Miscellanea Hispano-Judaica II

(The first part of this study appeared in VRom. 16, 224–245)

I hope this further selection of Judaeo-Spanish words will serve to show yet more clearly the mixed character of this language which is without a literary norm. I know of nobody writing in Judaeo-Spanish, before the twentieth century, who did so because he was proud of it. It was used, though worthy only of contempt in comparison with Hebrew, because everyone, women and children included, could understand it. Writers have no hesitation in inventing words on the Spanish model, or in making large numbers of calques on Hebrew. The result is a crude language from which all stylistic elegance is conspicuously absent, but which is a delight to the philologist.

abatir 'humble; conquer, subdue'; 'whisper': i ansí verēs de akavidarvos de no gritarlo ni abatirlo porke su esklamasiión se siente en los sielos (Meam Loez).

abatisión (Salon.) 'degradation; humiliation': salió entre sus ermanos ke son los ĵudiós i vido sus abatisión . . . i lioró de verlos (Meam Loez); 'mansuetude, meekness': las olas . . . se akedan kon abatisión grande, se akodran el komando del śy't (Heb. 'God'). Chérézli lists only abatimiento 'abattement'.

abolontado 'flighty, wilful, of unpredictable behaviour': el bēkôr (Heb. 'first born') sulioo era mui loko i abolontado (Meam Loez). This is presumably a hybrid of J.Span. (a)bolar 'fly' and of beluntad 'will'.

adormisiión 'sleep; heaviness of eyelids': tú A. nuestro diio, rei del mundo, el pasán suenio de mis ožos i adormisiión de mis párpapos (Meam Loez). Cf. q[ue] adormecimiento de A. cayo sobre ellos, I Sam. 26, 12 (Ferrara); y echo A. dio adormidura sobre el hombre, Gen. 2, 21 (ib.); i ečo A. diio adormimiento sobre el ombre (Smyrna 1838); Morocco atormesimiento 'adormecimiento' (Benoiel, BRAE 14, 574). The DAut. describes adormimiento as "voz antiquada".

adrir (Salon.) 'kemar, burn'. Cf. Const. adrir (Yahuda, RFE 2, 357), but y ardera ala vacca, Num. 19, 5 (Ferrara); para arderla, Judg. 9, 52 (ib.); i su perkantadura perkantadura de adredor (Mishnah) 'their hiss the hiss of a serpent'.

aguado, -da 'wet, liquid': en la porfundina dela mar ke es mui aguada (Meam Loez).

agužas, azerse las karnes 'get gooseflesh': i su grito era ke se azilian las karnes algužas de sentirla, ma (Ital. 'but') ninguno le tuvo piiadad (Meam Loez); en meldando . . . lo ke le akontesiió . . . el puerpo me se fizo agužas (Salon. written source) 'as I read what happened to him my flesh crept'.

ağustamiento, ağustar v. ğusto, -ta.

ağazar 'aplatir' (Chérézli); ahajar [ağazar] 'aplastar' (Éstrugo, Sefardies, p. 94). Corominas (DCEC I, 67, s. ajar) lists Old Span. afajar and ahajar (Nebrija 1492) 'desmenuzar, triturar'.

Ağazar is unknown in Salonica where, however, esğacıar 'squash, flatten out' is used, cf. esğacıar 'écraser' (Chérézli), Bulg. ~ 'estropear', which Wagner (RFE 34, 53) suggested might represent Ital. schiacciare 'crush, squash, bruise'. Somewhat similar in form and meaning to ağazar and esğacıar is Bitolj isğasar 'pulverize', which Luria (RHisp. 79, 553) related to Turk. ğasara 'to make small' [I find no corresponding form in Red-house], presumably from Arab. ğasara 'amincir, rendre fin', from which one would expect J.Span. fazer hašara* or, perhaps, hašarear*.

It seems probable that aḥažar, eṣḥačar and iṣḥašar are all connected one with another.

akarar-se kon alguno 'meet face to face': por esto tangan kargo deno akararsen kon turka o kristiiana (Meam Loez); es menester tener kargo de no akararse kon eliiás kara kon kara (ib.); akarar 'confronter' (Chérézli).

akomidar 'make ready, prepare; place ready to hand': pero Nōaḥ, siendo era mui inḡeniozo, les akomidó todos los aparežos ke son meneslerozos para la ovra de la tierra (Meam Loez); después ke akavó Nōaḥ de salir de la tēbā (Heb. 'ark') i akomidó kada koza en su lugar (ib.); Salon. akomidar 'aḡuntar'; akomidar-se 'to be made (ready)': el treser día se akomidó este mundo (Meam Loez); akomidado, -da 'in good order, well-arranged; well-built': le izo quesos bien akomidados como una fragua bien ordenada (Meam Loez); viendo a ditos mansevovs bien akomidados i mui ermozos i allos como pinos (ib.). This dissimilated form of acomodar does not occur in Bosnia: yamó a loz mosus k'akomodin el jǎkir (Baruch, RFE 17, 145).

akorrido, -da 'korrido de prisa, in a hurry, running': Salon. todos akorridoz i asegeidos detrás de la pará 'all of them in hot pursuit of money'; estavan akoridos munčo detrás de sensiia del yāwān (Heb. 'Greece') [Trezo-ro de Israel, p. 121]; todo ken va akorido detrás de la moneda (Meam Loez).

akostar 'pitch (a tent)': i a Yaeāqōb le diše: "la tierra ke tú liiazien sovre eliia a li la enprezentaré", i buškó lugar para akostar su tienda i no topó (Meam Loez).

alaud (אלאוד) 'a musical instrument' translates Heb. nebel 'id.' in the Smyrna 1838 Bible: i delante de elios alaud i adufle i kantavlyna i viguela, I Sam. 10, 5, i sera viguela i alaud i adufle i kantavlyna, Isa. 5, 12, etc. The spelling with reduplicated alef suggests the pronunciation alaúd*, corresponding to Arab. al-eūd > Span. laúd, Old Port. alaúde (Steiger, Hispano- árabe, p. 282), Old Span. alaúd, alaiút (DCEC III, 53, s. laúd). The Ferrara Bible translates Heb. nebel by gayta and the Const. 1873 version by navla, Span. nabla. Corominas (DCEC III, 487) derives nabla from Gk. $\nu\acute{\alpha}\beta\lambda\alpha$ and points out that the Academy Dictionary of 1914 refers to Span. nebel as a variant—this nebel would appear to be our Hebrew word.

aldarve. Cf. cayen los aldarves, se alevantan los muladares, quoted by Saporta (Refranero, p. 78), who correctly recognizes this as adarve < Arab. ad-darb (> Old Span. adarue, Port. adarve, Cat. adarb, Neuvonen, Studia Orientalia 10, 141/42). By confusion with (f)aldar, the proverb becomes unintelligible in Bitolj: Cayin luz jaldaris, s'alivanten luz muladaris (Luria, RHisp. 81, 259), Const. Callen los aldares (pour adarves), se alevantan los muladares (Foulché-Delbosc, RHisp. 2, 317). Molho (Lit. Sej., p. 28) has caeron los altares, se alevantaron los muladares.

