philosophy and theory behind democratic government in general. He cited the case of Britain today, saying that the "dictatorship of the majority" into which the country was moving was not really ideal and claimed, like Gilbert a hundred years ago, that the party system was swamping independence of thought.

Dwelling on the problem of government, Lord Selkirk marvelled at the fact that Switzerland was constantly being run by a coalition. He also expressed his admiration at the way political power has in his view been effectively de-centralised in Switzerland. He referred to current concern over the future of the political structure. "I do not know whether the Cantons really have too much power, but I suspect it is untrue to say "den Bunden die Kannonen, die Kultur den Kantonen."

As for the possibility of abandoning neutrality, Lord Selkirk believed there would be sharp divisions if ever the problem came to a head. He said that Switzerland would probably have to abandon its position in the Red Cross organisation and other facets of neutrality. His listeners had the definite impression that he would advise the Swiss against taking such a step. "I believe it is important to us all that the foundation on which Switzerland is built should be continued." The speaker added that the country which André Siegfried called the "heart of central Europe" should follow Shakespeare's motto: "Unto thyself be true then cannot thou be false to no one."

DEPARTURE OF THE CULTURAL ATTACHE

Dr. Franz Birrer, who succeeded Dr. Paul Stauffer as Cultural Attaché at the Embassy early in 1970, is to leave London and take on a new assignment in West Germany. Born in 1932, Dr. Birrer is a citizen of Entlebuch where he received his primary education before attending secondary school at Disentis, in the Grisons. He is a graduate in economic and social sciences and obtained a doctorate in law on the problems of patenting from the University of Fribourg. He was later called to the bar of Lucerne but joined the Political Department in 1961. He trained there and in Geneva for a year before being sent to Paris as a member of the Swiss mission to the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD) where he remained until September, 1966. He then returned to Berne to work in the Section of Political Studies of the Political Affairs Division. He was posted to London in January, 1970, and worked there not only as Cultural Attaché, but also as a specialist in British political affairs. His cultural responsibilities led him to attend virtually every musical, theatrical and artistic event in London involving Swiss artists. Many budding Swiss musicians have enjoyed his co-operation for their Wigmore Hall première. Mr. Birrer will now serve in the same capacity in Switzerland's Embassy in Cologne.

Dr. Birrer is married with three delightful young daughters. We wish the whole family plenty of happiness and success in Germany.

Dr. Birrer's successor as Cultural Attaché will be Mr. Jean-Jacques Indermuehle. He is expected shortly in London.

HENRY FUSELI EXHIBITION

The Friends of the Tate Gallery arranged a private view party to mark the opening of the Henry Fuseli Exhibition still going on in London. The Anglo-Swiss Society was invited to join in this function and many members turned up.

Henry (or Johann Heinrich) Fuseli was an 18th century artist from Zurich who made his career and his name in London where he died in 1825. Born in Zurich in 1741, he came early under the influence of the leading figures of the age of enlightenment in his home town. But it was in Britain that he achieved fame as a most original artist. The Tate Gallery Exhibition, which runs until the end of March, is the first large-scale show of his works in Britain. The exhibition, which was previously on view in Hamburg and is going to Paris, is remarkable and well laid out.

Fuseli's paintings and sketches are wild and tormented while at the same time respectful of classical discipline. Some are reminiscent of Blake, with whom he was closely befriended. All theatre lovers will appreciate his many illustrations of the works of Shakespeare (particularly Macbeth and Hamlet), Dante and Milton. There are also entire rows of illustrations of the Niebelungen and the works of the Greek classics. Fuseli's self-portraits show him as anguished and dreamy — a feature fairly common among other Swiss artists who, like him, have escaped their small environment to seek inspiration and success abroad. Many of the drawings have a sadistic element and can therefore be said to be of modern inspiration. Fuseli was throughout his life concerned with sexual problems and has produced many erotic works but these are not included in the exhibition.

Certainly, we do not remember any exhibition of this size ever devoted to a Swiss artist in London. The Boecklin exhibition held at the Hayward Gallery three years ago and the Klee exhibition held there recently, cannot be compared to this one for its variety and the number of the works on show. We can therefore only recommend it.

February at the Portman Hotel by Mr. Franz J. Fraefel, Swissair's departing General Manager for the UK and Ireland, to introduce his successor, Mr. Louis Nart and his wife. This function was attended by many members of the Swiss business community in London and by several correspondents of Swiss papers. Mr. Fraefel, who has held his London post for the past five years, will take up the newly-created position of Regional Manager, Africa (Southern Countries). This departure will be a sad break with the many friends he has made in London. Swissair officials are rather like diplomats and sent on new assignments in other parts of the world when they have just about had time to settle in a particular country. Mr. Fraefel will have to leave his two teenage children in England because Kenya doesn't provide the educational facilities that would enable them to work for their GCEs. Mr. Nart, who joined Swissair in 1948, was last posted as the company's Manager in Johannesburg.

The Times Shopping Basket

The Times monthly "European Shopping Basket" gave the following prices for Switzerland and Britain during the month of February. Prices are expressed in £ per pound except milk which is for per pint. The first price indicated is for Geneva, the second for London.

Rump steak: 2.29-1.16; Pork chops: 1.36-0.69; potatoes: 5p-4p; butter: 70p-28p; margarine: 44p-27p; cheese: 98p-41p; chicken: 53p-27p; fresh cod: 76p-54½p; bread: 25p-8p; milk: 11p-5p.

The above list shows that food prices in Geneva are at least twice as high as those of London. This list of course doesn't reflect the true picture since wages in Geneva are considerably higher and the cost of accommodation cheaper.
