

Zeitschrift: Theologische Zeitschrift
Herausgeber: Theologische Fakultät der Universität Basel
Band: 47 (1991)
Heft: 1

Artikel: In Memoriam : Karl Ludwig Schmidt (1891-1956)
Autor: Moessner, David P.
DOI: <https://doi.org/10.5169/seals-878132>

Nutzungsbedingungen

Die ETH-Bibliothek ist die Anbieterin der digitalisierten Zeitschriften auf E-Periodica. Sie besitzt keine Urheberrechte an den Zeitschriften und ist nicht verantwortlich für deren Inhalte. Die Rechte liegen in der Regel bei den Herausgebern beziehungsweise den externen Rechteinhabern. Das Veröffentlichen von Bildern in Print- und Online-Publikationen sowie auf Social Media-Kanälen oder Webseiten ist nur mit vorheriger Genehmigung der Rechteinhaber erlaubt. Mehr erfahren

Conditions d'utilisation

L'ETH Library est le fournisseur des revues numérisées. Elle ne détient aucun droit d'auteur sur les revues et n'est pas responsable de leur contenu. En règle générale, les droits sont détenus par les éditeurs ou les détenteurs de droits externes. La reproduction d'images dans des publications imprimées ou en ligne ainsi que sur des canaux de médias sociaux ou des sites web n'est autorisée qu'avec l'accord préalable des détenteurs des droits. En savoir plus

Terms of use

The ETH Library is the provider of the digitised journals. It does not own any copyrights to the journals and is not responsible for their content. The rights usually lie with the publishers or the external rights holders. Publishing images in print and online publications, as well as on social media channels or websites, is only permitted with the prior consent of the rights holders. Find out more

Download PDF: 07.08.2025

ETH-Bibliothek Zürich, E-Periodica, <https://www.e-periodica.ch>

IN MEMORIAM

Karl Ludwig Schmidt (1891–1956)

Vorabdruck eines Artikels für das Dictionary of Biblical Interpretation mit freundlicher Erlaubnis des Herausgebers John H. Hayes und der Abingdon Press, Nashville TN.

I

Born in Frankfurt a. M., February 5, 1891, K. L. Schmidt studied philology and theology in Marburg under, among others, W. Hermann, before becoming assistant to A. Deissmann in Berlin and Privatdozent there in 1918. In 1921 K. L. Schmidt was made professor of NT at Giessen and filled similar positions in Jena, 1925, and in Bonn, 1929, until 1933 when, because of his opposition to the national socialists, he was one of the first deposed from his post and compelled to leave Germany. In 1935, after serving Swiss pastores, he was appointed professor of NT at Basel until illness forced his retirement in 1953 and death in 1956. From 1922–37 he edited Theologische Blätter, and in 1945 founded Basel's Theologische Zeitschrift whose editor he remained until 1952.

K. L. Schmidt's numerous books, articles, and sermons (see Works) cluster about two dynamic poles, 1. the Gospels, and 2. the church.

1. In his ground-breaking Habilitationsschrift, Der Rahmen der Geschichte Jesu (1919), he pioneered insights which became fundamental to the emerging form-critical method. Confirming J. Wellhausen – the canonical Gospels were collections of independent smaller units – he demonstrated further that the introductory topographical and chronological details of these more or less fixed units were the “framing” formulations of the collectors of these pericopes, i.e. the evangelists. In general, the frames contain little of historical value and the resulting composite of Jesus' words and deeds is a secondary, nonhistorical life portrait. Thus Rahmen, along with the studies of M. Dibelius (1919) and R. Bultmann (1921), drove an even larger spike into the coffin of the ‘life of Jesus movement.’ The Gospels must be regarded, rather, as essentially church productions from living oral tradition units which, varying in form, must be tied genetically to the particular life forms and functions (esp. worship) of the various church communities (i.e. the Sitz im Leben). The Gospels as a whole then should be construed as folk literature (Kleinliteratur) and confused neither with the developmental historical thrusts of the ancient lives (bioi/vitae) and memoirs (apomnémoneumata) nor with the higher literary circles which produced those biographies.

These latter conclusions K. L. Schmidt developed programmatically in “Die Stellung der Evangelien...” in the Gunkel Festschrift (1921) (see Works). The closest analogues to the Gospels are the Dr. Faust collections, certain ecclesiastical ‘lives of the saints,’ and medieval legends of the chasd. Characteristic of all this “popular” literature are the secondary, nondescript links between the smaller units which almost never play a significant role in the larger presentation and tend to psychologize the relation of one incident to the next (as Luke does with Mark). Hence corresponding to this folk form or format the Gospels are communal productions of faith, cultically and kerygmatically generated, shaped, and refined, whose authors are more editors than distinct literary personalities. He thus turns W. Wrede’s thesis on its head: Mark is not a function of the history of dogma but rather dogma is a product of the multi-layered experiences of the church in which Mark himself stands. Though layers of these traditions (esp. written sources) can be chronologically delineated, these layers bear no intrinsic relation to what is more or less historical. For it is the very nature of folk literature to transcend the objective–subjective continuum of historical authenticity. In his “Jesus Christ” article of RGG² (1929) he adds a theological touchstone: all the Gospel traditions are stamped by church folk convinced that God through the death and resurrection of Israel’s Messiah has appeared on earth to establish the eschatological people of the old and new covenants. He thus initiated much that was to be pursued in later sociological approaches and approximated certain insights of the subsequent ‘new quest of the historical Jesus’.