aleprado, -da 'leprous': i la sakó i ek su mano aleprada de una sarna blanka como la nieve (Meam Loez), but su mano leprosa como la nieue, Exod. 4, 6 (Ferrara), uaron leproso, Lev. 13, 44 (ib.) and leprozo in subsequent Bibles.

alhamoreado. Molho (Lit. Sej., p. 124) quotes alhamoreado por el vino, which he explains by 'acolorado' (p. 377). Can this be a hybrid of Arab. al- + Heb. hāmôr 'donkey' + Span. eado, i.e. 'befuddled, behaving in an asinine fashion'? Or should we perhaps see in it also something of Arab. hamrā 'red'?

alma, por 'gratis, free': tanto por moneda, tanto por alma (Meam Loez).

alsafrán, asafrán, safrán m. and f. 'saffron'. Cf. ¿Quién te hizo cuzinera?—La [sic] alsafrán y la pimienta (Molho, Lit. Sej., p. 53), Salon. el asafrá (used by two old women), Morocco asafrán (Benoliel, BRAE 14, 573), Bitolj Quen tjeni muchu safrán eche a las senes (Luria, RHisp. 81, 269). Yahuda (RFE 2, 353)—a native of Istanbul—was in error when he stated that the Salonica form was safrá, identical with Cat. safrà. Cf. Old Span. (a)çafrán, Port. açafrão, Cat. safrà, çafrà < Arab. zae- farān (Steiger, Hispano-árabe, p. 118, 145), Old Arag. çafran (Pottier, VRom. 10, 218).

albeyota (quoted by aged native of Salonica): sera i triaka i albeyota. Cf. sus gameliios lievantes espesíia i triaka i abeliota, Gen. 37, 25 (Smyrna 1838), Morocco albeyota 'bellota' (Benoiel, BRAE 14, 569). Grünbaum, p. 11, note 5, quotes arbello-tas, bellotas (Amsterdam 1682), abelota (Belgrade 1865), and Hauptmann (RPhil. 5, 164) observes that Alba Bible vellotas and Escorial I. j. 3 bellota are popular selections for Heb. lōl 'laudanum, eistus'.

ambar 'hold of a ship': verés en los ke van por mar ke algunos les agrada estar dientro del anbar de la nave por ser lugar seguro de luvia (Meam Loez); ambar 'cale' (Chérézli) < Turk. (< Persian) ambar, ambar 'id.' (Redhouse, p. 207a).

ambára (Salon.) 'bead': un yadrán (Turk. gerdan) de ambáras 'a bead necklace; oriental rosary made of yellow amber'; la ambára ['grain du chapelet'] (Subak, Salon., p. 14). Our word is presumably a hybrid of Old Span. ambra (v. DCEC, s. ámbar) + mod. Gk. ἀμβρα 'amber' + ἀμβραγρίς 'amberggris'. (I assume that 'amber' and 'amberggris' are confused.)

aplikar 'specify, state, enumerate in detail': i enel šēṭār (Heb. 'document') eskriuió 'ādār (Heb. 'month of Adar') sólo, ino aplikó en kual 'ādār (Meam Loez); es ovligo de aplikar el pekado ke izo (ib.) 'it is an obligation to specify what sin he committed'; podía akurtar la avla diziendo "vernás tú kon tu familiia" i no tenia hekrēah (Heb. 'need') de aplikar los izos i las mužeres (ib.); ke sierto le aria konbite grande de munčas komidas i no konviene aplikar pan i uino (ib.).

aprestar 'be of advantage, value': todo ken afirma šabbāt le apresta esta espesíia, ma ken no quadra šabbāt no le aze ningún provečo (Meam Loez) 'this herb is of use to anyone who keeps the Sabbath but not to anyone who does not'; siendo [la tiera] aguada no apresta para nada (ib.); aun ke mos paresen ke no aprestan para nada, komo las moškas (ib.); ke el lēna'y del ečizero para ke apreste su ečizo es hekrēah ke el esté aparado i afirmado sus pies sobre la tiera (ib.) 'for the wizard's stipulation is, so that his spell may work, that he must be standing up and have both feet firmly on the ground’.

aprontar ‘place, put’: después las aprontó delante de ʿādām hā-riʿšōn (Heb. ‘Adam, the first [man]’) ile fue preguntando “esto cómo konviene liamarse?” (Meam Loez); i se izo nēs (Heb. ‘miracle’) grande aprontarle alii un pozo de agua ke no uvo nunka en akel lugar (ib.); aprontar-se ‘cause to appear, be made ready’: i kon los peškados izo tēnaʿy (Heb. ‘pact, bargain’) kela ora kelo ečaran a Yōnā han-nābīʿ (Heb. ‘Jonah the prophet’) en la mar, kese apronte un peškado grande ilo engluta i después ke io ieve en tierra bivo i sano (ib.); se julió un kavretiko i korió Mōšeh (Heb. ‘Moses’) de trás de el asta ke se aliegó en un lugar . . . i aí se le aprontó una alberka de agua i bivió asta ke se artó (ib.). Cf. Bosnia aprontar l’ašugar (Baruch, RFE 17, 146) ‘get the trousseau ready’; ~ (aparežar) ‘préparer’ (Chérézli).

asarozo, -za ‘shivering with fright’: Const. ~ ‘tremblant de peur’ (Subak, ZRPh. 30, 150), Salon. ‘id.’ (Subak, Salon., p. 7), Salon. “tú, di ar rey ke te merke un bislido entero de azero i unaz maneraz de azero i tom’ al kulebro i enjšalo i no l’espantez de nada.” la niña s’alebantó asaroza, asaroza, i se hwe end’el rey. Corominas (DCEC I, 351, s. azor) quotes Nebrija açorarse ‘efferor’; he states that the modern Spanish sense of ‘conturbar, sobresaltar’ was not fixed until ca. 1600 and that azorarse becomes azararse by analogy with azar ‘riesgo’. See azardo.

asúk’alkándi, asúk’alkánde, asúka alkándjo ‘sugar candy’. These forms were used by three aged natives of Salonica. The last of them would doubtless in normal rapid speech be pronounced as asúk’alkándjo; it was used by a man and recalls Old Span. candío (Juan Manuel), quoted by Corominas (DCEC I, 629/30, s. candí). Chérézli lists only asukar kandy ‘sucre candi’. Wagner (RFE 34, 30) quotes Salon. la asúka, Const., Kastoria, Smyrna la asúkar.

abierto, -a 'sighted, able to see': o abierto o ciego, Exod. 4, 11 (Ferrara); kén es ke pone mudo o sodro o avierto o siego? (Meam Loez); aken kero lo ago mudo o sodro o siego o avierto de ožos (ib.). This is a calque on Heb. piqqēah 'open-eyed, seeing'. In Salonica we find tener mano abierla 'be generous, open-handed' = Turk. eli açık 'id.'; tener laz manoz abiertas 'have chapped hands'. Wagner (RFE, Anejo XII, p. 41) quotes mučaća abierla 'prostitute', calqued on Turk. açık 'open; impudent, obscene (of book)'.

