VARIOUS

A whole century has gone by since the three original cantons perpetuated the name of Friedrich Schiller, the "Bard of William Tell" by an inscription on the "Mythen Stone", a fang of rock jutting out of the water at the eastern end of the Lake of Lucerne. Schiller's great drama of freedom has always enjoyed wide popularity in Switzerland. It has long been a favourite play with both the professional and the amateur stage. An impressive tribute to this drama will be found in the large-scale exhibition entitled "Schiller's William Tell and Switzerland", which is to open at the Pestalozzianum in the Beckenhofgut in Zurich on 21st January.

Dr. Edmund Stadler has put together this splendid exhibition from the treasures of the Swiss National Library in Berne and the Swiss Theatrical Collection which is also housed there. Pictures and illustrations are a particularly prominent feature and these, together with model stages and documents, show that the deeds and destiny of William Tell and the Rütli Oath have been re-enacted on the stage for centuries, and that Schiller's classical drama of freedom is something every Swiss child is taught to appreciate at school.

Geneva. — Fourteen new hotels accommodating a total of some 1,000 guests have been completed in Switzerland in the last 12 months, according to a report from the Swiss Touring Club. They range from the tiny 16-bed Half-Moon Inn, overlooking the river Doubs and the Swiss-French border at the picturesque Jura Mountains town of St. Ursanne, to the ultra-modern 110-bed Walhalla in St. Gall. Three motels have also been added to the list of tourist facilities: "Les Pierrettes" at St. Sulpice on the Lausanne-Geneva highway, the "Bevaix" at the village of the same name off the Yverdon-Neuchâtel road and — somewhat outside the Swiss territory — the Motel in Liechtenstein at Schaan. Under construction are one motel each at Münsingen near Berne and at Chalet à Godet above Lausanne, the rustic "Hôtellerie St. Georges" in the protected historical quarter of Gruyères in Canton Fribourg and the Riviera-style lakeside Hotel Beatus at Merligen on the lake of Thun, designed to accommodate more than 100 holiday-makers. A new type of guesthouse which was successfully introduced by the Touring Club a few years ago, is the "Mot-Hotel" combining the advantages of a conventional hotel with the conveniences of a motel. Connected with a famous old country inn is the Touring Mot-Hotel Kreuz at Sachseln on the lake of Sarnen in central Switzerland. Referred to as fine examples of modern architecture adapted to the scenic surroundings are the Touring Mot-hotels Bellavista at Viramagadino on Lake Maggiore, Canton Ticino, and Schloss Ragaz in the landscaped countryside of Ragaz Spa.

Trogen. — The Pestalozzi Children's Village named after the great Swiss educator, Heinrich Pestalozzi, was established 15 years ago on the outskirts of the town of Trogen as a home for war orphans. It will soon have among its residents 26 refugees from Tibet, namely 21 children, their lama teacher, his wife and a small group of helpers. They have temporarily settled in the Bernese Oberland to await completion of the "Tibetan House" which was expected to be ready by Christmas. "As it is true for all children at Trogen, the Tibetans will be brought up and educated in accordance with their own traditional way of life, culture and religion", explained Pestalozzi Village's founding father, Swiss author Walter Robert Corti, "but they will also get acquainted with the cultures of the other houses. The Dalai Lama — who selected the children and their companions — has expressed his approval of our fundamental pedagogics." Another new building in the village is the International School which has recently been inaugurated.

Einsiedeln, the famous place of pilgrimage, will commemorate on 21st June the death, 1,100 years ago, of one of the most venerable figures in the ecclesiastical history of Switzerland in the early Middle Ages. St. Meinrad came from the Reichenau to the Pre-Alps in search of peace and set up his hermit's cell in the "gloomy wood" in 855. After the pious hermit had been murdered by robbers in 861, a monastic community was founded in the early 10th century on the scene of his death, and it continued to grow until the monumental buildings we see to-day were erected in the Baroque period.

In writing of the 'Vogel Gryff' in Basle, it should be mentioned that this fête actually takes place in Lesser Basle on the right bank of the Rhine. It is a traditional event of the three Companies of Honour of Basle observed every year in strictly prescribed form and with all due dignity, which does not, however, prevent everybody present from enjoying the fun. The "Savage", the "Lion" and the fantastic "Gryphon" are the leading figures. This light-hearted festival falls this year on 20th January.

Glarus. — At a meeting of government representatives from several cantons of North-Eastern Switzerland it was decided to urge the Federal Government in Berne for economic, military and tourist reasons "to expedite plans for the construction of a new railway linking the North-East with the Ticino by way of the Tödi and Greina mountains". The so-called Greina railway project, first submitted to public discussion in 1859 and named after a pass in the High Alps, has thus got into the news again. Its materialization would divert a substantial amount of traffic from the St. Gotthard line which is now being strained almost to capacity. The construction of the huge Tödi-Greina trans-Alpine tunnel at an altitude of less than 3,000 feet above sea-level, moreover, would cut the travelling time between Zurich or St. Gall in the North and Lugano in the South to two-thirds of what it takes now.
