Federal

The Austrian Chancellor, Dr. Leopold Figl, arrived on the 1st of this month in the Federal capital, where he was received by the Federal Council in corpore.

He conveyed to the Swiss Government and to the Swiss people the thanks of the Austrian Republic for the great help given during and after the war.

On the occasion of a Banquet offered to Dr. Figl, a number of speeches were made in which the friendly relations between the two countries were mentioned.

The Austrian Chancellor said amongst other things:

"The political difficulties facing the Austrian people are created solely by the East." He accused the Russians of blocking the Austrian Peace Treaty and requisitioning Austrian production without payment. He also mentioned Yugoslav demands for territory and reparations. These points he set against the economic help and political sympathy accorded Austria by the West.

"Austria is determined to resist any territorial concessions to Yugoslavia in Carinthia," Dr. Figl said. "Austria did not declare war on Yugoslavia and that country has no right to demand reparations from her. By money and propaganda Yugoslavia has tried to create a Yugoslav movement in Austria, intended to organise the Slovenes, but the movement has gained only some thousands of members and 80 to 90 per cent. of the Slovenes are entirely on Austria's side.

"A good deal of the production of Austrian factories is requisitioned by the Soviet authorities without payment. Some weeks ago the Austrian Government sent a Note to the Soviet Government asking for a clear point of view to be stated with regard to the peace treaty. We have had no answer. The Communist Party in Austria is at present without importance, without respect and without members. Its Press is violently anti-Government, but this we believe to be a sign of weakness."

Before the departure of the "Bundeskanzler" a dinner was offered to the members of the Federal Council at the Austrian Legation. Amongst the guests were: Federal-Chancellor Dr. Leimgruber, late Federal Councillor Wetter, Ministers Hotz, Zehnder, Feldscher, Ruegger, Dinichert and Stucki, Dr. Siegenthaler, President of the Bernese Government, and Dr. Baertschi, Mayor of the town of Berne.

The centenary celebration of the Swiss Constitution of 1848 started on the 20th of June in Berne, with a procession. Dense crowds watched one of the finest spectacles ever witnessed in the Federal Capital. Unfortunately the weather somewhat spoilt the effect.

The official opening which was to have taken place at the "Wankdorffeld" had to be held at the "Festhalle" of the Federal Singing Competition, it was preceded by religious services in the various churches of the capital.

The principal service was held at the Minster and was attended by the Federal Council in corpore, former Federal-Councillors, members of the two Federal Chambers, Federal Tribunal, high Army Officers, amongst them General Guisan, Swiss and Foreign diplomats, high church dignitaries, rectors of all the Universities, etc., etc.

During the service speeches were made by Monsieur Celio, President of the Swiss Confederation, M. Picot, President of the National Council, M. Iten, President of the States Council, and M. Bärtschi, Mayor of the town of Berne.

This service was followed by an official Banquet at the Kasino.

A large number of congratulatory messages were received by various Foreign governments.

During May, Britain exceeded her previous month's high exports to Switzerland by Frs.400,000 to Frs.38.5 millions.

As a result of a decline in deliveries from other countries, notably Belgium and Luxembourg, Britain advanced to third place among Switzerland's suppliers, preceded by Argentina and the United States.

Switzerland's exports to the U.K. during the month rose by Frs.2.6 millions to Frs.10.4 millions.

For the first five months of 1948, Switzerland had an adverse foreign trade balance of Frs.1,000 millions, against Frs.550 millions during the same period in 1947.

Mr. Paul Ruegger, President of the International Committee of the Red Cross returned to Geneva on 30th from Washington, where he was received by Mr. Truman and laid before him, as also before the Department of State and the American Red Cross Society, various questions relative to the present and future activities of the International Committee of the Red Cross. Mr. Ruegger particularly stressed the importance of the revision of the Geneva Conventions, and the preparation of new draft Conventions by the International Committee.