azár 'la flor del arvol de portukal, fleur d'oranger', agua de ~ 'eau de fleur d'oranger' (Chérézli); Salon. agya de azar i ruđa 'orange-flower water and rue' (used as a carminative, i.e. 'fait sortir les gaz'), but Morocco azzahar (Benoliel, BRAE 14, 575). Steiger (Hispano-árabe, p. 272) derives Span. azahar from Arab. zahr > zahár. Corominas (DCEC I, 346, s. azahar) states that to avoid the homonymy with azar 'hazard', the spelling azar is usually avoided in Spanish. See azardo.

azardo (Salon.) 'hazard, chance': por azardo enkontri a um byen amigo 'quite by chance I met a great friend'; un ĵugo de azardo 'a game of chance'. I believe that azardo is a derivative of a dialectal form of Ital. azzardo (and not from Fr. hasard, as Luria, RHispan. 79, 547, states); cf. Salon. mezo 'means' < dial. Ital. mezzo, mezo ĵorno 'midday', Bitolj mezu ĵornu 'id.'.

azmo, -ma 'unleavened': Salon. kyando no se faze la lebadura sale azmo el pan; ~ 'azyme' (Chérézli); Morocco ~ (Benoliel, BRAE 14, 575). Cf. Old Span. asmo (example dated 1513, quoted by Corominas, DCEC I, 349, s. ázimo); Galic., Port. asmo (Rodríguez González, Figueiredo).

azo (Salon., Const.) 'ace in cards, one in dice' (Subak, Salon., p. 7, ZRPh. 30, 151). Molho (Lit. Sej., p. 51) cites Quien no mira al azo, no mira al aspro, in which azo appears to be the coin 'as'. The form azo is unexpected and represents neither Turk. أصو aso (< Ital. asso) 'ace' (Redhouse, English-Turkish Dictionary, Constantinople 1911) nor, presumably, Ital. asso. Is it possible, because the playing of cards and dice is hazardous, that a presumably now lost *azar 'hazard' gave its -z- to earlier Turk. aso to form J.Span. azo? Turk. zar 'die', plur. zarlar 'dice' may also have influenced the Judaeo-Spanish form, in spite of the fact that dađo(s) 'die, dice' is fully alive. For the coin 'as', we find also J.Span. as, e.g. un cavritico que lo mercó mi padre por dos as (Molho, Lit. Sej., p. 166); de esta moneda ke te di, ke le des a julano unos kuantos as, ke es prove (Meam Loez). This as probably represents Turk. as, rather than Span. as.

bañadero, bañarse, bañero, baño v. embañar(se).

baš, dar 'be superior, surpass': Salon. (written sources) iia le diio baš a Nat Pinkerton; Paris i toda la frankia iia le dieron baš a Tesaloniki; kreo ke la ovra ke les da baš a todas dos es el ešpital ĥirš (Hirsch). This expression, very similar in meaning to salir a baš, is perhaps based on Turk. baš olmak 'be or become chief' (Redhouse, p. 324b).

baš, salir a. Const. ~ 'succeed, be able', a translation of Turk. basa çıkmak; as Wagner (Konst., p. 29 and Glossar) showed. Cf. Turk. başa çıkmak 'cope with, master, succeed' (Hony), başa çıkarmak 'bring to a successful issue' (Redhouse, p. 324b). In all my Salonica records, I find only salir a baš kon alguno or kon alguna koza, in which the sense is 'be superior to a person; cope with a thing', e.g. no salia a baš kon el el mižor okulista; no lo pueden sorswvyr (q.v.) ke un puniado de ĵidiios puedamos salir a baš kon miliiones de otras lees 'they cannot stomach the fact that we Jews, who are but a handful, are superior to the millions holding other faiths'; en viendo ke no se ia salir a baš kon el gasterio 'when he saw that he was not going to be able to meet the expense'. In the proverb ni el rei non sale abaš kon las kriaturas (Uziel, Rešummoth 5, 329) the sense is doubtless 'not even the king can have the upper hand of children'.

batir 'passion, uncontrollable emotion': Salon. le tomó el batir al bezir i le dišo a la niña: "sí, puede ser, ke yo te kjero a ti" 'the Vizir was filled with sexual desire and said to the girl: "Yes, it is possible, for I want you"'; Salon. le tomó il batir i 'l estremeser

'he went crazy with excitement'; Salon. (written source) lo ke me toma en vezes batires es kuando veo los ke gastan más ariva de sus boii 'what sometimes enrages me is when I see some spending beyond their means'; (written source) mi siniiora vavá dezía: siete batires batan al trazero les salga l'alma 'my grandmother used to say: "let seven passions assail them in the end and may they give up the ghost."' Cf. 'Amalequin (= amalecitas) que ven esto, el batir les toma presto (Molho, Lit. Sef., p. 164); Sarajevo le tomó um batir 'he flew into a rage', ké batir tjeni? 'why such a fuss?' In Salonica occurs also k'erremo batir [ké rremo batir?] which has been translated for me by 'quelle sale manie?', e.g. ké rremo batir ke se fizieron los ke benian kada dia a tefilá? 'what was the insane passion that brought them every day to prayers [in the synagogue]?' Can this rremo be connected with Span. remo 'trabajo grande y continuado'?

[beata*] adj. invar. 'blessed, happy': biiata la gente ke moran entiera santa (Meam Loez); i biiata akel ombre ke tiene kargo de los proves (ib.); biiata nozotros ke tuvimos zékút (Heb. 'merit, privilege') en este viiaže de venir aki (ib.).

bistuerto, tuerto 'hopelessly distorted; doubled-up with crippling disease; twisting and turning': i ansi eran todos sus dinim (Heb. 'laws') tuertos bistuertos komo el gančo (Meam Loez); Salon. entraban tuertoz i bistuertos i salian derečos 'they went in crippled and came out straight'; Salon. un kamino tuerto i bistuerto.

bišigānte (de mostadra) a alguno, ečar um (Salon.) 'apply a (mustard) plaster to someone'. This is an entirely popular form of learned Span. vesicante. Chérézli quotes only the strange פישגאנט [pyšyganty] 'vésicatoire'. Are we to see in his form the influence of pišar 'urinate' in reference to bursting blisters?

boka del alma. This vague anatomical term has been translated for me by 'breast-bone', but Saporta (Refranero, p. 58) renders it by 'parte del torso delante de los pechos' and Estrugo (Sefardies, p. 85) by 'estómago'.

bonifikar-se 'be verified, prove to be true; discover a fact': "ke valiia [= vaya] kada uno de nozotros kon sus ovežas i se apare en la boka del pozo i todo ken le suve el agua de suliio asta ariva para abevrar su ganado es siniaal ke el pozo es suliio.” i aziendo esto se bonifikó ke el pozo era de ʿAbrāhām (Meam Loez); se akožeron . . . todas las kriansas para entrarse dientro de la tēbā (Heb. ‘ark’) i estonses se bonifikó . . . ke no resivia la tēbā a todo ken keria entrar (ib.); onze dias es el anio del sol más ke él de la luna: esto se bonifika enel mes de tammûz (ib.); i bonifikándose ke era verdad le pezó más i más de tener tal ižo (ib.).

