ZURICH AIRPORT GETS RAIL LINK

FROM June 1, Zurich Airport will be fully integrated in the Swiss Federal Railway network, with 100 daily train connections to all parts of Switzerland and neighbouring countries. The journey from the centre of Zurich to the airport via the new link will take a mere 10 minutes.

It is estimated that about one-fifth of the total eight million passengers a year will make use of this new facility.

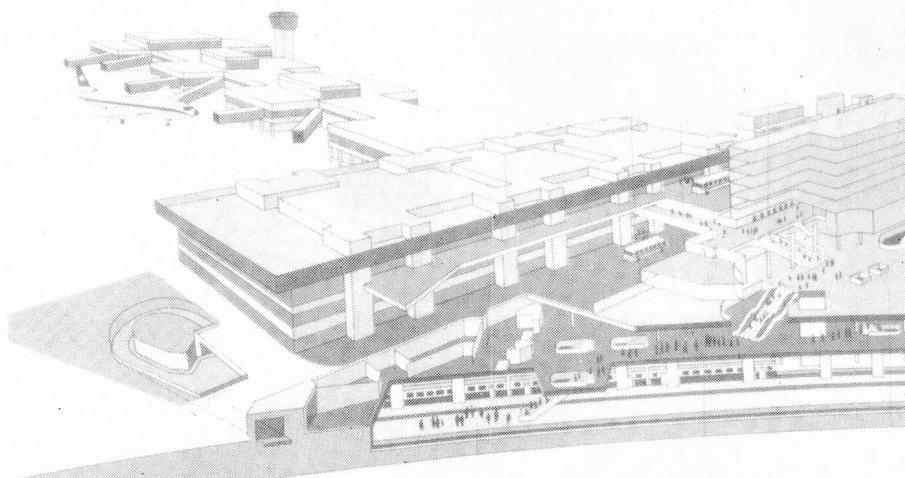

A new dual-track line, four miles long and running for the most part underground, will connect up the airport with the railway network.

The new rail link – costing around Sfr. 300 million, will provide direct connections to and from Berne, Fribourg, Lausanne, St. Gallen and Winterthur, as well as in part to Lucerne, Chur, the Bernese Oberland and the Ticino. In 1982 the number of towns with direct connections to and from the airport will increase. As Switzerland has a very compact railway network, places not directly connected with the airport can be easily reached via Zurich.

Trains will run from and to the city every 20 minutes. The fare for this distance will be cheaper than it is at the moment by bus – Sfr. 3.20 second class, and Sfr. 4.80 first class.

The Swissair bus service between Zurich Main Station and the airport will be discontinued.

At the airport the new railway station situated under Terminal B offers a full range of services to the traveller. There are ticket, baggage registration and currency exchange facilities, as well as an information desk, a quality restaurant and numerous shops. Escalators, lifts and walkways

From plane to train via the new link provide easy access from the railway station to both Terminals A and B. Special luggage trolleys adapted for use on the escalators are available to passengers.

Air passengers coming from customs in either Terminal A or B will find a convenient baggage office facing the customs exit, from which they can send their baggage direct to any Swiss destination for a fee of Sfr 5 per piece when holding the appropriate rail ticket.

With its integration into the federal railway network, Zurich Airport becomes a lot closer to the country's main tourist and commercial centres.

• A provisional timetable called "Fly-Rail: the best trains from and to Zurich Airport" is available free of charge from the Swiss National Tourist Office.

Unique system speeds baggage

IF YOUR return flight is booked from Zurich Airport and you start out from a Swiss resort, you may now be able to register your baggage at the local railway station direct to your final destination.

Under the new system, which is unique to Switzerland, you hand your baggage in at the station and obtain a baggage check covering both your train and air journeys.

Swiss Federal Railways and Swissair will transfer your baggage at Zurich from the train to the airport and on to your flight.

No need to worry about porters, trolleys, etc. At the airport you can check in at any counter, including the special Express counter for passengers with hand luggage only.

The charge for "Fly-Luggage" is Sfr. 5 per piece of luggage for passengers holding rail tickets, and Sfr. 10 for those without a rail ticket.

