PARLIAMENTARY ELECTIONS 29th October 1967

The number of parliamentary seats for which members will have to be elected for the coming 38th legislative period (1967-1971) will again be 200. 1,249 candidates have been put up for 189 seats, for the seven candidates of Schwyz (3), Glarus (2) and Appenzell ARh (2) have been declared elected, seeing that the candidates did not outnumber the available seats. The four Cantons Uri, Obwalden, Nidwalden and Appenzell IRh which have the majority rule and have one seat each, are not obliged by law to hand in a list. The remaining 18 Cantons have the proportional system and will contest the 189 seats. There are 112 lists as against 107 lists for 190 seats in 1963. Zurich has 401 (35 seats), Berne 261 (33) and Vaud 103 (16) candidates, followed by Aargau with 97 (13 seats) and St. Gall 52 (13). All the other Cantons have fewer than 50 candidates and also fewer seats.

The changes as regards Members of the National Council and the Council of States are considerable. The 37th period began on 2nd December 1963 and will end on 3rd December 1967. In the National Council it began with 59 new members, and ten died in the four years. 17 resigned and two became Federal Councillors. In the Council of States, whose members are elected according to cantonal law and not necessarily at the same time as those of the National Council, two members died and three resigned during the 1963-1967 period. On 29th October, in 15 Cantons, the Councillors of States have to be elected. Of the 30 members at present representing these Cantons, six have resigned. 38 candidates have been nominated so far. The seats for Solothurn and Valais will not be contested, but in the remaining seven Cantons, some pretty tough contests are expected. [A.T.S.]