These meanings are different from those quoted for derivatives of L. bonificare* in Judaeo-Romance by Blondheim, p. 30/31, and by Raphael Levy, Lexicographie, p. 153, s. bonigier.

bučorno, abrir um (Salon.) ‘no jablar komo benadá, to abuse, blow someone up (in round terms)’. One informant stated that it meant ‘une grosse voix’, whereas another, a woman, who used the form bočorro, associated it with ‘una boca grānde’ and gave as an example me abrió um bočorro i gritó ‘il m’a engueulée!’ In popular writings I find only בּוֹחֹרְנוּ, e.g. si era una gazeta potente, ke su boz puedia ser sentida . . ., aviria un bučornu para grilar. It clearly represents Span. bochorno ‘close hot weather’, buchorno “es el tiempo de mucha calor. . . , y dixose buchorno, quasi boca de horno”, Covarrubias 1611 (S. Gili Gaya, Tesoro lexicográfico (1492–1726), Madrid 1947). This has then acquired the sense of ‘blast, searing with scorching words’, and the use of abrir makes it certain that there is a strong association with J.Span. bos and boka. Cf. y bochornada delante miesse, II Kings 19, 26 (Ferrara) ‘blasted before it be grown up’, Span. abochornar, Old Span. bochornar, bochornado (Tesoro lexicográfico).

ceguidumbre ‘blindness’: hirieron con çeguidumbres, Gen. 19, 11 (Ferrara), ceguidumbre, Lev. 22, 22 (ib.). Cf. te irira A. kon lokura i kon siegidumbre, Deut. 28, 28 (Smyrna 1838). Wagner (RFE 34, 94) quotes siegegés.

čaramela ‘pipe, reed-pipe’ translates Heb. hālil ‘flute, pipe’ in the Ferrara Bible adufle y charamela, I Sam. 10, 5, charamelas, I Kings 1, 40. The word survives in está como una tcharamela seca ‘está como una flor marchita, es decir, falta de vigor y lozania’ (Saporta, Refranero, p. 126/27), where the meaning is doubtless 'dry reed'. Cf. Span., Port., Franco-Prov. charamela (DCEC II, 59, s. chirimía).

The Smyrna 1838 Bible renders ḥālīl by קאַנטאַבלינא [kanta-plyna] in I Sam. 10, 5, I Kings 1, 40, Isa. 5, 12, etc. Cf. Span. cantilena and v. DCEC I, 638/39, s.v.

dale ke dale. Saporta (Refranero, p. 101) translates dale ke dale by 'a la larga, con perseverencia'. Cf. Salon. dale por akí, dale por aí, i pare un fižo kon una fleča d'oro en la mano i una streya d'oro en la fronte, in which the sense appears to be 'writhe (se débattre) in the pains of child-birth'; Morocco dale 'expresión lacónica con que se ordena de bañir, de pegar...' (Benoliel, BRAE 15, 53).

dekontinar 'continue': ke asigún krió la koza, de akel modo vaiia kaminando de kontino, ino se demude nunca, lo kual en las aves ke las primeras se kriaron de la agua, ma no dekontinaron a konkriarsen de el agua (Meam Loez) 'just as He created the thing, so may it continue forever, and never change, just as birds which at first were created from water, but did not continue to be engendered from water'; los ḥarvavan . . . para ke tuvieran kargo de akavidar asu ġente ke dekontinen en sus travažos sin baldarsen un punto (ib.) 'they beat them so that they should take care to warn their compatriots to go on with their labours without relaxing for a moment'. A formation from de kontino, Old Span. de contino 'continually'. Similarly, we find in the Meam Loez, akontinar 'continue': i para eskapar de el yeşer hā-rae akontina de aġuntarse kon su mužer 'and to avoid evil inclinations he goes on having intercourse with his own wife'; ke sierto ken akontina en esto nunca dize tēfillā (Heb. 'prayer') sigún su ovligo (ib.). The hybrid akontinuar appears in the Treżoro de Israel, p. 7, and kontinuar occurs in Salonica and Constantinople, though in Salonica and Skoplje kontunear (Simon, ZRPPh. 40, 666) is more usual. Cf. kontinamente 'continually' (Obligación), kontinavle 'continual' (Meam Loez).

desferensiiado, -da 'extraordinary, unreasonable, unnatural; violent'. In a recent article (Proc. Leeds Phil. and Lit. Soc. 9, 62) I referred to these curious meanings of desferensiado and suggested that the word was deferensiado* [= Span. diferenciado] by a change of prefix. That theory appears to have been correct because it has been pointed out to me by Mr. Raphael Loewe of London that this adjective is calqued on Heb. měšūneh (passive participle of Piel šīnnah 'change, vary, modify', from $\sqrt{\text{š-n-y}}$, Jastrow, p. 1605b), which means 'different; strange (unnatural, sudden) [referring to death]'. I now suggest that J. Span. demudado, -da with the senses, inter alia, of 'unnatural, supernatural; unusual, extravagant, eccentric' (loc. cit. in my above-mentioned article) is another calque on the Hebrew.

dolorear(se) 'be in labour, suffer pangs of childbirth': todas las mužeres preniadas ke avian dentro de su palasio, ke ūa estavan doloreando, se kedaron de parir i ivan penando kon sus dolores (Meam Loez). Cf. Quien no parió, no se dolorió (Foulché-Delbosc, RHisp. 2, 343).

embañar 'wash a corpse'. In describing this meaning, my Salonica informant added "es komo maldišion". Cf. Salon. embañadores, embañaderas, the equivalent of Heb. rôḥašim, rôḥašot (Molho, Usos y costumbres, p. 176/77) 'washers of the dead'; Salon. (written source) los rôḥašim van a ġurar ke él ke embañaron era ġidiio. Furthermore, we have Salon. embañado en la(s) sudor(es) 'bathed in sweat'; Bitolj imbañar 'bañar' (Luria, RHisp. 79, 452); Salon. embañarse 'bathe in a river, the sea', for which Chérézli has baniarse 'se baigner'. From baño 'bath (indoors); spa, watering-place', we find bañero, -ra 'bath-attendant, bathing-attendant' and bañadero, -ra 'person who bathes or swims in a public place'. Cf. tomar (um) baño 'have a bath' and dar (um) baño a alguno 'bath someone else'.

enkašar: 'thrust into, insert; practise coitus'; ~ 'fourrer, insérer' (Chérézli); Const. inkašár = iskondér 'enfouir' (Subak, ZRPh. 30, 137), Salon. enkašár 'travažar [= practise coitus]' (Subak, Salon., p. 16, note 2). Saporta (Refranero, p. 119) quotes the proverb Encacha Hasday, que la notchada es grande 'cuenta Hasday que la noche es larga', a patently euphemistic translation. enkaškar-se 'be deceived, duped': ma los ġidiios patrones de alma ke kreen ke el diiό es uno i su nombre uno no se enkařkan de su awla (Meam Loez) 'but conscientious Jews who believe that God is One and His Name One are not deceived by the words [of the Devil]'; aii ke demandar kόmo se enkařkό en las palabras del kulevro (ib.).