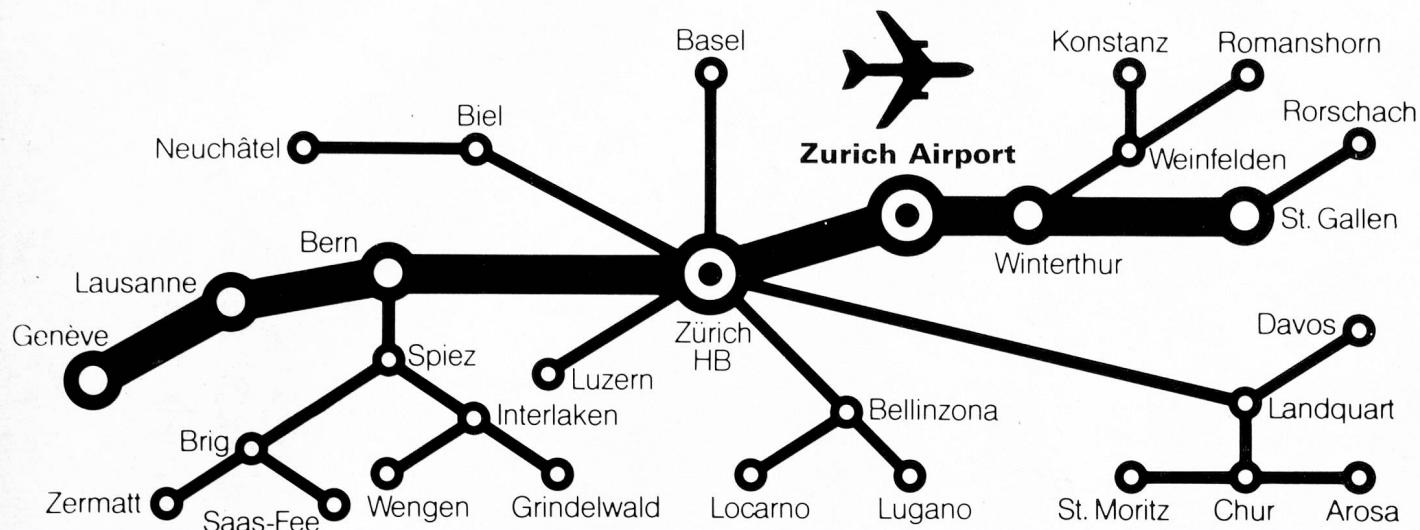

The new facility is only available to passengers departing by air from Zurich Airport by Swissair and airlines for which Swissair is the handling agent.

Stations at present accepting "Fly-Luggage" are Aarau, Arosa, Basle SBB, Berne, Chur, Davos-Dorf, Davos-Platz, Engelberg, Fribourg, Grindelwald, Interlaken-Ost, Interlaken-West, Locarno, Lucerne, Lugano, Muernen, St. Gallen, St. Mortiz, Thun, Wengen.