Mr. Ruegger observed once again, with satisfaction the very great interest shown by the highest Authorities of the United States in the humanitarian work of the International Red Cross.

Traffic

Passenger services on the 27.9-mile standard-gauge steam-operated line between Glovelier and Saignelégier in North-West Switzerland, have been discontinued as from May 9th, and replaced by a bus service. The road distance between the places named is 12.6 miles.

The line belongs to the Compagnie du Chemin de Fer du Jura, which is responsible also for the road services. Livestock and goods, however, will continue to be conveyed by rail between the ten stations on the line. This has a very unfavourable alignment, with severe gradients and sharp curves.

Trains have to be reversed at Combe Tabeillon Station, 6.2 miles south of Glovelier, where there is a connection with the Federal Railways Bienne—Delémont—Delle (French frontier) line. Saignelégier is also the terminus of the metre-gauge steam-worked line from La Chaux-de-Fonds, owned and operated by the same company.

There has been widespread discontent with the cancellation of the passenger services, and some 300 representatives of the communities concerned have formed "action committees" to bring pressure to bear on the railway company for a resumption of passenger traffic.

The Swiss Federal Railways carried in the month of May altogether 18.1 million passengers, or 113,163 more than in May 1947. The receipts for the passenger service show an increase of 1.04 million francs to 23.8 million francs.

Goods traffic (carried 1.61 million tons) increased by 92,296 tons for which the receipts are 29.27 million francs or 1.75 million more than in May 1947.

Swiss owners of Hungarian nationalised shares are invited to notify them to the Hungarian Legation up to July 31st.

The Hungarian authorities quite recently put into force a new system of nationalisation which entails the taking over of both assets and liabilities of nationalised undertakings, and under which the Government will only redeem the shares of Hungarian nationals resident in Hungary.

Thus, there is, in principle, no nationalisation as far as foreign owners are concerned and therefore no indemnification.

The question arises, then, what will be their position and rights in the new management. There are instances in particular where foreign shareholders are in the majority — some Swiss Trusts being a case in point.

Placed outside a sharp bend in the river, the water intake to the turbines (at the rate of 200 cu. m. per second) has two openings 4 metres high and 30 metres wide. The metal-cased concrete underground conduit, 7.75 m. in diameter, has a total length of 3,860m. The three 214-r.p.m. vertical-axis Kaplan turbines, each using 66 cu. m. of water per sec., are rated at 24,000 kW. A horizontal-axis turbine drives a 1,200-kW. auxiliary generator.

The plant is operated from a control room outside the turbine house, and the voltage of generation is stepped up to that of the h.v. transmission system at an outdoor substation. The transformers are without regulating devices, control being at the alternators. The station is expected to be completed towards the end of 1949.

The two rubber-tyred coaches ordered recently by the Swiss Federal Railways are to weigh not more than 22 tonnes each inclusive of 80 passengers, the tare weight thus not exceeding 16 tonnes. As compared with the lightweight steel coaches of 28 tonnes tare adopted for the inter-city fast trains, this means a saving of 12 tons, or 43 per cent.

The second class coach will have seating accommodation for 46 passengers and will be built of aluminium alloy, while the third class coach will seat 76 passengers and will be built of mild steel. The weight of these two experimental coaches has to be kept within comparatively narrow limits because progress so far made in the technique of rubber-tyred railway vehicles does not permit of loading a rubber tyre with a weight exceeding 2,420 lb. (1,100 kg.). This is the reason for the two 10-wheel bogies on each vehicle. Due to the high adhesion between rubber tyres and steel rails, the braking distance of a rubber-tyred vehicle is extremely short. In the case of a Micheline railcar running at 62m. (100 km.) p.h., it is only 492 ft. (150m.). If the experiments with these test vehicles are satisfactory, it is intended to order a large number to form complete rubber-tyred trains to be hauled by the high-speed "Re4/4" class electric locomotives of the Swiss Federal Railways.