ensabanado 'un faux savant; personne qui s'enveloppe dans un drap de sainteté, a hypocrite': Salon. (written source) estos ensavanados ke se umflan de dar puniidakas en la boka del alma 'these hypocrites who make lumps on themselves by beating their breasts'; era un ensavanado ke savia enganiar ala rana [= ?]. Cf. ensavanado 'muy beato' (Estrugo, Sefardies, p. 89), 'hypocrita' (Attias, Romancero, p. 166). Doubtless a development of ensavanado 'el que se disfraça con sάvana' (Covarrubias).

entikeser-se 'develop tuberculosis': si les muere alguna kriatura no dizen ke serά por algόn pekado, sola mente dizen ke era mui adolensiado i entikesido (Meam Loez); se van apurando i entikesiendo (ib.). The usual verb for this is entikiarse 'coger la tuberculosis', a formation from tikia 'tuberculosis' (Wagner, RFE 34, 97).

enuvlado 'overcast, cloudy': por estar el dia enuvlado (Meam Loez); el sιelo estά enublado (Salon.); Bitolj innuvlado 'nublado' (Luria, RHisp. 79, 452). Cf. enuvlarse 'become cloudy': kuando se enuula el sielo i siente truenos (Meam Loez).

esħařalađo, -đ a (Salon.) 'dėbraillė(e)'. Cf. Bosnian desħařaladu 'dėbraillė' (Subak, ZRPh. 30, 159), Const., Adrianople ~ 'poco diestro, desmañado', esħařalađa 'mujer mal vestida y desordenada' (Wagner, RFE 34, 42). Wagner doubted whether Heb. ħāřal 'ser dėbil' (also 'scrape off, polish; reduce', Piel ħiřřel 'crush, batter' [Jastrow, p. 511a]) could be invoked, but felt sure that Turk. řapsal 'sciatto, trascurato' could be—this, I believe, is unlikely.

I now cite Morocco desħančalarse 'traer el cuerpo como descoyuntado y la ropa mal vestida, mal abotonada o cogida' (Benoliel, BRAE 15, 55) and compare desħalalado 'clumsy' in the proverb Al deshalalado le cae el bocado, dize que es de ojo malo (Subirá/Hemsi, p. 327) for the more usual Al desmañado le cae el bocado, dize que es de ojo malo (Foulché-Delbosc, RHisp. 2, 313; Saporta, Refranero, p. 105).

It would appear that (d)eshašalado, deshalalado and Morocco deshančalarse are connected; it is to be presumed that the Jews used some common verb in Spain whence these modern forms spring. Might one look to Arab. hašal 'faire peu de cas de . . . ; regarder comme vil', hašl 'vil, de peu de valeur' to throw further light on this matter? The cognate Heb. hāšal 'shatter' is probably also involved. Brown/Driver/Briggs (Hebrew and English Lexicon of the Old Testament, Oxford 1929) explain kol-hannēhešālīm, Deut. 25, 18 as 'all the shattered ones', i.e. 'those broken down, worn out'.

eskupirse las uñas, es de. Saporta (Refranero, p. 124/25) translates this expression by 'es vergonzoso, da asco'. I have seen the action of spitting on the nails of the right hand performed somewhere in the Balkans as a sign of fear, to avert the evil eye. Cf. Rum. a-și scuipa în sîn 'to spit on one's breast against fear, evil spirits and the evil eye'.

espiga 'ear of grain; cob of maize (Indian corn); maize'. In the Bibles espiga denotes 'ear of various cereals', but in Salonica, as also in Bitolj (Luria, RHisp. 79, 534), the term has been extended to include 'cob of maize' and the crop itself. Wagner (RFE 34, 85) has already shown that the Jews of Pazardjik, Bulgaria, similarly had recourse to the resources of their own language to name this new food by using piña for 'mazorca del maiz' and piñón for 'maiz'. Not all dialects did this: in Constantinople we have el misir < Turk. misir 'Egypt; Indian corn, zea mais' (Redhouse, p. 1877a), whereas Bosnia uses la kukurúza 'cob of maize'. Cf. Austrian German Kukurutz, Serb kuküruz, Bulg. kukuruz, Rum. cucuruz, Turk. kokoroz.

espínjas (Salon.) plur. 'darte; indeterminate skin eruption'. Cf. Port. espinha (+ carnal or brava) 'certas borbulhas do rosto'; Span. espínilla 'barro, tumorcillo en la cara' (Wagner, Festschrift Jud., p. 554); Galic. espíña 'barro que sale en el rostro' (Rodríguez González).

estažar(se) 'stop, come to a halt': el galgal va arodeando día i noče sin estažar (Meam Loez) 'the globe goes on turning day and night without pause'; por esto son 40 días ġustos ke no uvo estažar el mabbûl (Heb. 'flood') un punto (ib.); de el día ke nasió no se estažó su něbû'á nunka asta el día de su pēfirà (ib.) 'from the day he was born till the day of his death his divine inspiration never failed'; estažar 'stand between, separate': i aun ke la tierra estaža entre el sol a la luna (Meam Loez).

estažo 'interruption, halt, stop': ke estuviera ensendiendo el día kon su noče sin estažo de un punto (Meam Loez) 'that it should not cease to burn night and day for a single moment'; 'separation, division, space': kalia ke se esteiaran más ariva de dito estažo i las sangres . . . kalia ke se esteliaran más abašo de dito estažo (ib.) 'they were required to be sprinkled above that space and the blood had to be sprinkled below the space'. Cf. Old Span. destajar 'cortar; determinar; omitir', Old Arag. estallar 'acabar, cortar' (DCEC IV, 347, s. tajar).

fiđalgo, -ga. Wagner (RFE, Anejo XII, p. 23) referred to Bosnian fiđalgu 'delgado, esbelto' and mentioned similar meanings in Galician and Salmantino. Cf. Salon. fiđalgo 'sobre, mince; délicat; délicat de santé'; Meam Loez: si alguno de los ġudiós dišera ke no pueđia travažar ke era onbre fiđalgo i delikado i no estava enbezado de azer mēlā'kà (Heb. 'work').

ġizar-se 'become ripe': komo un fruto ke akavándose de ġizarse se kae de el árbol de suliio (Meam Loez); 'function (of gastric juices)': siendo su puerpo está buiendo la sangre para ġizar loke kumió (ib.)

grupo (Salon.) 'croup, indeterminate throat affection in children'. The presence of g, usually indicative of the popular nature of a word, is here curious. Span. crup, Fr. croup, mod. Gk. κροῦπ provide no explanation.

ġusto, -ta 'attained (years of age)': no lenia sien años ġustos kuando uino el mabbûl 'he had not attained his hundredth year when the flood occurred'. In the same way I find ağustar 'attain (years of age), Span. cumplir': los mučacos ke no ağustaron 20 años (Meam Loez); 'complete, finish, bring to a successful conclusion': i kada estreia no ağusta de arodear el galgal sola mente en vente i kuarto mil años (ib.) 'and each star completes its revolution round the globe only in 24,000 years'; i ağustando de azer la lēbā (Heb. 'ark') fue enpezando kon pez a todas las tavlas (ib.); i kon esto ağuntimos la pārašā de Nōah (ib.) 'and thus we have completed the section concerning Noah'; i también ken no ağustava de azer los adoves ke le ataksavan a oras de tadre lo enklavavan entre la fragua i lo tapavan de modo ke lo enteravan bivo (ib.). The noun ağustamiento 'completion' also appears in the Meam Loez. Heb. ṭûm 'to fill up' and ṭāmam 'id.' have doubtless provided the foregoing pattern.

