Smart simplicity and an exquisite note of freshness are still the main features of this year's summer fashions. It is still right to be trim and demure.

Crisp, gleaming white remains the most practical wear. Once again we must salute the embroiderers of St. Gall for the magnificent and infinitely varied collections of beautiful designs and lovely novelties they have spread before our dazzled eyes this year. Their inherited, age-old experience has made them past masters of their art; not a whit less enthusiastic this season, they have created perfect master-pieces, provocative in their elegance and lasting simplicity.

For several seasons, lingerie styles have been in vogue, and they are always charming. Lace, which was once woman's most becoming accessory, Broderie Anglaise and feather-stitching have come into their own again.

The cover of the present edition reproduces an old Venetian lace imitation reserved for a Paris couturier.

Diaphanous St. Gall organdies make delicious gowns. Lingerie blouses of finest lawn, in simple and distinctive styles, are trimmed with dainty lace frills about the neck and wrists, and sometimes on the bodice too. Their lovely freshness and transparency are youth personified.

And there are muslins too, with most novel designs embroidered in tone on tone, in black on white or in gay colours on plain grounds. Or you may choose lawns embroidered in silk, or printed with all-over geometrical or floral designs and even sprigged with posies. Their possibilities are infinite ; they make up into most delightful plain or fancy blouses which look so becoming with the fashionable and practical skirt. Here again are more luxurious fabrics for dinner gowns and dance frocks, perfectly suited to billowing styles. Touches of crisp, white lingerie lend a personal note of elegance to every well-dressed woman's wardrobe : filmy scarves, jabots, collars and cuffs, and even millinery trimmings. St. Gall embroideries in all qualities offer an infinite choice for summer days. They are always charming in their elegance, their gaiety and originality.

In spite of their fineness and apparent fragility, these wonderful fabrics practically never wear out and always retain their fresh crispness. Besides, they have the great advantage of being easily laundered.

This year again, Swiss designers, who are never at a loss for new inspirations, have many new fancy fabrics to offer : organdies covered with delicate arabesques or irregular polka dots, voiles gaily sprigged with primroses, violets or wild flowers in rose, violet, cyclamen or blue.

The St. Gall embroidery industry is essentially Swiss. It is the outcome of the inborn good taste and consummate artistry of manufacturers who have always specialized in producing delightful novelties, well-fitted to enchant their international clientele.

It is an age-old industry which has always kept up with the times. Its creations are never commonplace, but ever audacious and new.
