PATIENCE REWARDED AT LAST

On 17th February, 1972, St. Ann's Church in Abbey Orchard Street, Westminster was closed down for redevelopment and the chaplain for the Swiss has been rehoused at 48 Great Peter Street from where he conducted the services. The urgent need for a chapel which is of easy approach and would serve the Catholics and the Protestants among the many young Swiss became more and more apparent.

The necessary renovation work at the John Southworth Centre provided the space. The Swiss Bishops — through the Swiss Catholic Lenten Fund — and the Federation of Swiss Protestant Churches together in a generous gesture of solidarity provided the necessary funds.

At long last the patience of the members of the Swiss churches in London has been rewarded. On Saturday, 19th February the Swiss Catholic Mission's new chapel of St. John was officially consecrated in the presence of our Ambassador and Mme. Thalmann and other distinguished guests. The consecration was celebrated by the Apostolic Delegate, the Rt. Rev. Archbishop Bruno Heim, assisted by the Bishop of Fulham and Gibraltar to give the event a truly ecumenical flavour.

With the completion of this small but beautiful chapel the members of the Swiss churches in London once again have a home to call their own.

Artistically the centre is well worth a visit. Members of the Devon Guild of Craftsmen, led by Peter Tysoe, produced the unusual stained glass windows, while Alan Peters designed and fashioned the furniture.

Building began in April, 1976. On 28th July, 1976, the first divine service was held while the finishing work went on. Some difficulty with builders, etc., have caused the official opening to be deferred to the middle of February, 1977.

The centre's location also emphasises its ecumenical nature, it is situated almost mid-way between Westminster Cathedral and Westminster Abbey.
