THE STOCK EXCHANGE OF ZURICH. (By Leu & Co.'s Bank Limited, Zurich).

Zurich, March 13th, 1937.

Stimulated by comparatively favourable reports from trade and industry in Switzerland and in accordance with a strong disposition of most commodities abroad, the stock prices were improving further in the first part of February. Round the 20th of last month, however, calmer views began to prevail and more selective buying took place thus leading to some profit taking in most stocks. Since then no change took place and the market gives the impression of tiredness, which was quite obvious in the first week of March, when it hardly reacted upon the buoyancy in rails and steels in New York. With the exception of Baltimore and Pennsylvania that were very firm and a few special shares setbacks were common and turned more accentuated recently. As a rule, however, sales were never pressing and as a good sign we may take the fact that turnovers were decreasing with falling quotations. Bank shares after the coupons were detached lost much of their speculative interest and were sold lower. Also Trust companies were unable to maintain their highest level and weakened. Especially Motor-Columbus and Saeg lost considerable ground, partly on account of a lighter trend in general and partly because pending elections in Argentina are making such investments less attractive for the moment. Owing to repatriation of French capital in connection with a more settled financial situation in France after Mr. Blum's announced change in policy a number of international stocks, such as Hispano and Royal Dutch were more widely offered, while Italo-Argentina kept fairly stable at 265. Also Swiss industrials traded lower, although the losses were seldom so big as to wipe out all previous gains. Sevillana, a Spanish investment, gained by further advances of the Rebels, as the power-plants of this company are situated in the nationalist territory. Schweiz. Gesellschaft f. Metallwerte made a sudden downward dash to 137 against 170 on account of a lost law-suit in the U.S.A., the effect of which upon the company's finances was rather uncertain. Meanwhile however, an improvement brought the price per share up to 160 again.

A small list of representative stocks may illustrate best the general price situation:

	beginning	Febr. 8th	highest	March 12th
Schweiz. Nationalbank	650	650	650	650
Elektrobank	665	675	662
Motor-Columbus	338	370	350
Zürich. Allg. Unfall-Vers.	7,775	8,000	7,850
Aluminium-Industrie	2,745	2,860	2,810
Bally	1,290	1,440	1,400
Brown Boveri	243	245	232
Kraftwerk Laufenburg	660	750	730

On the bond market the gilt-edged securities showed slight weakness during February and March which is believed to be due to wide selling by German nationals of Swiss holdings, complying with the more rigorous laws in Germany. The average yield of 12 Federal Government securities remains, however, with 3½%. Quite remarkable improvement registered especially German Funding bonds, as the Swiss-German clearing arrangement is looked upon more hopeful. French bonds were rather irregular suffering by the unsettled financial situation in France. Considerable optimism is spreading, however, just now, in connection with the new armament loan, that started very promising.

Good disposition encountered Italian securities, while 7% Poland were rather weak, owing to serious difficulties in transferring interests and capitals.
