Elipsos Cross Border Trains

Special Offer Prices - HO/OO scale models

Elipsos, established in 2001 in a joint operation by French and Spanish rail companies, runs four "trenhotels", three of them named after Spanish artists; the Francisco de Goya night-train between Madrid and Paris, the Joan Miro between Barcelona and Paris and the Salvador Dali between Barcelona and Milan. The Pau Casals, which covers the 14 hour route between Barcelona and Zurich, is named after the Catalan cellist and conductor.

Last year a total of 330,000 travellers chose to take their routes rather than fly between cities. The trains offer reclining seats, shared or private cabins, and a dining car.

The coaches are short, making them ideal for a model railway layout - or if you have the space you can expand the set using add on packs, as regular services can include 28 coaches!
