Godehard, is celebrating the 1000th birthday of its patron-saint in the current year. The Holy Gotthard, at the same time, is the patron-saint of the German city of Hildesheim where he gained immortality as a bishop. Born one thousand years ago at Reichendorf, Bavaria, he was canonized after his death, and the first chapel was dedicated to him at the top of the St. Gotthard Pass towards the end of the 12th century. An International Gotthard Meeting is to be held at Lucerne on July 9th and 10th to commemorate the occasion. The mayors of all important cities along the St. Gotthard route, from Hamburg to Genoa, will be invited to participate in the conference which is being organized by the St. Gotthard Committee, a group of ardent champions for the construction of a St. Gotthard road tunnel to secure all-year-round motor traffic. An inspection tour of the area and a visit to Lugano, the southern gateway to the St. Gotthard, will conclude the Lucerne conference.

Lucerne: No government crisis, major strike or political demonstration is likely to disturb Switzerland's traditional complacency and peace. A crowd of 1,500 youngsters who recently marched in protest through the streets of the picturesque city of Lucerne, therefore, was quite an unusual sight. What was the purpose of their demonstration? To achieve something ultra-new? No, they urged the preservation of something very old — the quaint waterfront of Lucerne alongside the river Reuss, whose architectural unity was threatened by an ultra-modern glass-andchromium office building. This eye-sore in the medieval silhouette of Lucerne's "Old Town" was to replace a beautiful old framework structure. "We have no objection whatever to modern designs in architecture, but we certainly will fight against any attempt to destroy our city's centuries-old architectural monuments," the youngsters argued, and it seems that they have already won: According to unconfirmed reports the endangered riverside house and its entire neighbourhood reaching as far uphill as the tower-studded city-walls, will be placed under monument protection.

Bellinzona: The spring and summer season programmes of Lugano and Locarno, Southern Switzerland's two leading lakeside resorts, are packed with extraordinary events. An International Exhibition of Black-and-White Sketches and Etchings will open at Lugano on April 14th and last till June 12th. Nearby Mendrisio will again attract crowds of visitors to its traditional Maundy Thursday and Good Friday Processions on April 14th and 15th. Staged in the original splendour of historic and religious costumes and displays, they are considered unique for this part of Europe. The "Concerts of Lugano" is the unpretentious name of what could be called an international music festival. This series of gala concerts will begin in April and feature world-famous guest orchestras, conductors and soloists throughout the season. A final highlight of Lugano's tourist season will be reached on Sunday, October 2nd, when the traditional Grape-Harvest Festival culminates in a parade of floats.

THE SWISS AMBASSADOR'S CONGRATULATION TO H.M. THE QUEEN

Madam,

February 20th, 1960.

The Federal Council, on hearing the happy and felicitous news of the birth of His Royal Highness Your son have requested me to beg leave of Your Majesty to offer to You and to His Royal Highness The Prince Philip, Duke of Edinburgh, their sincere good wishes.

May I be permitted at the same time to assure Your Majesty that my wife and I, my Embassy and my compatriots in this country share the feeling of joy which this happy event has brought to Your family and to Your peoples.

I have the honour to remain,
Your Majesty's
Most humble and devoted Servant,
sig. A. Daeniker.

To The Queen's Most Excellent Majesty

FOREIGN OFFICE, S.W.1.

February 29, 1960.

Your Excellency,

I have the honour to refer to Your Excellency's Note of the 19th of February, enclosing for transmission to The Queen a letter conveying the congratulations of the Swiss Federal Council on the happy occasion of the birth of a Royal Prince to Her Majesty.

In reply, I have the honour to inform Your Excellency that this letter has been duly laid before Her Majesty.

I avail myself of this opportunity to transmit to you and Madame Daeniker, to the members of your Embassy, and to the Swiss colony in this country the sincere thanks of my Sovereign for the much appreciated good wishes to which you have given expression.

I have the honour to be,
with the highest consideration,
Your Excellency's obedient Servant, sig. (Secretary of State)

His Excellency,
Monsieur Armin Daeniker,
Swiss Ambassador,