ḥaraganear-se 'be slothful': i no se ḥaraganea de azerlo (Meam Loez); i si es ... perezozo i se ḥaraganea de travažar en la lei (ib.); ḥaraganearse 'fainéanter' (Chérézli), but Span. haraganear. importar 'be equivalent to, be worth': ke siendo ṣaddiqîm ... uno de elios inportava kquanto una 'ummā entera (Meam Loez) 'since they were pious men any one of them was worth a whole nation'; 'add up to, equal': i tuvo Mōšeh ... de bivir 120 años ke así el biervo de has-sēneh inporta sienta i vente (ib.) 'and Moses was destined to live for 120 years because [the letters of] "the thorn-bush" have the value of 120'; 'amount to in number': i inportaron dozientos i setenta kriiaturikas ke se puzieron dientro de la pared (ib.).

kađra, kađrađor, kađrađura, kađrar v. perčar-se.

kalamita 'aimant' (Chérézli). Whatever the immediate origin of this word may be in Judaeo-Spanish (v. DCEC, s. caramida), it is interesting to note that in Salonica it has developed the secondary meaning of 'lightning-conductor', e.g. kalamitas kontra los truenos.

kambúra (Salon.) 'hunch on the back of a man'; kambúr 'hunch-backed person': košos, tuiđoz i kambúres 'the lame, the crippled and the hunch-backed'; kambureado, -da 'being hunch-backed'. Molho (Lit. Sej., p. 378) describes cambura 'corcova, joroba' as being of Turkish origin; it is more likely to be Gk. καμπύρα < Turk. kambur, whereas the above-cited kambur (+ -es) is obviously a direct borrowing from Turkish.

karmador, -dera, karmar. Molho (Usos y costumbres, p. 298) quotes Salon. carmar 'exorcise the evil eye in cases of illness by having a Rabbi or a sorceress recite psalms in the presence of the patient'; in the same work, p. 8, he translates carmadera by 'encantadora'. Cf. Salon. dos karmadorez i un fičizero 'two workers of spells and a wizard'. Raphael Levy (Lexicographie, p. 195) lists Judaeo-Fr. charmer 'ensorceler', charme 'charme, moyen de charmer', charmant 'charmeur'.

kaškañetas kon loz dedos, ečar (Salon.) 'snap the thumb and middle finger'. Cf. Nav. cascañetazo 'castañetazo' (Iribarren); Chérezli lists only kastanieta 'sonido ke se aze kon el dedo pulgar i el de enmediio', like Cast. castañeta. See DCEC I, 724, for parallels in Spanish and French.

katarata 'cataract (of the eye)': los irieron bien kon mal de ožos, ke se liiama kataratas, a tanto ke ivan apalpando a buškar la puerta i no topavan (Meam Loez). In the Ferrara Bible we find o tela o mancha en el ojo, Lev. 21, 20, in which tela translates Heb. daq 'cataract', and mancha represents Heb. lēballul 'bleared or spotted in the eye; blending of the colour of the eyes'. The Const. 1873 version renders lēballul by nuve, which is the usual word for 'cataract' in Salonica. The rebollura en el ožo of the Smyrna 1838 Bible is presumably another word for some disease or peculiarity in the colour of the eyes.

korača (in general use) 'little bag in which the praying shawl, phylacteries and prayer books are carried'. See Wagner (RFE 31, 71), who first listed the word, and Corominas (DCEC I, 970, s. cuero), who states that it is likely to be of Andalusian Mozarabic origin from L. coriacea. Its diminutive in Kastoria is koračina (Molho, Lit. Sef., p. 87), but koračika in Salonica. Malkiel (NRFH 2, 187/88) shows that diminutive -ino was used in Galician-Portuguese and Asturo-Leonese.

lazo. Chérézli lists lazo (laso, niitudo) 'noeud coulant', lazo (red) 'piège, lacet' and laso 'embûche, lacet, piège'. The form laso is equivalent to Port. laço, whereas lazo = Old Span. laso, with voiced -s- (v. DCEC II, 59, s. lazo). Wagner (Konst., § 130, p. 144) quotes Const. el azo, arising from el (l)azo; I believe this is also the Salonica form, but have heard only the expression tomar alazo. In the Ferrara Bible one finds seran a vos por lazo y por estro[n]pieço, Josh. 23, 13, and y sera[n] enlazados, Isa. 8, 15, whereas the Mahzor reads palomba enlasada ke alforia rekere, the Portuguese form.

Saporta (Refranero, p. 132) quotes ya me etché un lagio al garón 'he put a noose about my neck'; he translated lagio by 'lazo, ñudo'. In Saporta's method of writing, gi normally represents ǰ, but I suspect that he has taken this expression from a text in Hebrew characters in which gimel + diacritic = ǰ and ĕ (and, sometimes, z), and that for his lagio, we should read lačo* = Ital. laccio, cognate with Span. lazo, Old Span. laso and Port. laço.

levdar 'cause to ferment, leaven'; levdar mišwâ (Heb. 'religious act') 'procrastinate', a calque on the Hebrew usage (v. Jastrow, p. 479a, s. Hiphil of hāmēš 'ferment') and cf. siendo así devia de azer la mišwâ ino asperar asta ir a mišrayim (Heb. 'Egypt') ke no konviene a la presona ke deše levdar la mišwâ (Meam Loetz). manera 'glove'. Wagner (RFE 34, 74) states that in Salonica, Karaferia and Bulgaria, manera is usually 'woollen glove', whereas 'leather glove' is called gante. I believe this is an oversimplification of the situation in Salonica, where (in a konseža) I have unaz maneraz de azero 'mailed gauntlets', and (in a newspaper) maneras de kuero. I think it possible that manera is a long glove or gauntlet in which the wrist is covered. Salon. gyante, in which the fricative g shows that it is of Spanish origin, exists beside gante, that is clearly a borrowing from French.

Luria (RHisp. 79, 446) quotes Bitolj ganti [ganti] 'guante' and believes it is of Spanish origin, though the form could spring from gyanti* + Fr. gant.

Molho (Lit. Sej., p. 381), in an extract from the Meam Loez, has manquera [mangera?].

manġar: i az a mi manġares komo amo, Gen. 27, 4 (Smyrna 1838) 'savoury meat'; manġares (Ferrara); Salon. manġar 'food'. Salon. um manġa ombres 'cannibal' is perhaps inspired by Ital. mangiare.

maškar(e)ar 'obliterate, erase, scratch out': si kalió una gota de agua o resto de bevařes sovre el libro no puede lanberlo kon la luenga, ni alimpiarlo kon la mano o kon tovařa ke será kavza de maškarar la letra (Meam Loez); los ke azen bogačas i eskriven letras sovre eliias komo derekē māšāl en pesah . . . es ʿāsūr de partirlo [sic] en šabbāt, ke se liiama maškarar las letras 'they who make cakes and decorate them with letters as for example at the Passover, it is forbidden to cut them on the Sabbath, for that is called erasing the letters'. The later maškarear survives in Salon. una navařika para maškarear los ieros; palavras enteras maškareadas 'words that are made completely unrecognizable [by typographers]'.

