TRACKING THOSE TROLLEYS

IAN ATHEY, AS WELL AS BEING THE EXTREMELY CAPABLE SRS TREASURER, A RAIL ENTHUSIAST AND ALL ROUND GOOD EGG, IS VERY INTERESTED IN BUSES, PARTICULARLY TROLLEYBUSES. A VARIED SELECTION FROM AROUND SWITZERLAND FOLLOWS:

In September 1988, Neuchâtel trolleybus number 124 (Saurer?) awaits passengers for Gare CFF. By then it was one of a few carrying what was at the time the old livery. The other buses in view are in the later orange.

Fribourg, June 1986. Saurer no. 39 in a "modernized" livery arrives at the railway station.

VBZ number 94, an FBW articulated trolleybus enters the city and passes Zürich HBhf in June 1977. The destination blind has probably already been changed for the return journey to Schlieren.

vehicles painted in this yellow livery at a time when some municipal operators, including Bern, were changing to an orange scheme.
Fortunately the orange livery did not last in Bern.

The proper SVB livery!

Emmenbrücke. June

Lausanne. TL number 741, an FBW trolleybus departs from opposite the railway station. By June 1985 TL were improving their orange livery by adding cream relief.

Lausanne again, but in June 2003. Advertising liveries were to be found on buses before SBB adopted the idea. Here TL 757, probably a Hess bodied FBW, crosses Grand Pont on its way into the city.

Schaffhausen, on one of the few wet days of our June 2003 holiday. Number 114, a Hess bodied artic, fitted with Siemens electrical equipment, departs from the Bhf on route I. Does this route come to a bit of a dead end?