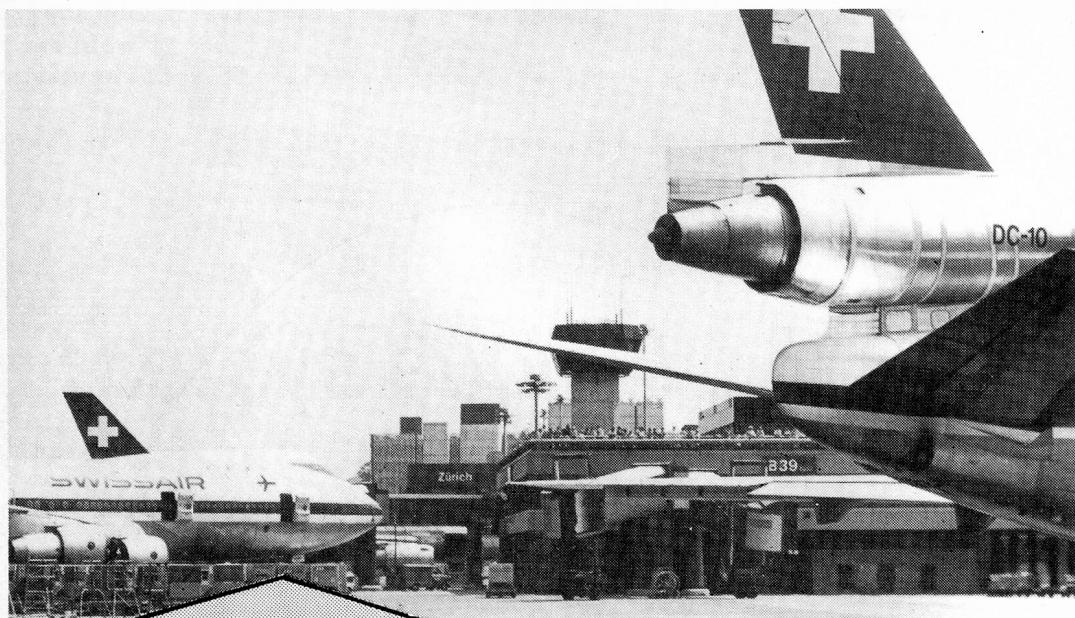

A royal inauguration

THE first passengers to use the new rail link were Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip when they arrived at Zurich airport for the start of the State visit to Switzerland on April 29 – a month before the line was being opened to the public. From Zurich the royal party travelled to Berne to meet the Swiss Federal Council.

A UNIQUE feature of Zurich airport's new railway station is that it is fully integrated into the national and international express train network of the Swiss Federal Railways. In other words, the section Zurich Airport to Zurich Main Station is not a branch line but forms part of the east-west main line axis.

When the airport line is opened to traffic the number of air passengers will have reached the eight million mark. Most of them will be seen off or met by relatives or friends. And there are thousands of visitors, too, who just want to watch the activities and catch the atmosphere of one of the world's busiest airports.

The Zurich region is the starting point, or destination, for about half the air passengers. The rest travel to or from other regions of Switzerland or adjacent areas abroad.

These figures underline the importance of the airport not only for Zurich but for the whole of Switzerland. The need to provide a link with the efficient railway network is obvious.

Direct express trains linking Geneva, Berne, Zurich, Winterthur, St. Gallen/Romanshorn will all be stopping at the airport. And there will be an additional shuttle service between the airport and Zurich's main station.

THE hills and dark forests of the Jura tempt the holidaymaker to take a break from the daily round. SWITZERLAND now possesses its own camera museum. A new Swiss museum has just been opened at Vevey, on the shores of the lake of Geneva, famed for its Wine-growers' Festival, which is held every 25 years, and its world-famous school of photography.

Swiss cameras are very prominent in the display and are in fact by far the most numerous. Many of them were made by watchmakers.

More than 800 items have been collected, making it possible to keep changing the exhibits. Among the most original of these is the biggest, which measures 13 feet long, and the smallest, just over one and a half inches.

Another, the Photosphere, patented in plana, St. Moritz, Pontresina, Celerina, Samedan, Zuoz and Bad Scuol.

Craftsmen at work

THE summer and winter resort of Château-d'Oex (Lake of Geneva region) is situated in the heart of a big valley known in particular for its many craftsmen. And for the first time this summer the Tourist Office is offering a package arrangement which will include different guided tours to see the craftsmen of the region at work. This will be an opportunity to get to know a number of very typical crafts.

Summer visitors will be able to visit a restorer of antique local furniture, generally made of painted pinewood, as well as other craftsmen or artists who weave, spin wool or make much prized pictures with paper cut-outs, in this way keeping alive another typical tradition.

This "Edelweiss" package also includes a visit to the Vieux Pays d'En-haut Museum which shows how life was in old times, and an excursion to a chalet in an alpine pasture where cheese is still made according to ancestral processes.

The price of the Edelweiss package, available from June 1 to October 4, ranges from Sfr. 252 to Sfr. 429 (seven nights), varying according to the category of hotel and the period chosen.

FARM HOLIDAYS WITH A DIFFERENCE

RURAL districts have always attracted craftsmen, and more and more city dwellers seem to want to visit them. Now the Payerne Tourist Office, in the north of the Lake Geneva Region, has decided to set up for the first time a special holiday package. It includes accommodation in farms or cottages, and courses in weaving, pottery, ceramics, etc., given by the local inhabitants.

At the disposal of tourists this year are about 50 farms and cottages at prices starting from Sfr. 130 a week.

Those who like to get to know the district where they are staying should take the opportunity of sightseeing around the lakes of Neuchâtel and Morat. The large Roman remains, Romanesque and Gothic churches, as well as medieval castles, are well worth a visit. Sports practised in and around Payerne include swimming, sailing, water skiing, fishing, riding and tennis. Further information: Tourist Office, 1530 Payerne, Switzerland. Tel: (037) 61 15 15.