Corominas (DCEC III, 283, s. máscara) states that "el área de mascarar 'tiznar' es extensa, aunque su ciudadela principal está en la zona catalano-occitana". Saporta (Refranero, p. 135) quotes el mal fawlar si no entizna, mascarea and translates the last word by 'afea, influye mal'; maškarea [which would have appeared as machcare* in Saporta's method of writing] would here be expected, because J.Span. maskarse (burlarse) 'se moquer' (Chérézli) exists. This is a formation from maskará < Turk. maskara 'buffoon, laughing-stock' (Redhouse, p. 1852b). menzana 'demijohn'. Wagner (Konst., § 29, p. 104, and RFE 34, 76) quotes this form for Constantinople; it is also known in Salonica afilú si se bebe una menzana de azeite de ričina 'even if he drinks a demijohn of castor-oil'. Steiger (VRom. 18, 165, reviewing Kahane and Tietze, Lingua Franca in the Levant, Urbana 1958) points out that Egyptian-Arab. damangāna and Turk. mancána, mincine, with epenthetic -n-, require further investigation.

mištrabá v. [šarba].

myela del séhel (Salon.) 'wisdom tooth'. Heb. šēkel 'wisdom, understanding'.

múškula, múšmula, múšpula v. [zaarora].

nuḅe 'cataract (in the eye)' v. katarala.

ostaria 'inn, lodging-house': en la ostarilia ke apozó 'Abrāhām ala venida, alii pozó ala tornada (Meam Loez); i dílos 3 saviios apozaron en la ostaria (ib.)'. Perhaps a modification of Ital. osteria.

perčarse (Salon.) 'tear out one's hair or that of another': ke karál se pelearon ke se perčaron enteras 'to such an extent did they quarrel that they tore all their hair out'; doz mužeres se pelearon i se perčaron enteras 'se sont arraché les cheveux'. Cf. Span. perchar 'colgar el paño y sacarle el pelo con la carda'; cardar '... pull by the haire, to disheuell, to teare ones haire...' (Tesoro lexicográfico). In Salonica, and doubtless everywhere, kadra 'wool-card', kadrador, -era, kadradura and kadrar survive in their original sense.

pulgar (polgar) 'thumb; big toe'. In the Bibles, Ladino and in songs, this term survives, but is replaced in the spoken language by dedo godro (Wagner, RFE 34, 40) or by dedo grande. It may be that pulgar has lost ground because, in Salonica, and elsewhere, l, r + consonant are often confused—in a sound which I hear as l rather than r—, hence Salon. pulgar [= Span. purgar] 'defaecate, salir del puerpo' (cf. Salon. pulgadero 'diarrhoea') is identical with pulgar 'make meat kosher in the usual Jewish fashion' (cf. pulgar 'mondar las patatas y las frutas; descortezar los árboles; caerse el cutis', DCEC I, 916). The situation has presumably not been helped by the fact that Salon. espulgar 'delouse; inspect carefully; make judicious selection' and (ar)repulgar 'lešer, repriser' (cf. Salon. loz mušoz repulgados 'pursed lips') from repulgo 'ourlet, pince' (Chérézli) are still in use. The confusion of l, r + consonant is not, however, absolute, since Salon. purga 'purge' and purgar-se 'se purger' are so heard by me. It may be that these are learned forms kept alive by doctors who, even in the darkest days, were probably more educated than their patients.

It may be noteworthy that Ferrara y purgare como xabon tus escorias, Isa. 1, 25, is rendered by i ezmerare komo šavon tus eskoriias in the Vienna 1813, Smyrna 1838 and Const. 1873 Bibles.

Cf. Const. sarpikar 'salpicar' (Wagner, Konst., § 43, p. 117), sarpikar (salpikar) 'éclabousser' (Chérézli), Const. sarčiča (Wagner, loc. cit.), but salčiča 'saucisse' (Chérézli), Salon. arcuña (Molho, Usos y costumbres, p. 70), beside alkuña (so heard by me), Salon. alkuza 'oil-jar; sty in the eye' (Crews, Orbis 2, 356), Bitolj alcuze 'oil-jar' (Luria, RHisp. 79, 432), arcuzique (Luria, op. cit., 561), etc.

purgamino (Salon.) 'parchment, manuscript'. The presence of plosive -g- proves that this is not a native word. I find only the spelling פּוּרְגָמִינוּ [pwrgamino] in the Meam Loez. The influence of puerko, Ital. porco, does not seem likely since a pious Jew would doubtless have been unwilling to handle pig-skin.

sangrefisio 'sacrifice': komo si komieran de sangrefisio de muertos (Salonica 1897, pointed edition of Pirge Aboth) 'as if they had eaten of sacrifices to dead idols'. Cf. Jud.-Fr. sang(u)erfise, sangrfise (Blondheim, p. 102).

sekīozo, -za 'thirsty', used in Salonica, Constantinople (Subak, ZRPh. 30, 150) and in the Bibles. Cf. Port. sequioso 'id.'.

servis m.: tu çeruiž el duro, Deut. 31, 27 (Ferrara) 'thy stiff neck'; cervis 'nuca' (Molho, Lit. Sej., p. 201). Cf. desceruiçarloas, Exod. 13, 13 (Ferrara) 'thou shalt break his neck'.

šjegés, šjegidumbre v. ceguidumbre.

soğefto, -la 'subject, submissive': por sierto lo ternés por demanda grande a saver ké kulparon la ğente de akel dôr (Heb. 'generation') de estar soğeftos a los mišriyyîm (Heb. 'Egyptians') (Meam Loez); kon ser buenos i soğeftos a mi komando (ib.); soğeftos 'sujets' (Subak, ZRPh. 30, 157).

soğeftar-se: 'submit, abase (oneself)': viendo ke mos estamos soĵeftando tanto por ser gwestros esklavos (Meam Loez); oliió [= oyó] también kесе soĵeftaron i se izieron sus esklavos (ib.); fue a peĉa soĵeftado, Gen. 49, 15 (Const. 1873). Cf. hinchid à la tierra, y soĵetadla, Gen. 1, 28 (Dos Columnas, Amsterdam). Suĉeftar (Gaspar Remiro, BRAE 5, 363) is erroneous.

Corominas (DCEC IV, 782, s. yugo) quotes J.Span. soĉi-guar, adduced by Gaspar Remiro (BRAE 5, 360)—I believe that the latter wrongly transliterated ֿ by ĉ and that soĉġiguar* must be read just as we certainly have soĵeftar. The Ferrara Bible has hinchid a la tierra y soĵuzgalda, Gen. 1, 28; sera soĵuzgada la tierra, Num. 32, 22.