2. Of his many lexicographical-theological studies of biblical concepts, K. L. Schmidt’s greatest contribution came in the notion of the “church” (Die Kirche des Urchristentums, 1927, and subsequent articles – see Works). Ecclesia, taken primarily from the LXX, represents the Hebrew qehal (Aram. kenischta) of Yahweh, the people of God, of which the NT church is the fulfilled OT assembly. Building upon F. Kattenbusch’s analysis, he showed that in the NT in general, a local congregation embodied the whole people of God. This means that the NT church presented itself as a remnant which remained solidly within Israel, yet as its fulfillment. Jesus himself as Messiah gathered his representatives of the twelve tribes and ultimately gave this “remnant” self-understanding over to them and to the subsequent church. Paul acknowledged the priority of the twelve and of Jerusalem but inveighed against the excessive honoring of human personalities coordinated with the hierachal structuring of authority. These notions, through which he made the “church” a critical theological category for NT scholarship, remained central in all of his subsequent work on the “city” and “state,” in his dialogue with M. Buber (see Works), and provided a potent counter to the theologians of the Third Reich.

II. Works

- Der Rahmen der Geschichte Jesu. Literarkritische Untersuchungen zur ältesten Jesus-Überlieferung, 1919 (reprint 1964, 1967).
- Die Pfingsterzählung und das Pfingstereignis, Arbeiten zur Religionsgeschichte des Urchristentums, 1.2, 1919.
- Die Stellung der Evangelien in der allgemeinen Liturgiesgeschichte, in: EUCHARISTERION. Hermann Gunkel zum 60. Geburtstage, ed. H. Schmidt, 1923/2, 50–134.
- Die Stellung des Apostels Paulus im Urchristentum, in: Vorträge der theologischen Konferenz zu Giessen, 39. Folge. 1924, 3–17.
- Die Kirche des Urchristentums. Festgabe für Adolf Deissmann, ed. K. L. Schmidt, 1927, 258–319.
- Der Apostel Paulus und die antike Welt, in: Bibliothek Warburg, Vorträge 1924–1925 (1927) 38–64.
- Formgeschichte in: RGG² 2 (1928) 638–640.
- Geschichtsschreibung II: Im NT, in: RGG² 2 (1928) 1115–1117.
- Jesus Christus in: RGG² 3 (1929) 110–151 (= “Jesus Christ” in: Twentieth Century Theology in the Making, ed. J. Pelikan, 1969/1, 93–168).
- Zusatz des Herausgebers der TBl zu: Evangelische Kirche und Völkerverständigung. Eine Erklärung. Von P. Althaus und E. Hirsch, TBl 10 (1931) 178–179.
- (In Verbindung mit Martin Buber) Kirche, Staat, Volk, Judentum. Zwiegespräch im jüdischen Lehrhaus in Stuttgart am 14. Januar 1933, TBl 12 (1933) 257–274.
- basileus, basileia*, etc. in: ThWNT 1 (1933) ET 1964, 564–593.
- Zum theologischen Briefwechsel zwischen Karl Barth und Gerhard Kittel, TBl 13 (1934) 328–334.
- Das Gegenüber von Kirche und Staat in der Gemeinde des Neuen Testaments. Öffentliche Antrittsvorlesung an der Universität Basel am 2. Dez. 1936, TBl 16 (1937) 1–16.
- Le Ministère et les ministères dans l'église du Nouveau Testament. Les données bibliques et celles de la tradition, RHPR 17 (1937) 313–336; Germ. trans. in: Neues Testament–Judentum–Kirche (see Bibliography).
- ecclesia* in ThWNT 3 (1938) ET 1965, 501–536 (= The Church. Bible Key Words, 1950).
- Die Polis in Kirche und Welt, 1939.
- Der Sinn der neutestamentlichen Apostelgeschichte, In Extremis 6 (1940) 33–48.
- Ein Gang durch den Galaterbrief, Theologische Studien (Basel) 11/12, ²1947.
- Die Judenfrage im Lichte der Kapitel 9–11 des Römerbriefes, Theologische Studien (Basel) 13, 2 ²1946.
- Kanonische und apokryphe Evangelien und Apostelgeschichten, ATANT 5 (1944).
- Aus der Johannes-Apokalypse, dem letzten Buch der Bibel, 1946.
- Das Pneuma Hagion als Person und als Charisma, in: ErJb 13 (1945) 187–235.
- Die Natur- und Geistkräfte im paulinischen Erkennen und Glauben, in: ErJb 14 (1946) 87–143.

- Homo imago Dei im Alten und Neuen Testament, in: ErJb 15 (1947) 149–195.
- Die Bildersprache in der Johannes-Apokalypse, Universitas 3 (1948) 1153–1158; 1281–1285.
- Jerusalem als Urbild und Abbild, in: ErJb 18 (1950) 207–248.
- “Nicht über das hinaus, was geschrieben steht!” (1Kor 4,6)”, in: In memoriam Ernst Lohmeyer, ed. W. Schmauch, 1951, 101–109.
- Neues Testament–Judentum–Kirche: Kleine Schriften, ed. G. Sauter; Theologische Bücherei 69, 1981 (7 articles repr. with biographical sketch and complete bibliography).
- Bibliography. O. Cullmann, Karl Ludwig Schmidt 1891–1956, ThZ 12 (1956) 1–9.
- W. G. Kümmel, The New Testament: The History of the Investigation of Its Problems, 1970, ET 1972, 327–330, 394–395, 398, 450, 489.
- J. Schmid, Karl Ludwig Schmidt, LTK 9, col. 434.
- P. Vielhauer, Karl Ludwig Schmidt, in: 150 Jahre Rheinische Friedrich-Wilhelms-Universität zu Bonn 1818–1968 (1968) 190–214 (shortened repr. in Neues Testament–Judentum–Kirche (see above, Works) 13–36).

David P. Moessner, Atlanta