[sorswvyr] (Salon.) 'endure, bear'. (Written sources only:) no lo pudo más סורסוביר 'he could no longer stomach (bear) it'; este kiepazelik no lo esto pudiendo sorswvyr 'I just cannot bear this scandalous state of affairs'. Whether a connection is to be sought with sorber 'sip; sniff; swallow', through sorsorber*, I do not know.

syvyrno (סיבירנו) 'variety of tree'. This term is used to translate Heb. šittá, pl. šittîm (described by Jastrow, p. 1560a, as 'acacia') in Smyrna 1838: alarze i syvyrno i murta, Isa. 41, 19 'the cedar, the shittah tree, and the myrtle', for which the Ferrara Bible reads alerze cedro y murtha.

[šarba] (שארבה) 'alcazaras' (Chérézli). Regrettably Chérézli never marks the stress. Is this a loanword from Turkish [the word is not listed in Redhouse] or must we proceed directly from Arab. šarba (شربة) 'pot de terre avec goulot étroit et allongé'? We should, perhaps, compare Nav. jarba 'turno de tres días que . . . rige en el uso de las aguas de riego procedentes de la presa de Milagro', jarbar 'distribuir el agua de riego entre las heredades' (Iribarren); Arag. jarbar 'distribuir el agua por horas para el riego' (Pardo Asso, Nuevo dicc. etim. aragonés, Zaragoza 1938).

Other formations from Arab. $\sqrt{\text{š-r-b}}$ in Judaeo-Spanish are:
1. mištrabá (Salon., Skoplje) 'jar, jug; goblet', a form that is very close to Arab. mišraba 'cruchon en terre'. The Jews must have borrowed the word from the Turks before it was converted into obsolete Turk. meşrebe = mod. Turk. maşrapa 'pot, large mug' (Redhouse, p. 1867a). Lokotsch (No. 1439, s. mašraba [< mišraba] 'Trinkgefäß') cites Turk. maşrapa > Rum. năstrăpa, Bulg. maštrapa, Serb. maštrafa. The presence of t in these forms does not invalidate the fact that it is also in accordance with Judaeo-Spanish speech habits for t to develop in such circumstances, e.g. s-r > -str-, z-r > -zdr- (v. Crews, VRom. 16, 237/38), so I postulate Old Turk. mišraba* > J. Span. mištrabá. On one occasion I have met מִיִּשְׂרָבָא in a text.

2. šarope 'syrup made of boiled fruit juice with sugar' (v. Wagner, RFE 34, 95; Wagner, Konst., § 36, p. 109). Corominas (DCEC II, 1036, s. jarabe) quotes Gaspar Remiro (BRAE 2, 300) who listed Salon. xarofe; Gaspar Remiro was either using a vicious text or he misread that which he had—the editions I possess of the same text do indeed read šarope (i.e. ש and not פ). A similar error of Gaspar Remiro is his gota pediunda 'semen humanum' (BRAE 5, 299) which reads in my editions ghota fedhiionda 'stinking drop' (based on feder 'stink'; cf. yo mezquino fediondo que fiende mas que can, Berceo, Milagro de Teofilo, 762a, in the text of Marden, RFE, Anejo IX, p. 58).
3. šurúp (Const.) 'syrup' < Turk. şurub, şurup (Wagner, RFE 34, 95, s. šarope).

4. Morocco xarábe (Benoliel, BRAE 13, 223).

taliga (Salon.). I have been told that this word has the same meaning as korača (q.v.). Chérézli lists סַכּוֹ (sako) 'sac'. Cf. Port. taliga 'saco o bolsa de lienzo basto' < Arab. taḷīqa (Steiger, Hispano-árabe, p. 215; Neuvonen, Studia Orientalia 10, 101), but Span. talega.

tarató, taratór (Salon.). The form tarató is used by women and taratór by men. They derive from Turk. tarator 'a kind of sauce in which garlic is always an ingredient'. In oxytons final -n (with nasalization of preceding vowel) and -r tend to disappear in Salonica, so taratór > tarató* > tarató by false regression. The sauce is said to be identical with Salon. ažada, of which Estrugo (Retorno, p. 80) says "la 'ajada' de Esmirna es el 'aioli' de Barcelona". Cf. Morocco ajada 'ensalada compuesta de naranja dulce, pimientos majados con aceite, ajos y sal' (Benoliel, BRAE 14, 568).

tramús (Salon.) 'lupin'. Cf. Cat. tramús (DCEC I, 174). Other Judaeo-Spanish forms of this word are Smyrna atramuzis (Kurt Levy, VKR 2, 367), altramuz, tramuz (Chérézli), Const. atramús (Wagner, Konst., § 44, p. 118), Bulg. altramús, Kastoria tramúza (Wagner, RFE 34, 31), Bitolj tramúsu (Luria, RHisp. 79, § 170, p. 544), with which cf. Murciano tramuso (García Soriano, Vocab. del dialecto murciano, Madrid 1932, p. LIII). In the Meam Loez I find asigún vemos en los atramuzes aun ke son más amargos ke la fiel se pueden adulsar. Benoliel (BRAE 14, 574) lists Morocco atarmúz.

travado de luenga (elguenga) 'person who stammers': mitiío la braza en la boka i se izo travado de elguenga (Meam Loez) '[Moses] put the glowing cinder in his mouth and became a stammerer'. Cf. S. Amer. trabarse 'tartamudear'. On other occasions in the Meam Loez, in reference to Moses, I find aun ke sos tartamudo and se kemó la luenga i de estonses se kedó pelték (Turk. pellék 'stammerer') ke penava asta kitar la palabra de la boka. According to the Meam Loez, Moses, a stammerer, was obliged to use Aaron as his mouthpiece, because no person who is physically unsound may have dealings with the Deity, whether in conversation or as a sacrifice.

vístozo, -za (siego, -ga) 'aveugle' (Chérézli). It would seem that this meaning is a tabu inversion of the real sense. My aged Salonica informants do not know such a meaning, but quote bístozo 'très joli, très beau'. See abjerto.

The form múšmula 'medlar' < Turk. (< Greek) mušmula is commented on by Wagner (RFE 34, 79), who quotes also J. Span. múškula, múšpula, Bulg. míškola. Jud (VRom. 13, 212/

13) refers to Const. miskola (listed by Kurt Levy, VKR 2, 374), and compares High Arag. miézpola, mizcola. In Salonica, Subak (Salon., p. 12) heard múšpula, but my informants know only mišpula, mišpola, with which I compare Nav. mizpola (Iribarren).

[zaatar]. Chérézli lists רצצצ (oregano) 'thym', but under oregano he has 'planta goloriioza, zaatar, origan'. Cf. el oregano, I Kings 4, 33 (Ferrara) 'hyssop'. J.Span. zaatar presumably represents dialectal Arab. زعتير, for Class. Arab. سَعْتِير, سَعْتِير (Steiger, Hispano-árabe, 285), rather than Turk. (Arab.) saeter, vulg. zater, zatr, satr 'savory' (Redhouse, p. 1059a-b).

zelunal 'olive-tree': la palomba uino kon una oža de árvol de zelunal (Meam Loez). Cf. Bulg. aze(i)tunal 'aceituno' (Wagner, RFE 31, 32), azeitunar (olivo) 'árvol de azeituna, olivier' (Chérézli).
